BRYAN BOGIES VANISHING

Bank Guaranty, Injunction, Publicity, and Trust Questions No Longer Interest the Voters.

BY RAYMOND.

[Copyright: 1908: By Tribune Company, Chicago.]

This presidential campaign of 1908 will go down into history as almost unique, because it has been fought out from the beginning to the end absolutely without a single definite issue between the two parties.

Speakers on each side have discussed all sorts of things and the platforms of both parties were as verbose as usual. Yet it must be apparent, now that the fight is drawing to a close, that there has not been any vital issue to distinguish the republicans from the democrats.

There is probably nothing on which the people can make up their minds except what the turf people call the "past performances" of the parties and the candidates.

In 1892 the country was convulsed with the argument over the tariff. Four years later Bryan set unthinking people aflame with his free silver nostrum, which was warranted to cure all of their financial ills.

In 1900 he conjured up the ghost of imperialism and fought it valiantly until it vanished into thin air on election day. Four years ago Judge Parker was excited by the threat of militarism and of a dangerous jingo sentiment on the part of Theodore Roosevelt.

No Issue; Little Interest.

In 1908, however, there is nothing to create argument, and this is possibly the reason for the lack of interest which the people seem to show in the coming election.

It is singular, to say the least, that Mr. Bryan, who is an extremely clever politician, although he is a wretched statesman, did not seize upon some one issue upon which to harp during the campaign. He has fought the fight of 1908 with a shotgun, and has stood far enough away to scatter all over the barn door, so that he has never made any impression on the people from the day of the Denver convention up to the eve of the election itself.

There is no campaign literature on either side which has been found necessary to educate the people up to or away from any proposed policy of either party. Both of the presidential candidates and all of the important spellbinders have diversified their oratory with all sorts of things, but the voter will study their remarks as a whole in vain if he expects to find any matter of great public policy on which the two parties are diametrically opposed.

Guaranty Question Vanishes.

At the beginning of the campaign Mr. Bryan made a great deal of the guaranty of bank deposits, but that issue lasted but a little while and has received much less prominence in the campaign than everybody anticipated it would have. It was supposed to be intended for the relief of the poor depositors, but the democratic managers soon found out that the great mass of the people never deposit money in national banks or even state banks doing a general commercial business.

The people who put by money deposit it in savings banks, and one of the most significant developments of the prosperity period in America is the fact that these savings deposits increased from $1,912,365,406 in 1898 to $3,600,553,945 in 1908. This class of people, of course, would be benefited infinitely more by the establishment of postal savings banks than by the fantastic scheme involved in Oklahoma under the tuition of Mr. Bryan for the guaranty of commercial deposits.

The democratic platform declared for a postal savings bank only in case the guaranty of deposits could not be secured. It was soon found, therefore, that the mass of the people were not interested in a thing which did not concern them directly. The democratic managers therefore abandoned bank guarantees as a paramount issue, and it has been referred to less and less as the campaign progressed.

Labor Problem to Front.

One of the big fights in the convention at Chicago, as well as at Denver, was in regard to the declaration for some sort of limitation on the issuance of injunctions. The democrats, also under Mr. Bryan's personal supervision, by telephone wire to Gov. Haskell, adopted a plank declaring for jury trial in contempt cases.

This was an issue on which they might have gone before the people so far as its variance with the republican doctrine was concerned, but unfortunately there are few people in the United States, even among the laboring classes, who have ever been affected in the remotest degree by an injunction from a federal court.

The fantastic idea that a man could defy the order of a court and then secure a jury trial to determine whether he was right in his defiance was too much for the good sense of the people. They were quick to see that under such a system no court could ever execute any decree, as each judgment would be subject to disobedience and a subsequent trial by jury. The thing sounded on analysis like a page out of "Alice in Wonderland," and Mr. Bryan has never pushed it to the front in the campaign.

Trust and Tariff Factors.

There was, however, the trust paragraph, which was tied up with the tariff in the Denver platform. It proposed to take the tariff off of articles made by trusts, and also suggested that no corporation should be permitted to make more than 50 per cent of the total product of any article.

It did not take long for the people to understand that if the tariff were taken off of any article because it was manufactured by a trust the principal sufferer would be the independent manufacturer himself, because he would be less able to meet foreign competition than the big corporations with an extensive plant and the lowest possible cost of production and distribution. The limitation as to output was of course equally unreasonable because no manufacturer could tell whether he was exceeding the 50 per cent limit unless he knew exactly how much every last one of his competitors was making of the same article.

Furthermore, it was evident that it would establish a commercial tyranny on the part of

Kokomo, Ind., Oct. 23.—At Lafayette today, while riding to the speaker's stand, Mr. Taft had this note thrust into his hand by a well dressed man:

"Mr. Taft: Twelve years ago I drove a mortgaged mule to this city to hear Mr. Bryan speak. Today I came in my own automobile to hear you. Can you guess who I am going to vote for? E. V. D."

BRYANITES ON UNFAIR LIST?

BILL OF $1,004 IS IGNORED.

Angry Union Musicians Appeal to Candidate and Threaten.

The entire democratic party, including William Jennings Bryan and "Brother Charley" Bryan, faces being put on the "unfair list" by Chicago musicians' union of Chicago, unless some one settles a bill of $1,004 for music furnished by the Cook County Democracy band under the leadership of Charles Horn, 91 Dearborn street, at Mr. Bryan's home at Lincoln, Neb., and at the national democratic convention at Denver, Colo., last July.

The Chicago Federation of Musicians has taken up the formal claim of Conductor Horn following his inability to collect it, and the board of directors of the organization has decided against the Cook County Democracy, which failed to present a representative before the board to defend itself.

The organization has been notified to pay the bill by 1 o'clock next Tuesday. If the organization fails to do this the case will be taken up for consideration at a meeting of the union set for an hour later on the same day, at which many believe the national, state, and city democratic party will get a larruping by resolution.

Bryan Told of Claim.

In the efforts to bring pressure to bear upon the Cook county democracy, letters were addressed to William Jennings Bryan, Mr. Bryan's brother, Charles, and the members of the democratic national campaign committee, including Norman E. Mack, John E. Lamb, Urey Woodson, John W. Tomlinson, Moses C. Wetmore, M. F. Dunlap, John H. Atwood, and J. G. Johnson, setting forth the statement that the county democracy had used a band at Lincoln and Denver and failed to pay for it. The letters, which were signed officially by the federation of musicians, intimated plainly that pressure upon the Cook county democracy was desired.

The federation of musicians waited in vain for a reply from William Jennings Bryan. Likewise, there was no reply forthcoming from "Brother Charley" Bryan. The members of the national and county committees also ignored the pleas of the union musicians' organization. It became apparent that Mr. Bryan and his immediate followers had no intention of risking votes by advising the Cook county democracy to pay for the band which had played "La Paloma" in front of the Bryan residence and stirred democratic enthusiasm to the fever point at Denver.

Leaders Plead Lack of Power.

In relating the trouble a member of the Federation of Musicians, in authority, said: "In an unofficial way we have learned that the democratic leaders are taking the position that the Cook County Democracy is a private organization and that they were not concerned in its doings. The musicians, considering that this is a campaign, the democratic leaders should take an interest in seeing that campaign expenses are paid.

"A meeting of the board of directors of the federation was called and the leader of the Cook County Democracy was asked to appear. A representative of the Cook County Democracy came and wanted the meeting postponed. Inasmuch as it costs us $25 to call the directors together, the representative was asked whether his organization would stand the expense of another meeting. He asked for half an hour of grace to find out. We waited an hour for him, but he failed to show up. So the board decided against the Cook County Democracy."

Crisis Next Tuesday.

The meeting to be held next Tuesday is of the local union and predictions have been made that unless the bill is paid the democratic party as well as the Cook County Democracy will be placed on the "unfair" list.

The excursion to Lincoln and Denver, about which the present difficulty is centered, was one of the most spectacular in which it has been the lot of the Cook County Democracy to take part. When the organization reached Lincoln the members donned silk hats and white gloves in their march to Fairview.

In front of the Bryan residence Miles J. Devine and others made impassioned speeches, proclaiming that the Cook County Democracy was the "salt of democracy" and was there in token of its fealty to the Bryan doctrines.

SIX REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD VOTE AGAINST BRYAN. THINK THEM OVER.

(THERE WILL BE SIX MORE IN THE TRIBUNE TOMORROW.)

Because Gov. Haskell of Oklahoma, in spite of his denials, who has been proved to have joined an alliance to boycott union labor, who is notorious for his connection with the Standard Oil Company, and who left Ohio to escape the opinion of his neighbors, was Mr. Bryan's mouthpiece at Denver, and his personal selection as treasurer of the national committee.

Because although public opinion forced Haskell's resignation and sent him in hiding to Oklahoma Mr. Bryan is still his friend and defender.

Because if Mr. Bryan could select a scapegrace like Gov. Haskell for two important positions, he is not unlikely to make similar selections for his cabinet and the Supreme court.

Because the so-called bank guaranty plan, which at one time Mr. Bryan proposed to make the issue of the campaign, is generally condemned by business men and decent bankers. It is not a protection but a menace to the depositor.

Because Mr. Bryan on returning from abroad less than two years ago declared clearly for government ownership of railroads and two weeks later, finding himself well-nigh overwhelmed in a wave of unpopularity, turned about face and repudiated the doctrine.

Because the impossibility of carrying out his labor-injunction rainbow of promise will create conditions injurious to the workingman and inimical to business and will prevent any injunction legislation.

JAP ADMIRALS CARRY SPERRY

ACME OF NIPPON FRIENDSHIP

Commander Wins Love by Attending the Funeral of Nodzu.

YOKOHAMA, Oct. 24.—The scene on board the battleship Fikasa last night during the reception to the American naval officers was one of unqualified enthusiasm. Toward the close of the reception, at a collation on the after deck of the battleship, Capt. Okada drank the health of Ambassador O'Brien. Then followed a demonstration that will be long remembered by the Americans. The Japanese admirals and captains raised Ambassador O'Brien on their shoulders and marched around the deck with him, everybody on board wildly cheering. The same performance was repeated with Rear Admiral Sperry and each of the other American admirals present.

Rear Admiral Sperry today endeared himself to the Japanese people by personally attending the funeral of Gen. Count Nodzu at Tokio and placing a wreath on the casket. Later the admiral walked from the palace to the Shimbashi railway station. He was almost mobbed by tens of thousands of persons who sought to shake him by the hand.

Thousands of Children Sing.

When the special train moved out of the station there was a constant din. The route to this city was lined with school children singing and waving flags.

A single incident will illustrate the spirit in which the American sailors accepted the welcome of the Japanese. This evening a triumphal arch at the entrance of the principal street of Yokohama caught fire, the blaze reaching up toward a Japanese flag floating from a flagstaff at the top and threatening to destroy the flag. An American jackie dashed up the framework of the arch, through the blaze, broke off the staff, and carried the flag safely to the ground.

Famous Picture for Fleet.

At the Maple club of Tokio tonight the American Friends' association entertained 250 officers and a number of the most prominent ladies of Tokio. During the evening Baron Kaneko presented to Rear Admiral Emory a picture of the landing of the men of Commodore Perry's fleet at Kurhama.

One of the most striking features of the week's stay of the Americans in Japan has been the perfect order maintained by the sailors while on shore. Not a single case of disorderly conduct has occurred on the streets.

MULDOON GIVEN DIOCESE BY LETTER FROM ROME.

Papal Bull Received Appointing Him to New See—He Will Take Charge in December with Much Ceremony.

"The Rt. Rev. Peter J. Muldoon, bishop of Rockford."

That is what the former vicar general of the Chicago archdiocese, the former pastor of St. Charles Borromeo's Roman Catholic church, became yesterday when Archbishop Quigley handed him a formal Latin document, which he had received in the morning from the apostolic delegate at Washington.

For the document was the papal bull creating its recipient first bishop of the newly organized diocese of Rockford.

Following a long consultation between Archbishop Quigley and his new suffragan bishop only two announcements were made. Bishop Muldoon said that he had selected St. James' church of Rockford as his pro-cathedral, that is to serve as a cathedral until one can be built, and that he would go to Rockford and take formal charge of the see on Dec. 15. Great festivities will be arranged by the people for this formal installation of his diocese.

In the meantime Bishop Muldoon will remain in Chicago, finishing up his work as vicar general of this archdiocese and completing arrangements for the organization of the new diocese. None of the officers of his diocese, vicar general, chancellor, etc., have been selected as yet.

PORCH CLIMBERS TAKE AWAY J. H. WINTERBOTHAM'S GEMS.

Enter Rear Window of Residence at 108 Lincoln Park Boulevard and Get Stickpins and Rings Worth $700.

Burglars, by climbing up a lightning rod at the rear, gained entrance to the home of John H. Winterbotham, 108 Lincoln Park boulevard, last evening while members of the family were at dinner and escaped with jewelry valued at $700. The stolen jewelry consisted of diamond stickpins and rings, the property of Mr. Winterbotham.

The burglars were seen by a maid, Mary Peters, who noticed them in the yard. She did not suspect anything was wrong until she went to the second window and found one of the rear windows open. She then told Mr. Winterbotham, and on entering his bedroom the theft of the jewelry was learned.

Jewelry valued at $250 and $15 in cash was taken from a room on the fourth floor of the Victoria hotel, occupied by Henry Foote, an actor, and his wife, in the morning. The burglar climbed the fire escape over the Van Buren street entrance and entered the room while Foote and his wife were in the grillroom.

BOMB 23 WRECKS A SALOON.

MANY WINDOWS ARE BROKEN

A mysterious explosion, which is listed as "bomb 23," wrecked a saloon in Fourteenth street, midway between Michigan and Indiana avenues, at 2:15 o'clock this morning. The saloon was owned by "Barney" Marcus. The report caused consternation in the whole neighborhood.

Just around the corner in both avenues is St. Luke's hospital, where the shock awakened and frightened the patients. Across the street from the saloon is fire engine house No. 104. The front windows in this building were shattered, and so were windows in other nearby houses.

Evidently a Bomb Explosion.

The first theory of the explosion was that it was twenty-three in the series of gamblers' explosions. Then there was a belief that it might have been a gas explosion; but a little later the firemen's investigations made it practically certain that it was one of the bombs, so many of which have been regarded as a mere gamblers' "joke."

The firemen say that it undoubtedly was a dynamite explosion and that the bomb was placed with a fuse in the front doorway of the saloon, which was in a one story brick structure. The interior of the saloon was wrecked and fire followed. The fire was put out by the engine company across the street.

Firemen Hurled from Beds.

The firemen in the engine house were practically all asleep, but were hurled from their beds by the force of the explosion. Although they were in the street almost immediately they saw no one running from the place.

The nature of the explosion, which wrenched doors from their hinges, convinced them, however, that the bomb had been laid at the front entrance. The saloon is said to have been closed at the time and no one was in it.

Hospital Patients in Panic.

The patients in St. Luke's were thrown into a panic by the explosion, the building was shaken by the shock, and it was only after heroic efforts on the part of the house physicians and nurses that quiet was restored. The effect upon the convalescents and other patients will not be known until later.

When Chief Shippy received the official report of the explosion of bomb No. 22 last Tuesday night in front of a saloon at 135 Center street, formerly owned by Mont Tennes, he called all of the police inspectors into his office and declared "there must be no more bomb throwing."

SUSPECT IN AUTO DYNAMITE CASE IS TAKEN BY POLICE.

Police Think Frank Ware, Arrested in Palmer House Rotunda, Destroyed Machine Owned by George F. Getz.

Frank Ware was arrested in the Palmer house rotunda last night on suspicion of knowing who dynamited George F. Getz' automobile Wednesday night in Hawthorne.

The police say Ware was indicted several years ago for throwing decayed eggs at street evangelists and left the city. He is suspected to have been implicated in an attempt to blow up the residence of John Hill Jr. with dynamite ten years ago. Ware told the police he had been traveling in foreign countries for several years.

BRYAN BANK PLAN BREEDS WILDCATS

GIVES CROOKS A CHANCE.

Conservative Financiers Say That They Would Be Driven Out by Abusers of Public Credit.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Guthrie, Okla., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Everywhere the question is being asked: How is the Oklahoma experiment in guaranteed banking coming on? And it is undeniable there is a widely prevailing impression the scheme is a success.

The fact is the bank guaranty law has not been in operation long enough for any definite results. The state authorities have made every possible effort to make a showing in its favor. Statements have been given out claiming the state banks have profited in a marked degree by a transfer of deposits from national banks; also that there was a noticeable movement in deposits from adjoining states, attracted to the guaranteed banks in Oklahoma; likewise that there was an important movement out of the national banking system into the state system.

National Banks Show Loss.

At the date of the last statement of national banks for which returns are obtainable, July 15, 1908, there were 308 national banks in Oklahoma, with aggregate deposits of $36,820,989.

On the same date there were 499 banks operating under state charters, and their aggregate deposits were $21,276,526.96, showing that the national banks are still far ahead of the state institutions in volume of business. Inquiry of the controller of the currency elicits the fact that from Jan. 1, this year, up to the 10th of this month, fourteen national banks in Oklahoma have surrendered their charters, and during the same time seven new national banks have been organized in the state.

Between the statements of Feb. 15 and July 15 the national banks lost $1,521,863 in deposits, and the state banks gained $3,184,242. These changes are accounted for by several reasons.

Public Funds Manipulated.

First, a manipulation of public funds. The extent to which this has been done cannot be told, as the state authorities are extremely secretive. That they have done all they can cannot be doubted. The following is a copy of a letter sent out by the state treasurer to national [illegible] state's deposits:

State of [illegible]
Gentlemen: will not [illegible]
bank that [illegible]
the depositors' guaranty fund. Yours very truly,

J. A. MENAFEE, State Treasurer.

Second, by conversion of national banks into the state system. For example, the Enid National bank, with deposits of approximately $700,000, changed to the state system, thus decreasing the total of deposits in national banks and increasing those of state banks by that amount.

Third, the withdrawal of actual cash from the national banks by state authorities and its redeposit in state banks would affect the showing of deposits in the two classes of institutions by more than the actual amount of money withdrawn. The possession of actual cash by a bank enables it to make loans, which in turn create deposits. Thus, while the deposits of the national banks in Oklahoma on July 15 were as given above, the cash holdings were $12,344,949, or only about one-third the amount; and any reduction in cash holdings necessitates a correspondingly greater reduction in deposits.

No Loss in Neighboring States.

An extended inquiry among bankers in the states bordering on Oklahoma, notably Kansas and Missouri, shows that while these bankers were apprehensive at the time the law was passed that they would lose business to their Oklahoma rivals, they have recovered from their alarm, having experienced no serious results. William E. Otis, president of the Winfield National bank, at Winfield, Kas., makes the following statement:

"Our town is near the northern border of the state of Oklahoma and many of the politicians of Kansas were much exercised last winter for fear all the deposits of Kansas would immediately be transferred to the banks of Oklahoma. So far as I know, our bank has not lost a dollar in deposits to the Oklahoma banks, and, on the contrary, we have several parties in Oklahoma who are depositing with us.

"I have made considerable inquiry of bankers, as I have met them from time to time, who are located, like ourselves, near the border of Oklahoma, and I have only heard of one deposit that has been taken out of the state on account of the guarantee law, while I have heard of a number of deposits coming from Oklahoma to this bank already referred to.

"I have also taken pains to inquire of parties from Oklahoma as to the effect of the law upon the deposits of banks operating under the provisions of the law and national banks in the same towns which have not seen fit to take any action in the matter. Where conditions are normal and each bank has practically the same standing in the community I find there has been no change in deposits from the unsecured to the secured banks. This is admitted by the officers of both institutions.

"There are other localities where conditions are different. Where the state bank has a better acquaintance, is more aggressive, and offers practically the same security in the way of capital and surplus, the state bank has made some gain. In other localities where the national banks are the stronger and better managed the reverse is the case.

Educational Campaign Needed.

"The president of one of the national banks in an Oklahoma town, near the northern border, told me recently that his bank had gained over $50,000 in deposits since the law went into effect, while the only state bank in the town had gained about $10,000 in deposits.

"My opinion is that the majority of the voters do not understand the question and that if the republican party would inaugurate a campaign of education similar to that of 1896 the people would cease to clamor for such a law. I was located in this place and was an officer of this bank in 1893 when Mr. Bryan was advocating the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, and I remember distinctly that the people were more insistent upon it than they are now upon the guarantee law and that it was almost impossible to keep the Kansas republicans from stampeding with the craze.

"After the campaign of education that was then inaugurated the republican rank and file, as well as the leaders, were thankful they did not commit themselves to that heresy, and I firmly believe that five years hence they will be just as thankful to the men who now oppose the guaranty of deposits and who are trying to educate them as they were for the firmness shown by a few in 1896."

Missouri Banks Gain.

John E. Swanger, secretary of state for Missouri, says: "If any deposits have gone to Oklahoma on account of their guaranty law, which went into effect about Feb. 15, I have heard no complaints from our southwest Missouri banks."

According to figures furnished by Mr. Swanger the deposits in the banks of Jasper, McDonald, and Newton counties, Missouri, Feb. 14, 1908, the day before the Oklahoma guaranty law went into effect, were $3,495,765, and May 14, 1908, they stood at the increased figure of $3,908,508.

Of course this whole discussion as to whether the state banks have gained in deposits and the national banks lost up to this date is wholly superficial and without importance as indicating the real merits of the law. The true tests will be found when its influence upon the banking business is fully developed.

It unquestionably eliminates the value of experience and of established character as factors in attracting deposits. Heretofore, in order to establish a successful banking business, it has been necessary to identify some of the leading and highly regarded men of the community with the institution as officers and directors.

Doors Opened to Wildcats.

Every bank advertises freely its list of directors because the names carry weight and attract business. In Oklahoma these considerations no longer have any weight; any three men who can furnish the minimum capital required, which is $10,000, can start a bank and stand just as fair a chance of getting deposits as the oldest and best known banking institution in the state, officered by men of well known character and responsibility.

In fact, the conservative banker is hopelessly handicapped in competition for deposits, because with his views of the manner in which deposits should be invested he cannot bring himself to offer inducements equal to those of his more venturesome competitors. It would seem that in the long run he must lose his deposits to his more aggressive rivals and yet remain responsible for them in their hands.

The friends of the law base all their calculations upon the assumption that the banking business will be carried on in the future practically as in the past—by the same bankers with the same conservatism and with no greater losses. The opponents of the law predict a rapid multiplication of banks, with competition intensified and a lowering of the standards of banking practice, a general demoralization of the business, and heavier losses—and the symptoms already developed point to a verification of these predictions.

Backed by Minimum Capital.

More than fifty new banks have been organized under the state law since Jan. 1 in addition to those which have changed over from the national system. Most of these new banks have only the minimum capital required by law, and in nearly all cases the banks changing from the national system have reduced their capital in taking out state charters, evidently upon the theory that the public is no longer interested in a bank's capital, but relies upon the guaranty fund. I have found only one bank which has changed from the national to the state system which has not reduced its capital.

Any business man or banker knows that the capital and surplus of a bank is the real guaranty fund behind deposits and to which depositors must look for their security. This tendency to reduce capital and rely on the guaranty fund to satisfy depositors is what might be expected and is clear proof—beyond all contravention—that the operation of the law is to relax and reduce the real and substantial safeguards to the business.

Law Compels Issuance of Charters.

This tendency to multiply the banks has gone so far that the state bank commissioner has undertaken in some instances to hold it in check by refusing charters. The organizers of a new institution at Prague, Okla., having been refused a charter, brought mandamus proceedings against the commissioner, to which he responded in court by stating that Prague was a town of less than 1,000 inhabitants and already had three banking institutions, which amply supplied its necessities; that the organizers of the new bank were people without previous banking experience, and that he had exercised a proper discretion in refusing the charter.

The district court, however, sustained the plaintiffs, holding that the commissioner had exceeded his authority, thus breaking down the only barrier possible to the unrestricted multiplication of banks.

Bankrupt Starts Three Banks.

Startling instances are being related where men who are without either the moral or business qualifications commonly and rightly considered to be necessary for the management of banking institutions are securing bank charters, and on the strength of the guaranty act are making successful headway in acquiring deposits. J. W. McNeal, president of the National Bank of Commerce at Guthrie, has openly and publicly made the following statement concerning certain cases of this character:

"We have one instance of where a man failed in Kansas under his own name, then started up in business under his wife's name and failed, beating his creditors out of $70,000, not paying them a cent. Under the old territorial law he attempted, under the guise of relatives, to start a bank, but in two years his business was so trifling that it forced him out of the business.

"He now has already started three banks in Oklahoma and boasts he will start twelve more. Within sixty days of starting one of his banks, his statement shows, he had a deposit account of over $100,000. His cashier is under indictment for embezzlement. I hope and trust that he will be able to explain the matter.

"I only mention these facts to show that it is immaterial what character of men are at the head of banks—they get the business by claiming that the state is guaranteeing them, and it makes no difference whatever as to the character or personality of the officers.

Claim State as Partner.

"Two men recently started a bank of $25,000 capital in Oklahoma City, a town of 40,000 or 50,000 inhabitants. When asked how they expected to succeed with a bank of $25,000 capital in a city of that size, one of them replied: 'What do we care about capital? The state is in partnership with us.'

"The Farmers' bank of Glenco, Okla., has the following astounding claim printed on the lower left hand corner of its checks: 'Don't forget that all depositors in this bank are guaranteed against loss by the state of Oklahoma.' This claim is by no means an exception; it is systematically worked by the banks operating under the guaranty law to obtain deposits.

"The president of the First National bank of Perry was a merchant and failed in business and was compelled to go through bankruptcy. Naturally he had to resign his connection with the First National bank. He has now taken out a charter and is president of a state bank in Oklahoma. Another man—when prohibition closed up his saloon—started up a bank and has $50,000 to $40,000 on deposit.

"There can be but one deduction from this enormous rush for starting new state banks. They are being started, to a great extent, by irresponsible, inexperienced men and instead of indicating solid growth for the state of Oklahoma they indicate an era of irresponsible and wildcat work.

Possible to Loot Banks.

"I have heard it discussed—and think it might be worked out in actual practice here—that a dishonest man or set of men might organize a $10,000 bank, then create a lot of fictitious deposits as the proceeds of dummy notes and then let the bank close its doors and call on the guaranty fund to pay these deposits. Naturally if such a scheme were worked out the deposits would be credited to men in no way identified with the note itself.

"We had one bank failure in my town for something like $1,000,000. This would have taken more than 5 per cent assessment on the deposits of the state banks of Oklahoma. Suppose a bank had $100,000 deposit on a capital stock of $10,000—50 per cent, or one-half of its capital stock, would be confiscated to make up the one loss. It is more dangerous to the honest small banker than to the large one, because the large one can prepare himself to weather the storm.

Rascals Make More by Failing.

"Under the guise of this law an attempt is being made to put all banks on an exact equality. The man who has spent a lifetime in building up an honorable reputation is sacrificed for the sake of making some incompetent, dishonest banker exactly equal to him. It is a mistake to suppose that sacrificing the assets of the solvent bank is going to prevent the rascal from failing. There is more money in it for the rascally banker to fail under this law than to continue in business."

These are certainly strong and startling statements, but as Mr. McNeal has not hesitated to make them before a gathering of several hundred people the presumption is he has the facts with which to back them up.

One of Mr. Bryan's favorite arguments for the guaranty law is that inasmuch as the national, state, and municipal governments are in the habit of requiring depository banks to furnish security for those public deposits the private depositor is warranted in also demanding security.

Extra Security on State Deposits.

It is interesting, in view of his argument, to find that the state of Oklahoma—and likewise the county and municipal authorities through the state—are still requiring depository banks in the state to furnish special security for all deposits. In other words, they are not yet willing to trust the guaranty law in subsitution for special security.

Another curious and ludicrous feature of the situation is the fact that the guaranty fund itself, it is repeatedly asserted here, is kept on deposit in the state banks. Of course each bank in the system will have a fair right to claim that its share of the guaranty fund be deposited with itself, and when this is done the law in its operation will have exactly described a circle and the depositor will have exactly the security he had before the fund was created.

LETTERS WRITTEN IN 1889 CONFRONT CANDIDATE BRYAN.

Republican Committee Digs Up Correspondence Touching Nebraska State Campaign of Nineteen Years Ago.

Two letters of William Jennings Bryan have been published in neat pamphlet form by the republican national committee and are being sent in wholesale quantities to districts in which the republicans believe they will be read with interest.

Both are old and probably long forgotten by the writer himself, but the republicans believe that at least one of them is of interest as long as Mr. Bryan continues to be a candidate for office. It states his opinion regarding prohibition and reveals him as an opportunist—if not a compromiser.

Both were written in 1889. The facsimile of one is given and a copy of the other is published. In one Mr. Bryan says "it is the money, not the honor," which he wanted in a certain office. In the other he declares himself against prohibition as follows:

"Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 11, 1889.—Dear Sir and Friend: Your favor just received. I expect to attend the convention at Omaha and am glad that you are going. I will try and leave at once, so that we can get together and talk over the platform before the convention. I have no doubt we will agree on tariff opinions, but I have been in much trouble over the temperance plank. I, like you and the great bulk of the party, am opposed to prohibition, but thought that as the republicans took no stand on prohibition we had better content ourselves with a declaration against sumptuary legislation, such as we usually have.

"We have a number of men who will vote for the amendment, among them Sawyer, Snell, Lewis, Miller, Whitmore, etc. They do not ask us to declare in favor of prohibition, but simply to do as the republicans have done—leave it to each individual to vote as he likes. By declaring against prohibition we will lose a good many votes, while we will not gain republican votes. We tried that last fall in our county, declared in so many words against prohibition, and the saloons went solid against us.

"I wish I could see you before the convention. Can't you come up here Tuesday morning and go from here to Omaha, and we can discuss all of the planks? Will draw up the plank you suggest. Yours truly,

"W. J. BRYAN."

The letter which is reproduced in facsimile was written to J. Sterling Morton of Nebraska City, Neb., and has reference to a small office which Mr. Bryan wished to secure, a position as secretary to one of the state boards which paid an annual salary of $2,000 a year.

National Chairman Frank H. Hitchcock will come to Chicago today and will remain at western headquarters until Tuesday.

GOMPERS ASSAILED BY MINER.

Vice President Clarke Calls on Unionists to Reject Political Deeds of Bryan's Ally.

James S. Clarke, vice president of district 5, Pittsburg, United Mineworkers of America, has laid himself open again to the democratic charge that he has been "promised something," a charge which is made against all labor leaders who do not follow Mr. Gompers.

In the forthcoming issue of the Labor World, published at Pittsburg, Mr. Clarke denies Mr. Gompers has any right to attempt to "tie up" the vote of labor unions and furthermore says that in doing so he is followed by only two of the labor officials—Morrison and Lennon, both democrats.

"The fact," says Mr. Clarke, "that the hundreds of thousands who make up the trade union movement are not agreed on any political policy or party is sufficient proof that Mr. Gompers is exceeding his authority in making a political tour throughout the country in the name of organized labor in favor of the democrats. This course should be denounced by every trade unionist.

"The truth is that there is more reason why Gompers should tour the country in favor of the socialists than in favor of the democrats, who are treating our fellow miners like dogs in the south.

"Gompers is pursuing a course which lays him open to suspicion, and lots of people now think his policy has become a personal one.

"Let every wage worker, and particularly coal miners, please themselves as to whom they will vote for. We want deeds, and I want to say that there are many important questions to be considered besides the injunction. That is only one. We all as wage workers must look primarily to that policy which best upholds our industrial welfare."

LAWS WON'T MAKE SOBRIETY, BELIEF OF MGR. FALCONIO.

Apostolic Delegate to United States Says Men Must Be Given Christian Education to Promote Temperance.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—That by Christian moral education and not by prohibitory legislation the intemperance evil will be most successfully combated and finally eradicated is the belief of the Most Rev. Diomede Falconio, apostolic delegate to the United States. Mgr. Falconio has been the guest of Archbishop John J. Glennon since laying the corner stone of the new cathedral last Sunday.

"Morality and Christian character will bring to the mind of the individual who possesses a good Christian education that the great crime is abuse of liquor," said the prelate, "and in consequence he will not be found guilty of the present common offense of drunkenness.

"The prohibition movement which is sweeping the country today has been brought about not by the prevalent use of liquor, but, indeed, by its abuse. And those who have endeavored to control the situation have found their efforts largely futile.

"Here in America we will not obtain the desired results by enacting prohibitory laws. In such cases the ones against whom the law is especially desired will find means of secretly evading it. No matter what laws you make, people without a moral education will find a way of violating them.

"A moral education—a good Christian moral education—by such only is the great intemperance evil to be combated and ultimately eradicated. People thus educated will readily realize what is right and what a great crime intemperance is.

CANNON'S RECORD SPEAKS FOR HIM.

Congressman Madden Summarizes Public Career of Danville Statesman.

CRITICISMS ARE UNJUST.

Not Personally Responsible for Sins Charged Up to the Nation's Lawmakers.

BY CONGRESSMAN M. B. MADDEN.

I know of no man in the United States who is so well qualified for the public position he occupies as Joseph G. Cannon.

As speaker of the house of representatives he has used for the advancement of the best interest of the people as well as for the government all the power for good accorded the speaker.

Mr. Cannon has always been on good terms with President Roosevelt and has worked in harmony with him on all things that relate to the public good. Indeed, a harmony of action exists between these two men rarely ever known between the speaker and the president.

The legislation enacted regulating railroad rates, providing for compensation for maimed employés of corporations doing an interstate business, known as the employers' liability act; the government employés relief act, the child labor act, the meat inspection bill, and numerous other measures equally meritorious if not quite so sweeping in their importance have had the hearty coöperation of Speaker Cannon.

Has Good Record as Speaker.

As speaker of the house he has prevented extravagant waste of the nation's revenues. He has a more comprehensive knowledge of the nation's needs than any other man I know. He has devoted more time to the public service than any man within the state, and his attitude towards public questions has been patriotic in the highest sepse.

He never has exercised arbitrary power as speaker of the house but he has exercised an influence for good in the consideration of legislation. He has ability to analyze and criticise proposed legislation beyond that of any man in the public service. His long service in the house has made him a veritable encyclopedia on national questions. He is in every essential particular a thoroughly representative man—his advice and counsel has done much to improve the public service. His three elections to the speakership indicate the sentiment that prevails among his colleagues. No man could be elected to this place who was not qualified to perform its arduous duties, but whether qualified or not no man could be elected who had not the unquestioned confidence of the men associated with him in congress. No man could have the unquestioned confidence of his associates were he not worthy of it.

Enemies Should Be Rebuked.

Mr. Cannon after thirty-four years of congressional life stands before the American people with a record unsullied. He is preeminently the man for the place which he now occupies. The people of the district in which he lives will, I am sure, manifest by their vote their unquestioned confidence in him and send him back by such an overwhelming majority as to give notice to his enemies that they appreciate the work he has done as a public servant.

As chairman of the appropriations committee for many years Mr. Cannon stood before the people of the nation as the watchdog of the treasury. He was recognized as among the ablest men who have ever occupied this position. His constant effort to induce economy in the appropriation of the public funds has called forth the praises of the American people, regardless of party affiliations.

Stands High as Legislator.

Mr. Cannon's life has been an open book. He can afford to have it read by the people of the nation. As a legislator he has no superior and few equals. He has stood for good government, clean legislation, high moral conditions, and conservative business methods. He is no reactionary nor is he a czar.

He stands with his party for a revision of the tariff. He believes in a maximum and minimum schedule. This, it is believed by many, will be more advantageous than the present plan, in that it will give the country an opportunity to negotiate for an extension of American trade in other countries.

Criticism Is Unjustly Made.

Mr. Cannon is charged with all the sins of omission and commission chargeable to congress. He is no more responsible than any other member of congress, except to the extent that as speaker he has more prominent participation in the work than the ordinary member, but he has no controlling voice in what shall or shall not be done. His position as speaker gives him the right to direct the policy only to the extent that it may be determined by a majority of his colleagues. The majority in congress always has the power to rule. The majority in congress always does rule.

Mr. Cannon is being abused by people who wished special legislation. Special legislation is not always wise, and, unfortunately, the advocates of such legislation are always overenthusiastic and sometimes misguided by their enthusiasm.

Mr. Cannon will undoubtedly be reelected and will then be returned by his colleagues to the position that he now holds as speaker of the house, and as speaker he will lend his invaluable aid to Mr. Taft as president in carrying forward every measure proposed for the public good.

STEVENSON TO STUMP THE CITY.

Committee Announces His Coming Next Monday—Await Report on His Physical Condition.

The democratic state committee announces with considerable of a display of headline that Monday, like Mr. Winkle in the street fight, it will be ready to begin. Adlai E. Stevenson is to get here then to finish his campaign.

The reason why the "preparations" have not been completed is that the managers in Chicago are waiting to find out how much active campaigning work Mr. Stevenson's physical condition will stand. The candidate is 73 years of age, and not vigorous.

The democrats have explained the heavy vote cast for Yates as against Deneen at the recent primaries in the democratic Ninth, Tenth, and Eleventh wards, with the statement that the Jewish voters are angry at Deneen because he has not appointed any Jews to office. Whether they have forgotten that Rabbi Hirsch is on the state board of charities they did not state.

NEGRO HANGED AT SPRINGFIELD

Joe James, Whose Crime Was Part Cause of Recent Race Riots, Is Executed.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 23.—Joe James, an 18 year old negro murderer, was hanged in the Sangamon county jail today.

James murdered C. A. Ballard on the night of July 3 last. This crime was largely responsible for the precipitation of the recent fatal race riots here. James came to Springfield from Birmingham, Ala., in June. On the night of July 3 he became intoxicated and wandered into the home of Mr. Ballard, entering the bedroom of Mr. Ballard's daughter. Her father drove the negro from the house and in the fight which ensued James stabbed Ballard to death.

Thirty-two additional indictments against alleged participants in the riots were returned by the grand jury today. They all charged malicious mischief. The defendants include Abraham Raymer and Ernest Humphrey, both already acquitted of murder charges growing out of the lynchings in the riots.

A bank for commerce—commercial, foreign, trust, savings, bond, and farm mortgage departments. Safe deposit vaults. The Merchants Loan and Trust Company is equipped to transact any banking business for its customers. 135 Adams-st.

HIS MORTGAGED MULE VS. HIS OWN AUTOMOBILE.

Kokomo, Ind., Oct. 23.—At Lafayette today, while riding to the speaker's stand, Mr. Taft had this note thrust into his hand by a well dressed man:

"Mr. Taft: Twelve years ago I drove a mortgaged mule to this city to hear Mr. Bryan speak. Today I came in my own automobile to hear you. Can you guess who I am going to vote for? E. V. D."

the government, which would be able to dictate the hours of work of every establishment in the United States, thus creating a political machine of the most stupendous proportions. This tariff and trust combination, like the other attempted issues, has not lasted out the campaign, and it receives only incidental reference from time to time.

Question of Publicity.

Then there was the question of the publication of campaign contributions. Both parties have agreed to this and it is notorious that the campaign of 1908 has been conducted with an expenditure of far less than 25 per cent of the cost of any campaign in the last twenty years.

Absolutely the only issue between the two parties has been the question as to whether the lists should be published before or after the election. The people have manifested but little interest in this and it is not a matter of general discussion on the stump.

It is seen, therefore, that none of the so-called issues in the campaign of 1908 has been of any value to either party in the matter of getting votes. The only salient issue in this whole campaign has been the record of the two men who are running for president. Taft's decisions while on the bench fourteen years ago and Bryan's free silver record twelve years ago seem to be the things upon which the campaign hinges almost entirely.

A partially successful attempt has been made to alienate the labor vote on the ground of Mr. Taft's record on the bench. That is really the only dangerous feature of the whole campaign. It is the one thing in which miscellaneous audiences are interested and which the laboring men themselves discuss in political conversations on the street corners.

Taft Explains Decision.

Mr. Taft has sufficiently explained that he interpreted the law as he found it, and it has been shown that his labor decisions in the Ann Arbor railroad case particularly have become the foundation of the rights of organized labor in the country. Nevertheless, this one position of his while he was in the judicial branch of the government has been used as practically the only argument why he could not be trusted in an executive capacity.

If there are any states doubtful today they are so because of this personal record of the republican candidate and not because of any real issues between the two parties.

On the other hand, the one thing which Mr. Bryan has had to cope with has been his personal record since he became noted in national politics twelve years ago. It has been shown repeatedly on the stump that even during the Parker campaign four years ago Mr. Bryan solemnly declared he had recanted none of his financial theories, and that free silver was merely held in abeyance until it should again become a living issue.

Under these circumstances people have become impressed with the idea that if Mr. Bryan should become president and there should be a repetition of the dark days of 1893, he would turn to free silver once more and do what he could to destroy the single gold standard. One finds this sentiment everywhere, coupled with the belief that the democratic candidate, although gifted with extraordinary oratorical talent, is wholly deficient in that kind of mental furniture which enables a man to grasp great governmental policies and solve them on the broad basis of real statesmanship.

Taft's Record Sufficient.

Mr. Taft is elected today on his record as an executive in the Philippines, in Panama, in Cuba, and in Washington. Mr. Bryan is defeated today because of his record as a purveyor of fantastic economic ideas, none of which stands the test of analysis or of actual practice.

With the exception of the financial flurry last year the country has been magnificently prosperous during the term of three republican administrations. The people are afraid of a change in the government, not so much because a change from republican to democrat in the White house would be dangerous as because they feel that the election of a man of Bryan's class, with his manifest incapacity for practical government, would surely bring about a financial crisis.

In the last analysis, therefore, Bryan has defeated himself. In 1896 he might fairly claim he was beaten because the people did not understand the beauty of free silver, but this year, with no real issues between the two parties, and with nothing at stake but the personality of the candidates as regards their training for the office of president, Mr. Bryan will have no possible excuse to come before another democratic convention as a candidate for the presidential nomination.

ENDEAVOR UNION IN POLITICS.

Urges Christians to Cast Their Votes for William Street, Prohibition Candidate for State's Attorney.

The Christian Endeavor union has issued an appeal to preachers and church members to vote and actively work for William Street for state's attorney. It will follow this up with a similar appeal for such candidates for the legislature as the officers of the union consider right on the local option law.

The union claims to represent 400 Christian Endeavor societies in Cook county, with a total membership of 15,000, and its bulletin to its subordinate organizations, among other things, says:

"The organized forces of lawlessness and disorder are supporting the democratic and republican candidates, assured that if either is elected their interests will be protected satisfactorily.

"The law and order forces have united their efforts and are assured that their candidate, William Street, will be elected and criminals will be prosecutd."

Accompanying the bulletin was sent out instructions as to how the members of the subordinate societies "can help to elect William Street state's attorney." They read:

"1. Pray earnestly for it.

"2. Devote your regular prayer meetings between now and election to some consideration of the matter.

"3. Get all the men in your church to sign the 'Street' enrollment cards,' which, with other literature, you can secure from the Citizenship superintendent of your division or at the Street campaign headquarters, 1006 Association building, 153 La Salle street.

"4. Arrange a Street massmeeting in your neighborhood and advertise it well.

"5. Offer your services to your division superintendent for the house to house canvassing work.

"6. Vote for William Street at 6 o'clock on election morning and remain all day near your polling place, urging the voters to cast their ballots for William Street for state's attorney."

BRANDENBURG IS OUT ON BOND.

Alleged Author of Cleveland Letter Released at Dayton After Giving Bail of $500.

Dayton, O., Oct. 23.—Broughton Brandenburg, arrested yesterday in connection with the Cleveland political letter in police court today was held on the charge of being a fugitive from justice. He gave bond of $500, and was released.

ILLINOIS LABOR INDORSES DENEEN

Wright Is Re-elected President of the State Federation at Peoria.

POLITICS IS CAST OUT.

All Officeholders Will Be Denied Seat in Conventions of the Future.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Edwin R. Wright today was reelected president of the Illinois State Federation of Labor at the closing session of the convention. The election of Wright was an indirect indorsement by the convention of Gov. Charles S. Deneen, whose candidacy Wright openly espouses.

Wright was elected by 170 votes, which was more than three to one for F. G. Hopp of Chicago, and F. J. Marx of Peru, who ran against him.

In his annual report President Wright gave unstinted praise to Gov. Deneen and the state administration for the labor legislation adopted during the last four years.

There was some lively arguments at the two closing sessions of the meeting. A constitutional amendment was adopted excluding from future conventions of the federation all present political officeholders, whether elected or appointed. The action was regarded as "revolutionary," and it probably is one of the most radical actions ever taken by the state labor organization.

The present convention was "loaded" with officeholders and politicians, including state factory inspectors, game wardens, and democratic and republican party workers.

After President Wright, who recently was appointed a member of the state industrial commission by Gov. Deneen, announced the adoption of the amendment, Deputy Factory Inspector Barney Cohen arose and announced that all of the officeholders who are delegates here now will have to form a protective association.

Cohen Calls Move Unfair.

"You ask the governor to appoint trade unionists on the various commissions and then you want to debar from your councils the union men who receive such appointments," said Cohen. "Through the work of labor men holding office at present we have succeeded in obtaining for Illinois the best child labor law in the country. The republican governor of Illinois has appointed three of your members on a commission to draft a bill for the protection of workmen from accidents and I say such action as this is unfair. In England the trade unionists elect men to parliament, but they do not debar the members of parliament from seats in the union conventions."

"It is true labor men are elected to parliament in England, but the difference over there is that the labor members of parliament are paid by the unions and the labor party," said John H. Walker, president of the United Mine Workers.

During the debate on the question, which was as heated as any during the convention, President Wright said he will resign from the industrial commission if his membership there would come into conflict with the new constitutional provision. It is understood, however, that the new rule will not apply to members holding honorary appointments without salary.

The new departure was taken as a result of an attempt of the political office holding delegates to defeat the resolution, adopted today, condemning Speaker Shurtleff, and the "exercise of arbitrary power" by Speaker Cannon of the national house of representatives. This so incensed the radical element in control of the convention that plans were made immediately to prevent a repetition of the occurrence at future conventions.

Adopt Anti-Cannon Resolution.

The anti-Cannon resolution, which was held up by the committee on resolutions, was adopted late today with considerable opposition, though only one delegate, W. W. Clark of Chicago, requested that he be recorded as voting against its adoption. The resolutions denounced Speaker Cannon as a "menace to our democratic form of government."

W. D. Ryan, national secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, spoke vigorously against the resolution.

"I believe this resolution will do this federation more harm than good," said he. "Cannon will be elected in spite of this action. It appears that the workers are far from consistent in their attempt to elect their friends and defeat their enemies."

Additional evidence of the confidence in which President Wright is held was given by the adoption of a constitutional provision making Wright general organizer of the federation at a salary of $150 a month.

The per capita tax was reduced from 1½ cents to 1 cent a member. This was done as a result of the announcement made by President Walker of the mine workers that the United Mine Workers of Illinois would affiliate with the federation, carrying with it a membership of 75,000, contingent on a reduction of the per capita tax.

Want a Penal Colony.

The convention adopted a resolution favoring the building of a new penal institution on a tract of land in the central portion of the state. The plan included the transferring of prisoners from Joliet and Chester to the proposed new institution and employing them there in the building of the structures necessary and the cultivating of land, making the penal colony self-supporting. It was urged that the products be kept from coming in competition with free labor.

An additional clause demanded that all products of penal institutions be marked "prison made."

In addition to President Wright, the following officers were elected:

Vice presidents—Peter Fitzgerald, Alton; J. W. Morton, Chicago; E. A. Whitney, Kewanee.

Secretary-treasurer—James F. Morris, Springfield.

Executive board—W. S. Love, East St. Louis; T. J. Shea, Bloomington; J. E. McClanahan, Springfield; J. H. Hammond, Rockford; S. E. Martin, Joliet; J. C. Colgan, Chicago.

The principal contest was over the election of a delegate to the American Federation of Labor convention. The office went to William Loos of Chicago, who received 113 votes on the fourth ballot, against 59 votes for Frank Hayes of Collinsville, the socialist candidate.

The convention went on record as favoring the election of United States senators by a direct vote of the people and adopted a resolution demanding an eight hour law for workmen employed underground.

KERN'S SON STILL IN DANGER.

Physicians Say, However, That the Vice Presidential Candidate's Child May Recover.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 23.—John W. Kern Jr., son of the democratic vice presidential candidate, is still in a critical condition. It was said, however, that there is a slight chance for his recovery.

ALLEGED COCAINE DEN RAIDED.

Four Men and Two Women Captured by Police in Building at 215 Morgan Street.

Four men and two women were arrested last night in an alleged opium and cocaine resort at 215 Morgan street. The raid followed information obtained by Inspector McCann that "opium dens were flourishing again in his district."

The inmates were captured after a struggle, three of them attempting to escape by leaping out of a rear window.

"The raid was timely, for I understand that an attempt has been made by disorderly persons to again start up in the illegal traffic of cocaine and opium selling," said Inspector McCann. "I will force these people out of the district. They cannot do business in Chicago."

BRYAN LAUGHS AT ROOSEVELT

Democratic Candidate Facetiously Answers President.

GOMPERS PREPARES REPLY.

Wires Bryan That He Fights For Justice Not Office.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—W. J. Bryan was facetious and sarcastic today, devoting his trip through New Jersey to answering President Roosevelt's letter to Knox.

The candidate felt fine after a long sleep and imparted his good spirits to sixteen audiences, most of them made up of farmers and laboring men. He traveled in a magnificent special train in charge of State Chairman J. R. Nugent.

Mr. Bryan accused the president of butting into the campaign again and deposing Mr. Gompers, and said that he expected before long that he himself would be deposed and Mr. Nicholas Longworth placed at the head of the democracy.

He never lost an opportunity to define the difference between the platforms of the republican and democratic parties with respect to labor and explained with minute detail the pledges which the democratic party made at Denver to secure the remedial legislation for which, he said, labor was crying, but to which the republicans had turned a deaf ear.

Reaches White House at Last.

Incidentally at West Philadelphia, on his way into New Jersey, the candidate referred to the fact that his voice had held out so well because he had no ragged arguments to pass through his throat, while at the town of Whitehouse, seizing upon the name for a preliminary to his speech, he said:

"I am here at last. It has been rather a long journey, but happily ended."

His platform having outlined the remedial legislation which democracy demanded should be enacted, he said it would be carried out in letter and in spirit and that was about all he could say in an inaugural address.

At Trenton he told the people that he had a united democracy behind him and a frightened republican party in front of him.

Crowds Break His Records.

Immense throngs greeted him at Trenton, Phillipsburg, Somerville, Elizabethport, Perth Amboy, New Brunswick, and here. On no day during the campaign were his remarks so interrupted with expressions from people in his audiences indicating their friendliness toward him than on this.

The climax of the eventful day came when he visited Newark tonight. The whole city was aglow with red fire as he passed through the streets to the auditorium where he spoke. The hall was packed to its capacity while on the outside were countless numbers who, unable to gain admittance, made it necessary for him to deliver an overflow address.

The air was rent with cheers as he unfolded the democratic policies and hurled an avalanche of criticism upon the republican party for its failure, as he said, to listen to the demands of the people.

Gompers Wants No Office.

New York, Oct. 23.—National Chairman Mack made public today the following telegram from Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and received by Mr. Bryan upon his arrival in Jersey City tonight:

"Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—William J. Bryan, Jersey City, N. J.: Just saw President Roosevelt's attack. I deem it my duty to advise you that I am preparing answer. Some newspapers are trying to embarrass you by declaring that you will appoint me a member of your cabinet if you are elected president. You may say that I have publicly, emphatically, and frequently declared that under no circumstances would I accept any public office, either elective or appointive, and this declaration is irrevocable. The contest of labor is for justice and not for office.

SAMUEL GOMPERS."

LA FOLLETTE FIGHTS FOR TAFT.

Wisconsin Senator Stumps State for National Ticket, but Neglects Local Nominees.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Some striking phases attend the speeches which Senator R. M. La Follette is making about the state. Senator La Follette reached here tonight on his stumping tour.

The unique phase of his campaign is that he is not campaigning for any republican except the national ticket. He is not speaking under the state committee, and has hardly mentioned Gov. Davidson in his addresses.

Senator La Follette, though speaking under his own auspices, is making one of his characteristic thorough campaigns, and is lauding Taft to the skies in every address.

What is the "Protector Coat"?
Who Created It?

"Imitators are plentiful, creators are few," said an old-philosopher. The same is true in clothes-producing.

Last year we created a "protector collar" coat—a coat that buttons close around the neck and draped from the shoulders to full length, with plaits on the side for easy walking. (Note illustration.)

Today this coat is imitated in the thousands. Yet there is that same distinctive difference between the original and the imitation as that which marks the difference between "Mossler-Clothes" and the others.

We sell the "original creation" protector coat as low as $25, but we do not recommend that kind. This class of coat requires better materials to withstand the severe weather. We can give you the high grade warranted quality, with our name back of it, for $35.

Others as high as $60.

DENEEN PREPARES SHARP REBUTTAL.

Governor Announces He Will Close His Case by Complete Reply to Attacks.

POINTS TO HIS RECORD.

Executive Tells North Siders of Appropriations for Defective Children.

Gov. Deneen's enemies will hear the rest of what he has to say about them within a few days. At four large meetings on the north side last evening he said he would complete his criticism of them and their motives either tomorrow or Monday.

He said that he wished to put his thoughts into writing so that he might be sure that nothing was omitted and so that his statements may be published where they will be read by all of the voters in the state.

"I think it will take me only fifteen minutes to close up my case against them to your satisfaction," he said, "and at the first opportunity—when I have a few moments to spare—I shall complete my reply to their infamous attacks."

The four meetings were held in the North side Turner, the Phoenix, the La Salle Turner, and Speiz' halls, and the county committee had arranged a succession of speakers which passed from one to the other.

The governor opened his speeches by pointing out that no criticism of the public institutions had been made during the first three years of his administration, although they were investigated by committees appointed by the legislature.

Points to Big Appropriation.

The appropriation made on his recommendation by the forty-fifth general assembly for the care of defective children, he said, was $1,200,000 greater than ever was made by a previous legislature. A total of $7,000,000 was appropriated for their care and comfort.

"These appropriations," he said, "were made on the recommendation of the board of public charities and myself. No investigation was thought of regarding these institutions until it became manifest last January that the general assembly could not adjourn until it had passed a primary election law which would be satisfactory to the people. The moment this became apparent a plan was agreed upon to investigate the institutions, with the expectation of smirching them in order to injure my candidacy for renomination and reelection.

Employes Under Civil Service.

"A prolonged effort was made to make the investigation sensational, but when the work had been completed the committee cited but six cases of accident, three of which the committee deemed unpreventable and three preventable. In two of the latter instances the accidents were due to the temporary absence from duty, in violation of the rules, of employés of the asylum for feeble minded children. No accident was due to willful cruelty.

"In the two accidents which occurred in this institution, the persons responsible therefor were under civil service. I did not appoint either one of them, and have no power to discharge them. Such employés cannot be discharged except for cause, and no cause had appeared, nor did any exist, until the accidents in question occurred. The employés were then promptly discharged.

"Neither of the employés referred to could have been discharged without the opportunity for a public trial and with the privilege of having the testimony preserved as a public record, and no one has yet suggested any charge which could have been preferred against either of these employés before these accidents occurred.

Says Attacks Are Baseless.

"To hold me responsible for the conduct of employés whom I could not appoint and to require me to foresee and anticipate lapses of conduct of employés and discharge them therefor would bring me in direct conflict with the civil service law. That law provides that persons may be removed for things done, not for those which may be done. The mere statement of these charges answers and refutes them and shows their absurdity and the desperation of the men who are compelled to use such matters to bolster up their attacks upon me.

"The other case occurred at the state reformatory and was due to negligence in caring for an inmate who had injured himself in endeavoring to commit suicide. The officer who was responsible for the discipline of the institution was appointed during the term of Gov. Fifer. He was appointed solely on merit. He was a democrat. He served under the administrations of Gov. Fifer, Gov. Altgeld, Gov. Tanner, Gov. Yates, and myself. He was discharged after a hearing before the board. He was retained by my administration, not for political reasons, but because of long and successful service in connection with the state reformatory."

Cheer Wayman's Attack on Kern.

At this same series of meetings John E. W. Wayman was applauded for the summary manner in which he dealt with his democratic opponent for the state's attorneyship, Jacob Kern.

"I shall be satisfied if you ask any or all of the state's attorneys or the assistant state's attorneys during the last eight years about my ability or my professional conduct. Not at any time during this campaign has one of the newspapers opposing me pointed the finger of criticism at my personal record.

"My opponent has taken umbrage that I have exposed his record. I say to him that when a man becomes a candidate for a public office he opens his record. When I became a candidate for office I opened my record. Any man can take it out in the back yard and shoot at it all day. If he hits it, I won't kick; but I feel safe—I know I am safe.

"As for his record, I have in my pocket editorials that were printed in the best newspapers in the city about the time Mr. Kern was closing his term of office that cover it adequately. It took Charles S. Deneen four years to fumigate the office after he left.

Wayman Asks a Question.

"What he tells you is the number of people he sent to the penitentiary and how much it cost the state. We don't want to know how many people he sent to the penitentiary and the price thereof. We want to know how many people he failed to send to the penitentiary and the price thereto.

"When I am state's attorney I want you to come and see me and I will do what I can for you if it is right. If it is not right I shall tell you so flatly."

Congressman Henry S. Boutell and Coroner Peter M. Hoffman, both candidates for reelection, were the other principal speakers at the meetings.

FINED FOR FLEECING HOTELS.

Young Southerner's Punishment Said to Remove Dangerous "Check Kiter" from the Field.

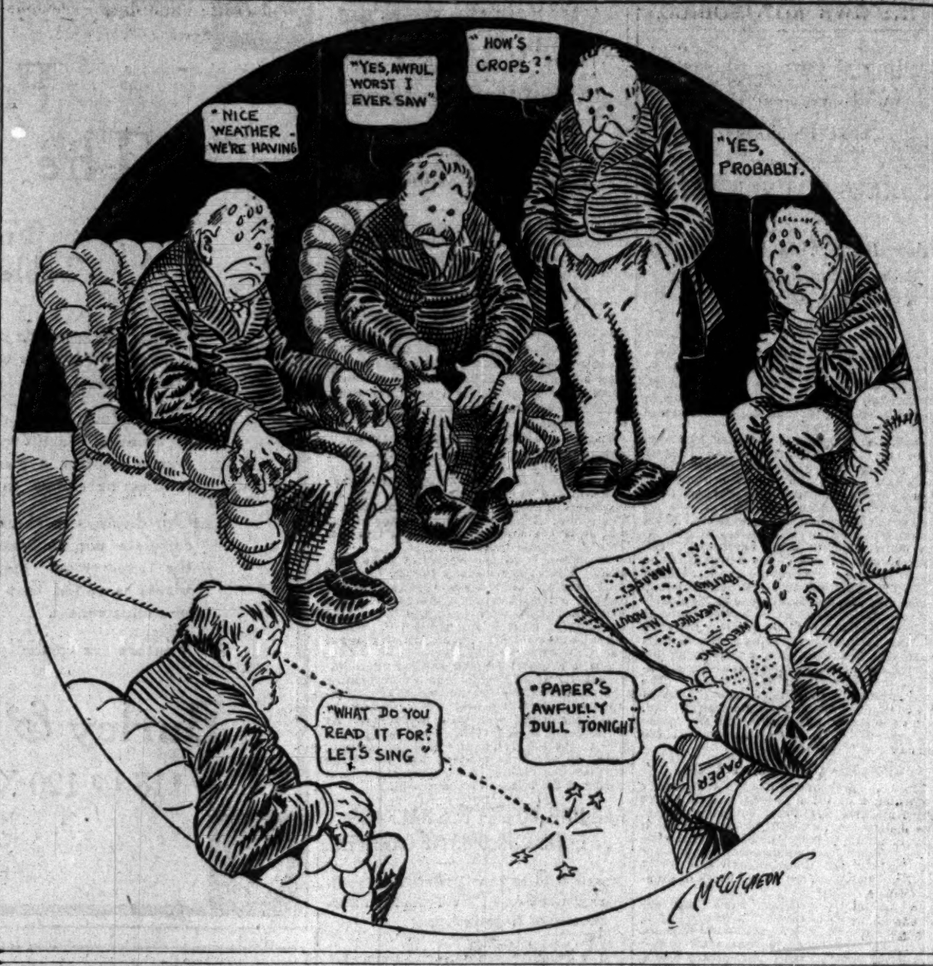

C. H. Stratham of Jackson, Miss., who, the police assert, has made a practice of fleecing hotels in various cities, was arraigned before Judge Gemmill yesterday charged with passing a fraudulent draft at the Auditorium Annex. He pleaded guilty and was fined $50.

The draft was for $200 on the Fourth National bank of Atlanta, Ga., against the C. H. Stratham estate. Stratham was arrested early in the morning while in bed in a room in the Virginia hotel. He had left the Auditorium Annex shortly after receiving money on the face of the draft and was not found until today.

The arrest of Stratham, who is 24 years old, removes one of the most dangerous check "kiters" from the hotel field, according to Chief Detective Frank Repetto of the Congress hotels. He said:

"We have found that he has secured large sums from the Coates house, Kansas City; the Washington hotel, Kansas City; Piedmont, Atlanta; the Great Northern and Auditorium Annex hotels, Chicago; and the Knickerbocker, New York."

"HEARST IS GOING TO READ FROM STANDARD AUTHORS TONIGHT."

DENEEN LIKED BY DOCTORS.

State Health Board Officials Praise Governor's Work.

PHYSICIANS BEHIND HIM.

Story of "Organized Medical Opposition" Draws Quick Retort.

Dr. George W. Webster and Dr. James A. Egan, president and secretary, respectively, of the Illinois state board of health, issued a statement yesterday denying categorically charges made by the state democratic committee and by a prominent physician in an interview in regard to the attitude of Gov. Deneen toward the medical profession and the attitude of the medical profession toward Gov. Deneen. The statement is as follows:

"In a Chicago morning paper of today we note the following statement, said to have been issued yesterday by the 'state democratic committee':

Physicians of Illinois are aroused to organized opposition against Gov. Deneen to such an extent that scarcely a single medical practitioner will vote for him at the coming election. Demands of the medical men to preserve the standard of their profession have been ignored by the governor, and now he is facing a fight led by every big medical college in the state and all the universities where medicine is part of the curriculum.

His Statement Draws Retort.

"In commenting upon this statement a prominent physician of Illinois is reported as speaking as follows:

There is nothing more important to the people than to maintain the highest standard of proficiency in the medical profession. Health and lives depend on this. Yet, despite this, Gov. Deneen has time and again refused our efforts to place the medical profession on the same basis it stands in such states as New York, Pennsylvania, Iowa, Michigan, and others.

It is absolutely necessary that the study of medicine should be placed under the control of the state university. This has been found the only method by which to reach and maintain a high standard of professional ethics and proficiency. Medicine must be taken out of the hands of private medical colleges, many of which are pure fakes. We had a bill for this purpose before the legislature and Gov. Deneen vetoed it.

"As the Illinois state board of health, which is legally charged with the protection of the lives and health of the people of Illinois, is vested with the control of the practice of medicine in the state, and is, in a sense, responsible for the 'standard of proficiency in the medical profession,' we feel that it devolves upon us, representing the state board of health, to call attention to inaccuracies in this reported statement and interview.

Doctors Praise Deneen's Work.

"We, therefore, ask for space in your paper for a brief statement of facts, which are as follows:

"There is no 'organized opposition' against the governor of Illinois among the medical profession of the state—no opposition of any kind to our knowledge. The state medical societies representing the four schools of medicine in the state of Illinois have held their annual meetings within the last few months. In not one of these society meetings was there a word of condemnation, or even criticism, of the state administration.

"On the contrary, the Illinois State Medical society, representing over half of the members of the organized medical profession, accorded the governor of the state the highest praise for his administration of the state institutions.

"The medical men of the state have made no demand upon the governor to preserve the standard of their profession.

"In no state of the union—and here we crave pardon for our seeming egotism—is the law regulating the practice of medicine more efficiently enforced than in Illinois. In but few states, if in any, is the standard of the medical profession higher.

Never Had a Chance.

"The present governor of Illinois did not veto a bill placing the study of medicine under the control of the state university. No such bill has been 'before the legislature' within the last twelve years at least. No such bill was introduced during the present administration. Parenthetically, a bill of this character would not have received serious consideration in the general assembly of Illinois.

"The bill to which reference is made in the interview reported was senate bill No. 120, which appropriated the sum of $386,000 to the trustees of the University of Illinois for the purpose of erecting or acquiring suitable buildings for the conduct of its medical department and which provided that the trustees might purchase the property and equipment of the college of Physicians and Surgeons of Chicago. For good and sufficient reasons the governor placed his veto upon this bill.

"For years prior to the introduction of this bill the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Chicago was known and recognized as the medical department of the University of Illinois."

DENEEN AS STRONG AS TAFT

Cullom Predicts Overwhelming Republican Victory in State.

BASED ON HIS OWN CANVASS.

Statesman's Reports Show Even Democrats Expect Stevenson's Defeat.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Illinois from 150,000 to 200,000 republican, with Gov. Deneen receiving practically the united support of the party, is Senator Shelby M. Cullom's prediction of the result of the approaching election in Illinois. This optimistic statement was given out by the senator tonight. In the presidential campaign the senator credits Taft with a total of 314 electoral votes, but admits that some doubt exists in Nebraska and Maryland, which he has placed in the republican column.

"In my judgment," said Mr. Cullom, "the political situation in Illinois improves every day from a republican standpoint. Taft surely will carry the state by from 150,000 to 200,000 plurality, and the entire state ticket will receive substantially the same vote. Disaffection in the party ranks, which grew out of the primary contest over the governorship, is fast disappearing and every indication points to the reelection of Gov. Deneen.

"For a time it seemed as if the governor would lose many republican votes, but from reports I have received from all sections of the state within the last two weeks I think the governor will receive practically the united support of the party.

All Solid by Election Day.

"There may be some disaffection existing at present in a few localities, but by the time election day arrives in my judgment it will disappear and the result will be that the governor and the remainder of the state ticket will be elected triumphantly. Democrats have been claiming that they would elect their candidate for governor, ex-Vice President Stevenson, but my impression is that even among their own ranks this feeling has subsided.

States to Vote for Taft.

"I believe that Mr. Taft, our candidate for president, will receive the electoral vote of the following states:

California,	Massachusetts,	Oregon,
Connecticut,	Michigan,	Pennsylvania,
Delaware,	Minnesota,	Rhode Island,
Idaho,	Montana,	South Dakota,
Illinois,	Nebraska,	Vermont,
Indiana,	New Hampshire,	Washington,
Iowa,	New Jersey,	West Virginia,
Kansas,	New York,	Wisconsin,
Maine,	North Dakota,	Wyoming.
Maryland,	Ohio.

"This makes a total of 314 electoral votes. I have included Nebraska and Maryland in the republican column, though possibly there may be some doubt as to both. Present indications point to republican success, though perhaps sufficient information has not been received to place them with certainty.

Fight in Ohio and Indiana.

"An extraordinary effort will be made on the part of the democrats in the closing week of the campaign to carry Ohio and Indiana. These states have been disturbed by factional troubles and candidates adverse to harmony in the party ranks, but I feel sure they will be found on the right side on election day, and with the aid of their votes Mr. Bryan will be defeated by a greater majority than in his two previous attempts to be elected president of the United States."

TAFT IS AT GARY, IND., TONIGHT.

Marquette Club Heads Chicago Delegation Going to Big Meeting in Special Train.

The Marquette club will have charge of a special train secured to carry Chicago republicans to the big meeting tonight at Gary, Ind., where Mr. Taft, Senator Beveridge, Vice President Fairbanks, James E. Watson, republican candidate for governor of Indiana, and others will speak. The club's special will leave on the Lake Shore road (La Salle station) at 6 p. m. Tickets may be procured either at the club or at the depot. The train will be back in the city at 11 p. m.

Senator Beveridge will go with the club on its train. It is planned to make a short stop at Whiting, where the senator will speak briefly. Three hundred persons will join the special at Whiting and 150 at Indiana Harbor, making a total force of 700 or 800.

FIREMAN "FAN" FINED 9 DAYS.

Board Holds Frank Baker Should Have Surrendered Ticket to Sox-Tigers Game.

Overanxiety to see the last game between the White Sox and Detroit Tigers caused Frank Baker of book and ladder company No. 4 to lose nine days' pay. The trial board yesterday afternoon imposed that punishment on him, because, it was charged, he had refused to obey the orders of his commanding officer and surrender a season ticket to the game. When the ticket, which was owned jointly by the members of the company, was not forthcoming Lieut. Brynes, who had demanded it, suspended Baker, according to the evidence.

ENEMIES OF FRANCHISE GAIN

ALL PARTIES TIRED OF IT.

Question of Time Limit Shows Change of Position of Railway.

Chances that the Kensington and Eastern railroad ordinance ever will go through the city council grew slimmer yesterday. Although the subcommittee which has the ordinance in its hands has injected into it so many provisions that instead of being a switch track affair it now has much of the appearance of a full grown railroad franchise, other defects continue to bob up day by day and the committeemen say they are weary.

Officials of the Illinois Central road, who have worked night and day for the ordinance, also are credited with being pretty well tired out with it, and, according to reports, have expressed their intention of abandoning their rapidly growing protégé and getting a new one.

The question of a time limit, to which some attention already has been paid, but which probably will come up again, is cited by members of the administration as showing the extent to which the road has changed its mind in what it wants.

Change of Time Limit.

The ordinance as originally introduced had no time limit at all, being subject to revocation at the discretion of the city. This was in keeping with its general character as a switch track ordinance. When, however, the importance of the measure became manifest Attorney John G. Drennan, district counsel for the road, came out strongly for a fifty year franchise, describing the magnitude of the understaking, which, he said, was such that in the course of twenty years the bondholders would not have begun to realize fairly on their investment. This problem is one which is still in the air.

Ald. B. W. Snow, chairman of the subcommittee which tried to turn the ordinance over from the committee on streets and alleys south to the local transportation committee, suggested that a second attempt to take this action might succeed.

"I have not yet decided fully what we are going to do," he said. "It is certain that if the subcommittee brings this report up again it will get more votes than it did before. If we can get a tie vote, 5-5 or 6-6, Ald. Dixon, the chairman, will be the deciding factor, and I may say that he will vote to have the ordinance sent to the local transportation committee."

More Delegations Appearing.

A delegation of Kensington property owners appeared during the day before Corporation Counsel E. J. Brundage to urge that, regardless of the city's rights in Front street, South Park avenue be opened. Another delegation will appear before the board of local improvements this morning to urge that it be left alone. Members of today's delegation assert that most of the expense of the improvement will fall upon them. They will be led by Arend Van Vlissingen, who has property interests in the neighborhood.

CLOSE CALL FOR POLICEMAN.

Officer Davern Escapes Being Shot by Knocking Revolver from Hand of a Struggling Prisoner.

With remarkable dexterity and coolness, Policeman William Davern knocked a revolver from the hand of a man he had placed under arrest last night, and thereby probably saved his life. The weapon was pressed against the stomach of the policeman when he knocked it into the street.

The prisoner, who is declared by the police to be a "bad man," at first refused to tell his name. He was recognized as Chick Sullivan, an ex-prize fighter. A companion of the prisoner escaped by running, after assisting in the attack on the policeman.

Davern's attention was attracted to two suspicious characters lounging in the shadow of an abandoned wagon, at Ogden avenue and Van Buren street. He called upon them to throw up their hands, at the same time approaching as if to search them, when they attacked him.

City Homes Association Appoints Secretary and Announces Three Years' Campaign.

The tenement house agitation recently revived by Ald. William E. Dever, who suggested that the city should tear down all unfit dwellings and create parks instead, is to become a live issue with the City Homes association. With the appointment of Royal Loren Melendy to the position of secretary, the association members yesterday announced the beginning of a three years' campaign against bad housing. The position had been vacant ever since the appointment of Charles H. Ball as chief sanitary inspector of the city. Mr. Melendy has done settlement work in various cities. He was formerly a resident of Chicago commons.

THRONGS SEE TAFT FEW HEAR HIM.

Indiana Towns Turn Out Such Big Crowds Speaking Is Impossible.

WHY HE GETS ONE VOTE.

Farmer's Note Indicates Auto Is Liked Better than a Mortgaged Mule.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 23.—The day's exhibition of political enthusiasm in Indiana has been such as to eclipse all previous campaigns, according to the national and state leaders who have been with the Taft special. Appreciating the conditions, and realizing that it was better to meet the demand of the many who would be satisfied with a sight of him, Mr. Taft has done less talking and more "exhibition" work than heretofore in the campaign.

Wherever he has spoken, his remarks have been appreciated, and what he has said has been a repetition of his recent speeches. This cue note, however, has dominated his thought today:

"Indiana is surely alive to its political responsibility, and the character of her enthusiasm means the success of the republican party."

A drizzling rain and bad railroad service seemed to make no impression on the demand for a look at Mr. Taft, and whenever his train stopped there was no cessation to the cheers.

Story of Day's Work.

Beginning at Brazil with a monster meeting at 7 o'clock this morning, the Taft special made a complete fifty mile circuit around Indianapolis, which was reached at 9 o'clock tonight. Crawfordsville, Lafayette, Frankfort, and Kokomo were visited in turn, and each was a repetition in crowds and enthusiasm.

At Lafayette, while riding to the speaker's stand, Mr. Taft had this note thrust into his hand by a well dressed man:

"Mr. Taft: Twelve years ago I drove a mortgaged mule to this city to hear Mr. Bryan speak. Today I came in my own automobile to hear you. Can you guess who I am going to vote for? E. V. D."

Marion's crowd was so dense that Senator Hemenway, who followed close on the heels of Mr. Taft to the courthouse steps, lost his pocketbook without knowing it for some time. Muncie, the next stop, presented insurmountable obstacles in the crowds, and the candidate abandoned all attempts to reach the speakers' stand provided. He made a few remarks from the rear of his car.

Roof Falls; None Hurt.

At Kokomo, a tin roof which had been used as a grand stand by 200 boys and men, caved in while the candidate was talking. He asked if anybody had been hurt and was informed none had.

"Well, that is the biggest luck I have had on the entire trip," he ejaculated, with much feeling.

One of the candidate's brief and characteristic speeches was delivered at Anderson after dark and in the rain, but to a big and enthusiastic audience. He paid a tribute to former President Harrison, saying:

"It is to me an intense pleasure to have received from the people of Indiana such a cordial welcome as we have had yesterday and today. Indiana, giving to the nation Gen. Benjamin Harrison, makes me always feel grateful because he more than any other public man, first gave to me the assistance, the sympathy, and the cordial support that made me aspire to judicial office. Gen. Harrison was a great lawyer and a great man, and Indiana may well celebrate, as she is about to, his memory by the erection of a monument in Indianapolis.

Foresees Victory in State.

"Now, my friends, it is raining and I cannot keep you here. Your coming here in such numbers testifies to your interest in the election; testifies to the fact that Indiana is republican; that you appreciate the importance of continuing the prosperity that we have by rejecting Mr. Bryan again, and on continuing the republican party in power.

"What we need to put us on the way to the prosperity we have enjoyed for ten years is a restoration of confidence, and you will never bring that about if you put into the executive chair a man who has so many half-baked, unfounded economic theories as the leader of the democracy. The interest of the laboring man, of the farmer, and of the business man are identical, and in order to bring back good times you must not put in a man who is constantly advocating new experiments and whose experiments heretofore always have failed."

It was reserved for Indianapolis to furnish the climax of the day. A tremendous parade awaited Mr. Taft's arrival, with the accessories multiplied and enhanced. Three meetings were attended by the candidate.

CABINET SENT TO THE STUMP.

President Frames Hard Work for Different Members in Last End of Campaign.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt worked diligently on his end of the campaign today. Secretary Root received orders to go into Ohio next week and make two speeches. Secretary Metcalf was scheduled for Charlestown, W. Va. Secretary Wright and Attorney General Bonaparte were assigned the job of making Maryland safe for the republicans. Chairman Hitchcock in New York was ordered to reinforce these cabinet officers with the best speakers at his disposal.

Secretary Loeb sought to give the impression that the national committee itself had appealed to President Roosevelt for aid in carrying quick and decisive warfare into Ohio, West Virginia, Maryland, and New York, and said no alarm whatever was felt at the White house.

It was apparent from the attitude of Secretary Root when he left the cabinet meeting that it was necessary for a final command of his chief to produce the extra speeches which are scheduled from him.

DISSECTED BODY IS CLAIMED

WIDOW COMING HERE FOR IT

Discovery Startles Young Men in Chicago University Laboratory.

Considerable excitement was caused in the medical laboratories of the University of Chicago yesterday by the sudden discovery that one of the cadavers upon which four students had been dissecting since Oct. 1 was claimed by a woman in California as the body of her long lost husband. The woman is said to be on her way to take possession of the corpse.

Five months ago the man died a pauper at the county hospital, leaving neither clew to his own identity nor to his relatives. After the body had been held for twenty days—a customary time—it passed into the possession of the University of Chicago, as do many others from the county hospital, unclaimed by kin.

After keeping the body in storage thirty days, as the law requires, it was placed upon the dissecting table and four medical students were assigned to the cadaver, which was tagged "No. 11," and known in classroom talk by the professors of the anatomy department and their students simply by its number.

Insurance Claim Is Involved.

One student worked on the left arm, another on the right arm, a third on one leg, and a fourth on the abdomen. The body had been dissected on the anterior side and had just been turned over, face downward, when the discovery was made that the body had been claimed.

The woman herself, whose name the medical authorities said they did not know, appeared at the dissecting room of the anatomy building and identified her husband, according to stories told by some of the students. The professors, however, deny this, and say representatives of the woman identified the cadaver.

"We were notified by the Demonstrators' association, which furnished us the specimen, that the body had been claimed by a relative," said Prof. R. R. Bensley, who is head of the anatomy department. "So we simply took it out of the dissecting room and placed it in storage to await the claimants.

"I know nothing of the history of the incident except that the woman lives in California and that she held some insurance on the man. It is not an uncommon thing for us to have an experience like this. Probably 2 per cent of all our specimens are claimed by relatives or friends at some time or other after we have begun dissecting upon them.

"The university can be held in no way to blame. I made a careful investigation to see that we had kept within the law, and found that we had observed it in every detail."

Record of Names Kept.

The man evidently was 50 years old and was in hard circumstances at the time of his death.

Dean J. M. Dodson of the medical department of the University of Chicago and secretary of the Demonstrators' association, who keeps a record of the names and numbers of all cadavers which pass through the hands of the association, was in Madison, Wis., last night. The university keeps two records of its specimens. One is for laboratory use to record the work of the students in dissecting and the other the sources from which bodies are received. No names are attached to any of the specimens. Each is tagged with a number.

No fee is charged the university for the bodies. The only expense the university meets is that of transportation from the county hospital to the anatomy building in Fifty-seventh street.

BROKER'S WIFE ACCUSES GIRL.

Mrs. Charles J. Dannenbaum Names Miss Mildred Hartman as Co-respondent in Suit.

Mrs. Marguerite Dannenbaum yesterday named Mildred Hartman, a south side girl and settlement worker, as co-respondent in her suit for separate maintenance against Charles J. Dannenbaum, a wealthy broker.

The naming of Miss Hartman, who is said to be the daughter of a trunk manufacturer living at 4533 Michigan avenue, was made by Mrs. Dannenbaum after Judge Barnes directed her to be more specific in her charge of infidelity. The case may be reached for trial next Tuesday.

Mrs. Dannenbaum also has a suit for $50,000 pending against Miss Hartman, alleging the alienation of her husband's affections by the girl.

WILL CONTEST FATHER'S WILL.

Mrs. F. E. Trimble Objects to Everything Being Left to Widow of Omer Robinson.

Charges that Omer R. Robinson, a cattle food manufacturer, was unduly influenced in making his last will leaving his property to his widow will be made by counsel for Mrs. F. E. Trimble, a daughter of Robinson, when his will is probated. Mrs. Trimble claims an attempt is being made to deprive her of her just share of property valued at $50,000 and a farm in North Dakota. She is Robinson's daughter by a former wife and alleges that a will was made just before his death, when he was no longer in full possession of his faculties.

HIS MORTGAGED MULE vs. HIS OWN AUTOMOBILE.

BRYAN PROSELYTE GIVES HIS REASON

HOUSE RECORD IS CLEAR.

Abbot Declares Democratic Candidate Did Not Vote Against Soldiers' Pensions.

BY WILLIS J. ABBOT.

[Copyright: 1908: By Tribune Company, Chicago.]

One of the notable converts to the democratic cause this year is Frederic Bancroft, LL. D., a widely known writer and lecturer upon international law and politics, the former chief of the department of rolls and the library of the state department, and a historian, now engaged in completing the memoirs of Carl Schurz, now being published in McClure's magazine.

Dr. Bancroft has written a letter giving the reasons for his change of political faith. That letter is too long for me to incorporate in this article, but certain paragraphs from it seem to me so full of political acumen as to be worth quoting here:

"What greater violation of civil service reform could there be than for the president, who holds one of the most dignified offices on earth, and is the nation's representative and as such is given special prerogatives and respect, to misapply the great powers of this public trust by pressing upon his party the nomination of a member of his cabinet who otherwise would have no prospect of success?

"The president, after taking dictatorial control of the republican national organization and by employing his presidential functions as a personal asset, is trying to compel the nation to approve his usurpations and to accept his favorite. The executive branch of the people's government is given to and forced upon a party.

Republican Headquarters Moved.

"The White house, with rent, clerk hire, and governmental resources all free, has now become republican headquarters. Here the nation's cabinet—when its members are not haranguing from the stump—meet, not as formerly, to consult solely about the national welfare, but chiefly to scheme and plot in the interest of a party—no, of a party dictator and of his chosen political heir.

"Here party managers of high and of low degree are summoned and furtively slip in by night and by day to give reports, to receive reproofs, and to take instructions as to how to be more effective partisans. Thence secret emissaries are dispatched, passionate and undignified denunciations and ardent appeals are cast to the four winds, and party bulletins are daily, often twice daily, sent forth by the should-be president of the whole people.

"Great political reforms usually come slowly and after much argument and agitation. But by rare exception and good fortune the greatest reform movement of our generation has come like a freshet and soon may be triumphant. Of course I refer to the pre-election publication of campaign receipts and expenditures.

Best Chance, Biggest Fraud.

"By demanding large contributions from corporations party managers have commonly blackmailed them, and large corporations have often practically bribed legislators and executives by giving exorbitant sums as campaign contributions. In each case favorable legislation or special protection was the understood consideration. In these sins the republicans have been tenfold the greater offenders because of their greater opportunities.

"Compel prefiection publication of campaign accounts and these practices will soon die out. Deprive politicians of such corrupt and corrupting funds and they will begin to preach tariff and the great interstate corporations and trusts solely as problems in national economy and public welfare.

"Only ignorant persons do not know that the zealous and effective champion of this reform is Mr. Bryan, and that the most conspicuous opponent of it in both practice and theory is President Roosevelt, who four years ago shamelessly induced the collection of $260,000 in his own behalf and then brazenly prevaricated about it at a critical moment just before the election.

"Naturally he insists it would not be safe to let the people know the amount or source or disposition of campaign funds until after the election, when the knowledge would be of no practical value to them. Even horse thieves, when they are safely mounted, have no objections to the locking of stable doors."

Bryan Not Against Pensions.

An explicit story has been printed in many of the republican papers lately to the effect that while in congress in 1892 Mr. Bryan made a speech in which he denounced the pension legislation then pending, declaring that pensions were not an honest debt and describing the government as being "held up." The Congressional Record is open for all to see, but no one has yet been able to discover and identify the speech. It was alleged to have been delivered in November, 1892, at which time congress was not in session.

Perhaps it is because I have been a newspaper writer for some twenty years that I am neither encouraged nor discouraged by the result of so-called newspaper polls. If the newspaper, as too often happens, desires to prove its point it can usually so handle its poll as to prove that which it desires to demonstrate.

But even if conducted honestly the polls are incomplete, because it is a work involving prodigious expenditures of money and of intelligent labor to come anywhere near getting anything like a comprehensive expression of the political purposes of the people in even one state. If the average man will try to poll the men in a street car and consider how many times he will find them sit silent or turn him aside with ridicule, he can get a better idea of what polling a state by postal card means.

Racine Laboring Man's Town.

I am moved to these remarks by a bundle of letters which have come to me ridiculing the so-called poll of Wisconsin by a Chicago morning paper. One man from Racine complains that the paper reported twenty-two Taft and no Bryan votes in that town. He says: "Racine is a laboring man's town from end to end, and a democratic plurality from Racine and Racine county is not an unusual thing."

Another man, this one from Madison, prefaces his letter of criticism with the statement: "I am a strong republican—that is, a Wisconsin republican." The delicate qualification of the latter phrase suggests that he is a La Follette republican. I paraphrase his letter:

"In the poll Madison was given for Taft in the ratio of 174 to 33. Madison is normally a democratic city; even money is being offered that Bryan will carry the city and the county, too. Beaver Dam, Fond du Lac, and Manitowoc, all either close or actually democratic, are given to Taft by a heavy plurality."

Without quoting further from the criticism backed by specific illustrations, I would close these straws as to the Wisconsin poll with this statement from my correspondent: "The attitude of the students in the University of Wisconsin may be judged by the fact that in a republican meeting at which perhaps 2,000 students were present the mention of Bryan's name by Senator La Follette started a demonstration that almost equaled that which the senator himself received."

Professor Turns to Bryan.

And apropos of the University of Wisconsin, a sensation was caused there the other day by the announcement of Prof. E. A. Ross, the widely known writer on sociology, that he this year would vote the democratic ticket. Prof. Ross went on to say that after a careful study of the platforms of the several political parties and a consideration of the personal character and capacity of the different candidates he had concluded the best interests of the country would be served by the election of Bryan and Kern, and called upon his student auditors to follow him into the democratic camp.

TEST MARCH TIRES MAJORS.

Do Second Day's Stint Gayly, but Begin to Feel Effects.

FOURTEEN MILES FOR TODAY

Maj. Keleher Nursing Blisters on Heel and Both Muscle Sore.

Two tired and footsore but cheerful army officers in the persons of Maj. B. B. Ray and Maj. Timothy D. Keleher, yesterday completed the second installment of their three day endurance walking test ordered by President Roosevelt.

Outside of minor incidents on the road and a slight sprinkle of rain—not enough to make the roads muddy—the "unfortunate majors," as they style themselves, had a clear day of travel. The stakes of the miniature army camp at Diamond lake were pulled up as early as 6 a. m., when the majors were up and ready for breakfast. If there is one thing that the march is doing, it is to improve their appetites. The mess wagon supplies proved inadequate on the first day of the tramp, so that the majors have resorted to the small hotels along the route.

The majors started at 7 a. m. to circle about Diamond lake and return to the same place to camp again. It was sprinkling as they started, giving prospect of mud.

"All the more to our credit," said Maj. Ray, as the party launched forth toward Ivanhoe.

"Well, you may be sure that you will not get a ride in the ambulance if I can help it," grinned Capt. W. J. Glasgow of Fort Sheridan, who is acting as "umpire" for the majors during the hike.

"Don't you worry, my friend," Maj. Keleher broke in. "We have seen enough of the Philippines not to know how to watch ourselves on a trifling tramp of this sort. For my part, I'll bet that I could beat Dan O'Leary himself in a walking match today."

Barbers Out to See the March.

No barber shop was found open at Rockefeller, for the reason that all the business of the village had ceased in order that the warriors might be seen on the march.

"Horrible, horrible," exclaimed Maj. Keleher, stroking his two days' growth. Even in the Philippines this would not happen."

Libertyville and the dozen crossroads of the route were passed without demonstration from the natives of Lake county, and shortly after 1 o'clock the two majors were back at the starting point comfortably located in their tents, and were awaiting the call to dinner. They sat down to a meal of roast beef, mashed potatoes, hubbard squash, carrots, bread, butter and honey, lemon pie, and coffee.

Beginning to Feel Effects.

In the lounging hours of the afternoon they discovered that the walk had not been as easy on their powers of endurance as they had thought at first. Muscles began to cramp, and aches to make themselves felt. To make matters worse, Maj. Keleher found that a huge blister had worn on his heel to a serious extent.

"I shall surely dream of walking on sharp knives and coals of fire tonight," groaned Maj. Keleher in the evening.

The march tomorrow will be the shortest of the test. The itinerary will take the party through the towns of Melody and Lake Forest, directly to Fort Sheridan, a distance of fourteen miles.

TRAGEDY ENDS BRIDAL TOUR; FORMER SUITOR KILLS RIVAL.

Husband Shot and Killed Aboard a Train and Wife Struggles for Life Hour After Beginning Honeymoon.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 23.—On her bridal tour, which had begun scarcely one hour before, and seated in a railroad coach almost between her husband and a suitor for her hand, Mrs. Fred Van Ingen last night saw the flash of the suitor's revolver, felt the sudden grip of her husband's hand as the bullet killed him, and then turned and fought for her life.

When the girl appeared about to become the victim of the second bullet from the revolver her uncle rushed up and thrust his thumb beneath the hammer of the revolver, jamming the mechanism and rendering the weapon harmless.

This was the story which the other passengers on the Texas and Pacific "cannon ball" told when they reached this city today, but the principal actors in the tragedy, most of whom are connected with Louisiana's leading families, have so far refused to discuss the matter.

The former suitor is E. S. Beauve of Plaquemine, La., at which place he was taken from the train and placed under arrest last night. The unfortunate husband was Prof. Fred Van Ingen, a teacher of Alexandria, La., and a relative of former Gov. Blanchard. The bride is the daughter of James M. Rhorer, one of the officials of Iberville parish, residing at Baton Rouge. Beauve is 24 years old and Van Ingen was 23.

FLEES O'ER SEA WITH FIANCE

WATCH U. S. PORTS FOR PAIR.

Carolina Father Sailing East as Eloping Girl Comes West.

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Miss Fayette Morgan, the 17 year old daughter of J. L. Morgan of Marion, N. C., one of the richest men in that state, has succeeded in eluding her chaperon and an elder sister, Miss Edna Morgan, in England and is thought now to be on the ocean bound for America.

With her is W. P. Craig, with whom she traveled from Florence to London in a vain effort to find some one to perform the marriage ceremony. Her father sailed for England last Saturday to prevent the marriage if possible and capture the runaway girl.

Outwits Pursuers in Europe.

The younger Miss Morgan, after eluding the espionage of the two older women in a Florence art school and joining her sweetheart, outwitted her chaperons at every point in the chase across Europe and, still with the man of her choice, caught a steamship for this country, it is said, leaving the elder women to break the news of her escape to her father.

Dr. Thomas Simmons, president of a female college at Marion, who hurried to this city to join Mr. Morgan as soon as he heard of his friend's distress, has been at the Hotel Marlborough ever since to keep watch on this side of the ocean. He received a cablegram on Thursday from one of the chaperons, it is said, telling him that the girl and Craig could not be found anywhere over there and were thought to have sailed.

Watch Kept at Four Ports.

Dr. Simmons was requested to have every incoming ship watched by detectives to intercept the young couple. Whether his instructions were to have the girl detained could not be learned, but it is understood that a close watch is being kept at the ports of New York, Philadelphia, Boston, and Montreal.

So far as could be learned the cable message for Dr. Simmons did not state that Miss Morgan and Craig had been married, and it is supposed they are coming to this country to wed.

BOYS HELD AS SLOT ROBBERS.

Six Accused of Breaking Open Candy and Gum Vending Machines and Stealing Money from Them.

Six boys, all under the age of 18 years, were arraigned before Judge Blake at the Sheffield avenue court yesterday on charges of stealing money from gum and candy vending machines owned by the Universal Vender company.

OBITUARY.

FRANK A. DEVLIN, who died early in the week from injuries received in an automobile accident in Minneapolis, was buried yesterday at Calvary cemetery from the residence of his brother-in-law, Eugene O'Reilly, 3810 Grand boulevard. High mass was solemnized at Holy Angels' church. Mr. Devlin was well known in dry goods circles throughout the country, having been a buyer and department manager for Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. for twenty-five years. He left a widow, a son, and two daughters. Two brothers, John Devlin of Marshall Field & Co. and Peter J. Devlin of New York, and a sister, Mrs. Kate Mahan of New York City, also mourn his death.

WILLIAM HAYMAN VOGDES, member of a Pennsylvania family prominent in national life for more than a century, died yesterday after a brief illness at the home of his son, R. H. Vogdes, 309 Fifty-third street. He was 97 years old. Mr. Vogdes made his home in Philadelphia for many years and was a member of congress for ten terms. He managed an extensive live stock business, remaining in active life until a year ago, when he removed to Chicago to reside with his son. His body will be taken to Philadelphia tonight for interment.

MRS. MARY CULVER M'KILLIP, wife of Dwight McKillip, pioneer resident of Chicago, and active worker in the Presbyterian church, died suddenly in her apartments in the Hampden building, Thirty-ninth street and Langley avenue, Thursday evening, of heart trouble. Mrs. McKillip was planning to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of her arrival in Chicago, next June. The funeral will be held Monday morning from the Hampden apartments.

PROF. CHARLES ELIOT NORTON'S funeral was held in Appleton chapel at Harvard college yesterday. The services were simple, with no eulogy, and consisted of scripture reading, a brief prayer, two Latin hymns sung by the college choir, and the hymn, "O God, I Thank Thee," written by Prof. Norton's father. There was a large attendance, including many notable men and women of the literary and educational world.

MRS. M'CREARY, wife of Senator James B. McCreary, is dead at their home in Richmond, Ky., after a long illness. Senator McCreary and their only son, Robert H., who resides in Chicago, were at the bedside when the end came.

CONTROLLER KNEW OF MORSE'S DEALS?

Reading of Letters Shows He Had Demanded Reduction in Loans.

BANKERS WARNED BY HIM

Other High Finance Ideas Are Brought Out by the Hearing in New York.

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—There were three important developments today in the trial of Charles W. Morse and Alfred H. Curtis, who are charged with conspiracy in the management of the defunct National Bank of North America.

First, the prosecution produced letters to show that Controller of the Currency Ridgely had foreseen the impending failure of the bank and that he had written a number of letters to Morse and Curtis warning them against making such large loans on what he termed unsubstantial collateral to the officers and directors of the bank, especially naming the loans made to Morse enterprises. Mr. Ridgely said in one of his letters that the Morse interests at one time owed the bank $3,510,754, the loans to the Morse steamship companies alone amounting to $1,764,255.

Next, the prosecution presented evidence to show that a large loan made by the bank to Miss Katherine W. Wilson, Mr. Morse's secretary, had been paid in part by profits coming out of the financing of an undertaking of the "New Haven Improvement." The profits, Edward B. Wire, former cashier of the bank, said, should have gone to the bank, but he testified Mr. Curtis and Mr. Morse had arranged so that the profits went to cover part of the "Wilson loan."

$200,000 for Steamer Lines.

Third, the prosecution had Mr. Wire testify regarding a note for $200,000 deposited with the Knickerbocker Trust company, one of the institutions that went to the wall during the financial panic. In tracing this note it was shown by banking records that after passing through the Knickerbocker Trust company it bobbed up in the Bank of Commerce as a credit to "E. B. Wire."

At this point Government Bank Examiner Edward Moxey was called to the stand and he endeavored to show how the $200,000 obtained on the note had gone to finance the Morse steamship undertakings. Mr. Moxey traced payment of interest on the $200,000 to show that the interest of 6 per cent had been charged against the account of the National Bank of North America. No debit against Mr. Wire's personal account could be found.

Mr. Wire, recalled, said Mr. Morse and Charles T. Barney, the late president of the Knickerbocker Trust company, had asked him to sign the note, saying the proceeds would be used to finance a deal in steamship stock. Mr. Wire said that after making the note he turned a check for the amount over to Miss Wilson.

Given Stock in New Concern.

He said that later he received stock of the New York and Cuban Steamship company (a Morse concern) from Mr. Morse to the amount of $200,000 and later when the Consolidated Steamship company was organized he was given bonds of that company for the New York and Cuban company.

The account o fthe Knickerbocker Trust company, he said, remained there until Oct. 21, when Mr. Barney called upon him for collateral for the loan and he turned over the steamship bonds. After this Mr. Wire withdrew the deposit, but he did not say what became of the money.

Many letters passing between the controller and President Curtis were read by the government's attorney relating to the condition of the bank under the Morse control. In one letter to the controller Mr. Curtis explained, referring to certain American Ice company loans, that the bank held $100,000 of that company's bonds, which were carried at $95,000, and that as these were first obligations of the company they were "believed to be worth par." Loans of $250,000 to the company, Mr. Curtis said, "would be gradually reduced."

On Oct. 6, 1905, Mr. Curtis, addressing the controller again, in answer to certain criticisms of loans to Barney, Morse, and others, told the controller that the Morse loans were "considered absolutely safe, he (Mr. Morse) being in no way responsible for the loans to the American Ice company."

Orders Reduction in Loans.

The controller, writing and giving a list of certain loans, said:

"You are instructed to reduce these loans to the legal limit without delay and to notify this office. The examiner states that an unusually large proportion of your loans are to corporations in which your directors are interested, particular attention being called to the large indirect liabilities of Vice President Charles W. Morse, loans secured largely by the stocks of the corporations in which Morse is interested.

"The directors are reminded that they should not use the funds of the bank intrusted to their keeping to any undue or unlawful extent, or either directly or indirectly to further their own outside enterprises. These liabilities should be substantially reduced and kept within more prudent limits."

This letter contained a mention of specific loans of which detailed criticism was made. Some were of the Morse concern loans, and one was for the benefit of Warner Van Norden, although in another name. The controller demanded adequate collateral. One of $300,303 to Charles M. Schwab, the controller said, should be "adequately secured."

The controller's letters became stiffer as time passed, so much so that the question passed from mouth to mouth today, "Why had he not closed the bank?" But that was no part of the case in court.

DATE OF ABRUZZI'S SAILING FOR AMERICA IS NOT FIXED.

Duke Gives His Brother Letter to Queen Margherita, Believed to Relate to Proposed Wedding.

TURIN, Oct. 23.—The duke of the Abruzzi arrived today. He called upon his brother, the count of Turin, who has just returned from London.

It is stated officially that the duke has not asked for any leave of absence nor decided when he will depart for the United States.

During his conversation with the count of Turin the count gave the duke a letter to the queen dowager, Margherita, who arrived later by automobile, which evidently dealt with the subject of the duke's marriage to Miss Elkins.

ELKINS NONCOMMITTAL.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 23.—In an extended conversation over the long distance telephone with United States Senator Stephen B. Elkins at Elkins, W. Va., today, an attempt was made to secure confirmation or denial of the reported engagement of his daughter, Miss Katherine Elkins, and the duke of the Abruzzi. The attempt, however, was unsuccessful. Senator Elkins would make no positive statement either way.

HIS MORTGAGED MULE VS. HIS OWN AUTOMOBILE.

Kokomo, Ind., Oct. 23.—At Lafayette today, while riding to the speaker's stand, Mr. Taft had this note thrust into his hand by a well dressed man:

"Mr. Taft: Twelve years ago I drove a mortgaged mule to this city to hear Mr. Bryan speak. Today I came in my own automobile to hear you. Can you guess who I am going to vote for? E. V. D."

ZEPPELIN SHIP FLIES WITH 10

Trip of Over Three Hours Made Without a Hitch.

ROYALTY WATCHES THE TEST

Craft Performs Wonderful Maneuvers at Friedrichshafen.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Oct. 23.—The reconstructed Zeppelin dirigible airship No. 1 made a triumphal reappearance and ascension with ten passengers this afternoon and went through evolutions that for speed and stability were most satisfactory.

The trip lasted three and a half hours and was made without a hitch. The balloon made an average speed of 29.31 miles an hour at a mean altitude of 800 feet. Driven alternately by a single motor and both motors, the craft made easy progress, its movements being controlled with facility with either the double or the single steering gears.

Critical aeronauts and throngs of the populace crowded the shores of Lake Constance from 2 until 5:30 p. m. watching the evolution of the airship. Its movements were so graceful and its obedience to the hardly visible steering gear so quick and accurate that the verdict of the onlookers was unanimous that it is the finest dirigible that has ever ascended from Manzell.

Ascending from the waters of Lake Constance almost horizontally for 500 feet, the craft started on a short voyage overland against a fresh northeast breeze. It swept over the palace, from the grounds of which the king of Wurtemberg greeted it. Meanwhile Queen Charlotte, aboard the royal yacht, followed its maneuvers.

The air vessel seemed constantly to increase its speed, sometimes far surpassing the records of the one destroyed at Echterdingen. While at a height of 1,000 feet the craft performed wonderful maneuvers. At an angle of 35 degrees it turned to the right and to the left and spun completely around; then, all the time steering with the wings opening and closing like window shutters, it raised at the bow and stern at will.

FAILURE TO SETTLE BALKANS ENDS DIPLOMATIC CAREERS.

Russia Said to Plan Downfall of Iswolsky and French See Trouble in Suspension of Negotiations.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 23.—Failure of cabinet ministers of the powers to secure a settlement of the Balkan troubles is about to lead to the downfall of a number of diplomatic leaders.

The impending retirement of Iswolsky, Russian foreign minister, is taking a definite form tonight and newspapers openly refer to him as a political defunct. Prince Ourousoff, the aged ambassador of the czar at Vienna, already has been sacrificed.

Conference Beset with Dangers.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—The French government, which was the first to advocate the Balkan conference, now watches with dismay the dangers that gather around it on every side. The public here seized gladly two days ago the report that Turkey's compensation for her loss of suzerainty over Bulgaria was to be an offensive and defensive alliance with Czar Ferdinand; but Ferdinand's delegate, M. Dimitroff, is returning from Constantinople to Sofia today empty-handed because Turkey became suddenly intractable, demanding that Bulgaria pay the capitalized value of eastern Rumelia's annual tribute of nearly $1,000,000 to the porte.

A French banker explained today the immediate danger attending this demand. He said Bulgaria has for a week been sounding German, Austrian, and French bankers for a loan to pay off the foreign owners of the eastern Rumelian railway. The reply in each case has been that a loan could be arranged the day the new Bulgarian régime was recognized by the powers signatory to the Berlin treaty and that the only present obstacle to official recognition was the indemnities claimed by Turkey.

Negotiations Called Off.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 23.—The government has ordered Dimitroff, special envoy to Constantinople, to return here for new instructions.

ZUEBLIN WOULD MINGLE RACES

Enlightenment Will Reach Zenith with Abolition of the Color Line, He Says.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 23.—Prof. Charles Zueblin, formerly of Chicago university, in a lecture at Central high school on "Fraternity," denounced the treatment accorded the negroes by the "so-called Anglo-Saxon race, whatever that is." It was the professor's belief that this life is a game of give and take; that each person should give what he can to his fellows and take all he can from them in return.

"The wise man knows no boundary line of convention or prejudice," he said. "It is like standing on the top of a great, high mountain. All around him one can see the hundreds of people, pygmies, but he can tell no difference in their color, their size, their beliefs, or their social standing. He takes what he can from them as a whole and as individuals, and so again broadens his own life."

The professor declared that enlightenment of the world would not reach its highest stages until the whites, blacks, red men, yellow men, and brown men had all swept away the bonds of racial prejudice and become recognized on the same social plane with each other. One of those things necessary to this great advancement is the intermarriage of the races, he said.

New French Stationery

THIS is a new line of correspondence papers especially made for us in Paris. It is decidedly novel, both in texture and in tints, and is now available for the first time in Chicago. Representing the "last word" in foreign stationery, these papers will interest every one who likes to anticipate the tendency of fashion.

Novel Imported Brass Goods

IN no previous season has our foreign representative been so successful in finding uncommon and beautiful artistic things for gifts. You will be especially interested in the brass jewel caskets and cigar and cigarette boxes which have been copied from antique chests and other medieval designs. They are remarkably beautiful and represent a new idea in this kind of work.

REVOLT AGAINST TRACTION WOES.

CARS SMALL AND FILTHY.

Ineffectual Appeals Made to Company and Aldermen for Improvements.

Stirred up by what is said to be an increase in the rottenness of the service of the street railway lines that have a monopoly of the traffic in the South Chicago district, employés in the steel mills have organized an association to work for an improvement. Appeals to the aldermen of the district having been met with declarations of sympathy and helplessness, and protests to the company having been ignored, help has been asked of THE TRIBUNE.

The "South Chicago and South Deering line," running from Sixty-third street and Jackson Park avenue to One Hundred and Third street and Commercial avenue, is the only line that runs directly past the great South Chicago steel mills.

Employés at the mills say they have been seriously injured by the decrease of the street car fare from 10 cents to 5 cents for a zone south of Sixty-third street. They assert that they have received only the thorny stem of the rose of traction improvement, for the service has grown steadily worse ever since the reduction of the fare. This has been caused in part by the tremendous increase in traffic, the building up of large prairies with cottages and flat buildings, and the apparent ambition of the company to make a cut in expenses for every increase in receipts.

Car Service Inadequate.

A car with seats for thirty-two persons reaches the gates of the mills at 5:30 p. m. to take care of about 200 office employés, who wish to go north. The motorman and conductor of the car dread the ordeal as much as the passengers and frequently attempt to get past before the 5:30 whistle blows. If they do the patrons of the road must wait for the next car, which arrives in fifteen or twenty minutes. All who can, get on the car. Those who can't walk three-quarters of a mile to the Illinois Central.

The car has no exit or entrance in front. There used to be a ventilator in the front of the car, but this has been taken out and an immovable piece of glass substituted. The windows cannot be opened. The car is never cleaned.

A combination of worthless rails and flat and broken wheels has a tendency to send the cars off on jaunts to the sidewalk. One man was derailed four times in one week. It took him one hour and ten minutes to travel from Eighty-sixth street to Seventy-third street last Thursday. Sea sickness is not uncommon in the cars, owing to the flat wheels and a peculiar see saw motion.

Passengers Packed In Tightly.

Once in a car, it is difficult to get out. Last Wednesday night the car stopped at Seventy-ninth street and Cheltenham place to let a woman off. She was wedged in so tightly that she could not even move toward the door. After a wait the car started forward. A man pulled the bell rope and announced that he would jerk the trolley and keep the car there all night if necessary to let the woman off. Ten men got off the car and then she was able to squeeze out.

The lights in the cars are few and each gives only a dull red glow. In a car observed last night it was impossible to tell time by an ordinary watch while the car was going.

These are a few of the complaints of the steel mill office employés which the aldermen say they can do nothing about and the company ignores. This is only one line, but there are others.

The Seventy-fifth street line, for instance, which connects with the "South Deering line," was built ten years ago, when the district was almost uninhabited. A twenty minute schedule was inaugurated and the cars were never full. The same cars are now in use and the same schedule is in force, though tens of thousands of persons now live in the territory served by it and there is standing room only in the cars the greater part of the time.

THREE MEET SUDDEN DEATHS IN DAY'S STRANGE ACCIDENTS.

Man Jammed Between Cars on State Street, Second Killed by Tank Explosion, Third Tumbles Down Shaft.

Three men met sudden deaths in as many strange accidents yesterday. A jamming between two street cars, the explosion of a compressed air machine, and a tumble down a dark water intake shaft were responsible for the loss of life.

A. J. Hainlaine was killed almost instantly in the afternoon in sight of scores of people while he was crossing State and Washington streets.

Hainlaine, who was a railroad mail clerk, became confused while crossing the street and attempted to rush between two approaching cars when they were only a few feet from each other. He was caught and crushed so badly that he died while being taken to the office of Dr. L. M. Montgomery, 92 State street. The victim was 55 years old.

Henry Berbet, 91 Mohawk street, a machinist, was killed by the explosion of a compressed air tank which he was testing in the boat repair yards at the west end of the new bridge over the lagoon in Lincoln park.

A piece of the tank struck Berbet, who was standing over it, on the forehead.

Patrick Lynch, 26 years old, 139 Seventy-eighth street, an engineer employed by George W. Jackson, incorporated, fell thirty feet to the bottom of a shaft at Seventy-third street and the lake. He died at the Lakeside hospital a short time later. Lynch attempted to climb down an elevator cable, but one of his hands was cut by a loose strand.

MANY AT BAZAAR FOR THE DEAF.

This Is Children's Carnival Day at Benefit Entertainment for the Ephpheta School.

The attendance at the bazaar for deaf-mutes, being held in Coliseum hall this week and next, is increasing. Special interest is being manifested in the two great contests, for the magnificent vestment to be voted to the most popular parish in the city and the Cubs and Sox contest.

Only fourteen parishes have as yet been entered for the first, the greatest interest being manifested in St. Mary's, the Presentation and St. Charles Borromeo. There is yet time, however, for other parishes to enter with prospects of being successful.

The baseball contest is going with runs, the prize being a handsome bat and ball. Mr. Doyle is registered in favor of the Cubs, while Mr. McGovern is upholding the Sox.

This will be children's carnival day, all children being admitted to the bazaar free during the entire day.

The receipts of the benefit will be added to the fund for the new Ephpheta school for the deaf building.

Mrs. H. C. Ross and Mrs. Harry J. Saunders, two south side women, had leading roles in an amateur play, "The Family Affair," given by the Charlevoix club, 6027 Jackson avenue, last night. Others in the cast included Mr. Ross, Fred Somes, Ray Hammond, and Mrs. Leonora Luce.

Horticultural Society Medal in Garden Contest and Boy Who Was Made Happy by Securing It.

Edward J. Vlasak

Edward J. Vlasak, 770 Central Park avenue, is one of the happiest boys in Chicago today. His happiness is due to receipt of the solid silver medal presented by the Chicago Horticultural society in THE TRIBUNE's garden contest, for the finest flower garden raised and tended by a schoolboy of Chicago. Edward received his medal, the design for which was brought from Paris by Charles L. Hutchinson, last night from the hands of a representative of THE TRIBUNE, and the donation was the occasion of a quiet little celebration at the Vlasak home.

"Gee, that's pretty fine," he said as he fondled the medal and read the inscription on the reverse side. "I knew I was going to get a medal for my garden because THE TRIBUNE of Aug. 15 said I had won it. But I didn't guess it was going to be as fine as this one."

The medal, which is valued at $50, was designed by Henning Ryden of Paris and the die was purchased by the Chicago Horticultural society at a cost of $500. Less than a dozen medals have been struck from the die. The particular medal which was presented last night is the first ever awarded to a schoolboy.

SUSPECTS "L" OF BAD FAITH

WANTS A GUARANTEE FIRST.

Certainty of Station at Willow Avenue Would Help.

The Austin Public Policy club last night flatly refused to sign a petition of the Chicago and Oak Park Elevated railroad company to the city council for an extension of franchise because the road would not make a positive promise to establish a station at Willow avenue.

This action is expected to have considerable bearing on the aldermen when the proposition comes before them next Wednesday night, and members of the club anticipate the defeat of the ordinance. The club, recently organized, has a membership of over 300.

J. R. Hunter, a special representative of President Clarence A. Knight, was there to lobby in the interest of the ordinance, making the plea that the company's franchise from Market street to Fifty-second avenue would have to be extended from 1930 to 1944 to enable the company to float bonds and raise the necessary funds to elevate the tracks between Fifty-second and Austin avenues.

For a long time it looked as if favorable action would be taken, but the sentiment was changed with the speech of W. F. Mofan, who recited several alleged empty promises of President Knight, and, after a warm discussion, it was decided that Mr. Knight would first have to give his positive assurance of a station at Willow avenue before he could expect the influence of the club with the road.

Promises Received with Caution.

Mr. Hunter promised that Mr. Knight would meet the club half way, dropped the hint that the aldermen wanted the sentiment of the people of Austin before they would act, and said that there wasn't room between the telegraph poles and the company's right of way for the establishment of the station. He also pleaded for immediate action, as to defer the matter until the next meeting would make it too late for the council meeting, but still the club refused and issued its ultimatum of "give us the station or we oppose the extension of the franchise."

Next Mr. Moran, E. W. Woods, Charles Lange, G. W. Herbert, and John R. Gott were appointed a committee to keep after the elevated and surface companies for needed improvements.

Previous to taking up the franchise matter George C. Sikes, former secretary of the council committee on local transportation, made an address on "Chicago's Transportation Problem," advocating, among other things, the unification of all roads, and the operation of elevated stations a mile apart only, and using the surface roads as feeders.

Unified Ownership the Solution.

"The obstacle to applying the remedy does not lie in engineering or operating difficulties," said Mr. Sikes, "but solely in the fact of the diversity of private ownership. The crying need is for unification. The merger should be carried to the point of uniting into one system all the elevated and surface lines. The principle of coördination could then be introduced, the elevated lines being used for long haul traffic and the surface lines made to serve as feeders. If the elevated traffic were bunched at a few stations it would be feasible to have moving stairways at these stations. Unification would mean large economies to the combined company and would prove of benefit in many ways from an operating point of view. From the public point of view unification is essential to satisfactory service.

"The most effective compelling force is the threat of municipal ownership. If the companies will not unify of their own accord the city should direct the process for them. It will take some time to carry out such a policy. The city should proceed to secure the necessary legislation to enable it to acquire by condemnation or otherwise the elevated lines, not for the purpose of municipal operation but with a view to promoting the unification that is so vital to proper service improvement."

LAUNCH NEW TROLLEY PROJECT

Oak Park and Austin are to be made about half as large again as they are at present if a corporation which was granted a license by the secretary of state yesterday succeeds in doing what it was organized to do.

The company is the Chicago and Proviso railway company, and is fathered by owners of real estate in the district between North and Chicago avenues in Oak Park and Austin. The incorporators are F. D. Kilmer, J. H. Swanson, H. L. Fearing, William A. Rawson, and N. C. Fisher. The capital stock is $5,000.

"Our plan is to build a line on Division street, from Seventy-second or Harlem avenue, at the west boundary of Oak Park, through Oak Park and Austin, and connect it with either the Lake street or Metropolitan elevated. The land north of Chicago avenue is practically vacant because of lack of transportation facilities."

HIS MORTGAGED MULE VS. HIS OWN AUTOMOBILE.

Kokomo, Ind., Oct. 23.—At Lafayette today, while riding to the speaker's stand, Mr. Taft had this note thrust into his hand by a well dressed man:

"Mr. Taft: Twelve years ago I drove a mortgaged mule to this city to hear Mr. Bryan speak. Today I came in my own automobile to hear you. Can you guess who I am going to vote for? E. V. D."

DEATH GETS 'COUGH DROP MAN'

DIES POOR; HAS FINE 'WAKE'

Ald. Kenna Promises Great Funeral to Noted Loop Character.

The "Cough Drop Man," as he was known to thousands of persons, was found dead yesterday morning in the doorway of the Volunteers' lodging house, 294 Clark street. Heart failure, it was decreed by a coroner's jury, was the cause of death.

Richard Connors was the name given the decedent when they christened him fifty years ago at Buffalo, N. Y. He had been a familiar character in Clark street for a quarter of a century, during which time he eked out an existence by peddling cough drops.

In the winter season he daily visited the large office buildings, selling his "incomparable" cough drops, and he got to be known to the tenants as the "cough drop man."

Among his customers were bankers, physicians, and the most succesful lawyers at the bar. So methodical was the "cough drop man" in his calls at the different buildings that his customers could set their clocks by his coming.

Although he died penniless, Connors will have a "swell funeral," to quote Ald. Michael Kenna. He was a member of the First Ward Democratic club, and the auxiliary, which was incorporated at Springfield only a week ago, will take charge of the funeral arrangements.

The "cough drop man" is the first member of the Kenna-Coughlin political organization to die who is to receive the benefits of the First ward auxiliary.

"We are going to give the 'cough drop man' as fine a sendoff as any man ever got," said Ald. Kenna.

"There will be flowers galore and a fine quartet will sing. A special train on the Illinois Central railroad will convey the remains to Mount Carmel cemetery Sunday morning at 11 o'clock."

DEFY GUNS; SCALE WALL; RUN

THEY CERTAINLY CAN RACE.

Vault Fences, Too, and Dozen Pursuers Never "Get a Shot."

Scaling the wall surrounding the stoneyard at the house of correction and leaping to the ground just as a dozen guards were about to pepper them with shotgun volleys, two prisoners made their escape, after leading their pursuers a merry chase through highways and byways on the southwest side.

Dodging around buildings, down alleys, over fences, and cutting through yards, the fugitives completely bewildered the bridewell guards who had been joined in the pursuit by detectives and patrolmen.

Crowds gathered to watch the chase but never a shot was fired, though the guards carried their shotguns at hair cock and the policemen ran with drawn revolvers in expectation of a sudden encounter.

After running half a mile, during which time the army of pursuers did not catch sight of the fleet ex-prisoners, the chase was abandoned.

Can Sprint as Well as Break Laws.

The men whose speed of foot won their freedom was William Kline, 28 years old, who was serving a sentence of one year on a charge of obtaining money by means of a confidence game, and Charles Malley, 20 years old, who was serving a term of six months for wire tapping. Kline had two months more to serve, while Malley's sentence was to have expired in two months and a half.

The daring escape of the prisoners was at once reported to Supt. John L. Whitman of the bridewell, and he immediately notified the Lawndale police and Capt. P. D. O'Brien of the detective bureau. Within half an hour after the flight of the men over a score of detectives were making a hunt for them and watching local terminals of railroads in the belief that the prisoners might attempt to board a train and leave the city.

Men Take Desperate Chance.

Kline and Malley have been working in the stone yard of the penal institution, repairing steam pipes of machines used in the quarry work for the last two weeks.

A few minutes before 9 o'clock Malley and Kline were sent to a workhouse in a remote part of the stone yard to get some tools needed to fix the pipes.

When about fifty feet from the workhouse the prisoners suddenly stripped themselves of their prison coats, and, in full view of Robert Odenbach, a guard who was on watch in the lookout tower of the institution, started to climb up the high stone wall surrounding the yard.

The prisoners were in the act of scaling the wall when the guards appeared on the scene. As the latter leveled their guns to shoot the men dropped from the top of the high wall.

Over a dozen of the guards gave chase and pursued the prisoners west in Twenty-sixth street to Sacramento avenue and then through yards and alleys for nearly a mile southwest of the bridewell. But they were no match for Malley and Kline as long distance runners.

A patrol wagon filled with policemen was hurried to the scene from the Lawndale station and a systematic search was conducted for over two hours, but no trace of the prisoners was found after they fled into the yard of a building near West Twenty-sixth street and Sacramento avenue.

GETS HER BEST FRIEND BACK.

Anna Meyer Writes to the Mayor and Is Given Pardon for Pet Dog.

After a day and a night in the dog pound among canines of low degree, "Collie," the "best friend" of Anna Meyer, 11 years old, was restored yesterday to the Meyer home, 67 Edgemont avenue, by direction of Mayor Busse. News of "Collie's" plight was conveyed to the mayor in a letter written after Anna had returned from school on Thursday and found that the family pet had been taken away by dog catchers.

The letter says in part:

"Dear Mr. Busse—My best friend is gone. The baby is crying for him since I came home from school. He is a dog. He was a pet to the baby. He used to eat at the table with her and was always near her. Please be so kind enough to give him back.

CONVICT DEALERS IN ALIEN WOMEN.

Two Juries in Federal Court Make Quick Work of Traffickers' Cases.

TO TRY MORE CHARGES.

Edward Klute Found Guilty of Keeping a Disorderly Rooming House.

The first signal victory in the crusade of the federal authorities against the white slave traffic was won yesterday through the conviction of Joseph Ochsner, 8918 Commercial avenue, and Joseph Keller, 9216 Harbor avenue, South Chicago. They were the first to come to trial of nearly thirty pending cases, the principals in which were arrested in the series of raids by federal secret service operatives and assistants of the district attorney's office last spring and summer.

The verdict in the case of Ochsner was returned sealed in Judge Bethea's court in the morning after four hours on Thursday had been spent in hearing the evidence. The jury found the verdict within an hour after the case had been given into its hands. Ochsner was charged with bringing an alien woman into the country for immoral purposes.

Following the return of the verdict, the case of Keller was taken up and about four hours were consumed in arguments. Keller was indicted on the charge of harboring an alien woman, Lizzie Movro, in a disorderly resort of which he was proprietor. But an hour was needed to get a jury. Several witnesses, including former inmates of the Keller resort, were examined and then the case was given to the jury at 3 o'clock. A verdict of guilty was returned within a half hour, the jury merely taking time for a vote and to sign their names. Motions for new trials were made and Judge Bethea will hear arguments on behalf of Ochsner next Monday, and for Keller a week later.

Other Cases to Be Pushed.

"It is a signal victory and the securing of convictions in the first two cases brought to trial should strike a blow at the white slave evil in Chicago that should cause a sudden exodus of this class of human vampires," declared District Attorney Sims last night.

"With this victory we will push the cases against other traffickers in women with the utmost dispatch. There will be no quarter and no continuances, and we shall ask the maximum penalty of five years in the penitentiary and a $5,000 fine for every conviction. Other cases will be taken up next week and the whole grist will be disposed of as fast as possible."

Edward Klute Found Guilty.

After ten ballots a jury in Judge Going's court returned a verdict finding Edward L. Klute guilty of keeping a disorderly rooming house above his saloon at 3159 Indiana avenue. The Klute case is the first of a long list of similar cases being pushed by the Douglas Neighborhood club.

Klute's fine may be $200 and costs, with a possible forfeiture of his license.

With the closing of the Klute case the case against E. J. Tracy, charged with keeping a disorderly house at 188 Thirty-fifth street, went to trial. The entire day was consumed in the selection of a jury and by evening eight jurors had been accepted as follows: Charles R. Clossen, 55 West Pensacola avenue; August Kohlsted, 1116 Wesley avenue; F. J. Pisternick, 284 Sedgwick street; F. Mahser, 5353 Michigan avenue; Allan Cooper, 12102 Lowe avenue; Benjamin F. Robinson, 1456 Park avenue; Henry Peters, 881 South Harding avenue; and Peter W. Stoffles, 1330 South Forty-second court.

Silverman Case on Trial.

Before Judge Newcomer, Assistant State's Attorney Oscar D. Olson prosecuted the same charge against Jacob Silverman, who owns the premises at 88-96 Thirty-first street.

The Rev. Morton Culver Hartzell and W. R. Rogers testified as to their knowledge of the practices in the building the ownership of which was proven by placing Attorney George Meyer for the defense on the witness stand.

Testimony introduced proved that Mrs. Bertha Stiles, one of the inmates of the building, pleaded guilty before Judge Scove! a short time ago and was fined $25 and costs for keeping a disorderly house.

The hearing was continued until Monday.

"BATHHOUSE JOHN" ON IDEALS.

Ald. Coughlin Will Explain Aims of the First Ward at Church Bazaar.

Ald. John J. Coughlin of the First ward will speak on "Ideals of the First Ward" at the bazaar for the benefit of St. John's Roman Catholic church, Clark and Eighteenth streets, next Wednesday evening. The bazaar will open Monday evening, and continue until Tuesday evening of the week following.

JURORS CLASH OVER VERDICT

STRONG EVIDENCE OF GUILT.

Prosecutor Is Determined to Have Peter Vassilas Tried Again.

Two men on a jury in Judge Kersten's court yesterday prevented the conviction of Peter Vassilas, an 18 year old Greek, who was tried under the new law providing a penitentiary sentence ranging from one to twenty years for the ill treatment of little girls.

Despite the fact that ten jurors had been convinced of the Greek's treatment of a 6 year old girl by the evidence introduced by the state, the wrangling in the jury room continued for seven hours, and late in the afternoon the vote stood 10 to 2 for conviction.

Judge Kersten put to each juror the query as to the possibility of reaching a harmonious verdict and upon receiving from each a negative reply discharged the jury.

By an agreement reached in the jury room, the only issue on which they did agree, it was decided that the names of the two contrary jurymen should not be divulged.

"We have agreed not to discuss the matter," said Robert Dobbs, foreman of the jury. "We stood 10 to 2. We will not tell who the two men were."

New Trial Will Be Insisted On.

Both the father and mother of the little girl were in court, and, discouraged by the mistrial, declared they would hardly care to submit their child again to the tortures of the witness stand. However, the state's attorney will undertake to try it again.

In the evening the father of the child was urged to continue to prosecute by Charles Virden, state agent for the visitation of children under the state bureau of charities. Mr. Virden spent the whole of yesterday in the court room and expressed the view that for the sake of the safety of little children in Illinois the case ought to be followed and prosecuted persistently.

Prosecutor Expresses His View.

"If ever a man should have been convicted, Vassilas is that man," said Assistant State's Attorney Robert Turney after the discharge of the jury. "There were two men on the jury who had but little conception of what constitutes right and wrong. The evidence was fairly presented to them and they had but one course to pursue—to return a verdict of guilty.

"The result of this case should call the attention of the people of the city to the menace of a great many of these Greek fruit stores and the allurements they hold out to children. It should warn them of the danger of allowing their children to frequent them, for they must now realize the difficulties in securing convictions."

Thirty of Vassilas' friends crowded forward when the jurors were brought into the room and were warned back from the rail by Judge Kersten. They remained until the jury was discharged and then laughingly surrounding Vassilas they left the building.

Strong Plea by Prosecutor.

A sharp denunciation of the defendant was made by the assistant state's attorney in his closing speech to the jurors.

"You have heard all of the evidence and I do not believe it is necessary to review that," he said. "If it were the daughter of the attorney for the defense who was so disgracefully treated there would be no jury to lay the case before. There would be no defendant. The little fruit store at Sheridan road and Briar place would be so riddled with bullets that it would appear as if a cyclone had swept over it.

"This evil is becoming more and more prevalent, and intelligent jurors should not be swept away by the eloquence of the lawyer for the defense, but should do their duty and place such men as Vassilas in the penitentiary."

WOMAN SPEEDS AUTO AWAY AFTER INJURING POLICEMAN.

Patrolman M. E. Flynn Run Over by Machine Said to Bear License Tag Issued to Leonard H. Wolf.

While escorting two women across Michigan avenue at Harrison street Policeman M. E. Flynn was struck and seriously injured last evening by a scorching automobile driven by a woman.

The woman did not even pause after knocking down and running over the policeman, but sped on south. The number of the automobile as taken by bystanders was 5,592. This is the number of a machine owned by Leonard H. Wolf, 5026 Grand boulevard.

Flynn was taken to St. Luke's hospital, where his wounds were dressed, and later to his home, 960 Sawyer avenue. Nothing could be learned at the Wolf residence concerning the accident.

Harry Dunn, who was indicted a year ago for stealing an automobile belonging to E. L. Shaw, 159 La Salle street, was turned over to the sheriff yesterday. Dunn, who is 18 years old and lives at 360 West Sixty-fifth street, escaped arrest at the time he was indicted, but he was taken into custody last Thursday.

GOLD PROMOTION CAUSES FAILURE?

Testimony in Suit Against A. O. Brown & Co. Sheds Light on Affairs.

CHANLER ASKS APPEAL.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE. New York, Oct. 23.

Testimony given in a suit against A. O. Brown & Co., in which Thomas G. Gaylord asserted a claim for $125,000 damages, indicated that the speculation which resulted in their failure last August, although it involved no record breaking transactions on the stock exchange, was a puny affair compared with their Santo Domingo gold scheme.

Brown & Co. Accused of Gold Scheme.

Mr. Gaylord alleged that the firm represented to him that their Santo Domingo gold company had prospects of more than $150,000,000,000 of gold, owning and expecting to own 256,000 acres, of which 150,000, at least, contained gold to the extent of $1,000,000 an acre.

The company was incorporated with a capital of $64,000,000. Gaylord alleged that the firm received $500,000 in cash for stock sold and that he was promised $75,000 within six months for his investment of $5,000 for 250 shares.

Richard Le Gallienne, the journalist and author, is seriously ill in a private sanitarium here, suffering from double pneumonia and jaundice. His condition was said tonight by his physicians to be critical.

Chanler Asks Right to Appeal Lunacy Case.

John Armstrong Chanler, through his guardian, Thomas T. Sherman, asked Justice Truax in the Supreme court today for permission to appeal from the decision of the court confirming the inquisition before commissioners in lunacy, in which a sheriff's jury adjudged him insane and unfit to take care of himself or his affairs. Chanler escaped from Bloomingdale asylum and went to Virginia, where he has since remained. He was declared sane in that state after an examination into his mental condition had been made.

Mr. Sherman told Justice Truax that he had interviewed Chanler in Virginia and had at his request made the motion for an appeal. Justice Truax reserved decision and gave counsel until next Monday to submit briefs.

Pathetic Incident in Fight Against Poverty.

Mrs. Susan Meade, 60 years old, is cornered at last. She is strong and healthy, and does washing for a living, and all her life she has made the fight against poverty and want. But today she admits that she is cornered, for the body of her granddaughter lies in the morgue and the undertaker refuses to bury it unless Mrs. Meade can pay $30.

Mrs. Meade and her daughter-in-law, the little girl's mother, are used to hard work and a lack of food. They do not mind that, but it seems to them that the end has now come as they sit in the little room which Mrs. Meade gets free for cleaning the halls of a tenement, caressing two little red ribbons and trying to think of some way in which they can raise the fortune, $30, that they need to keep the body of little Marian out of the potter's field.

Marian was killed by a trolley car Wednesday night as she was going to fetch milk for her baby brother, carrying in her hand the last 5 cent piece that the family possessed. The little red ribbons are the only mementos of her left in the home. The charitable societies have furnished enough food for the family to live on, but it is not food they need now. All the mother and the grandmother think of is some way in which they can provide for the burial of the little crushed body that lies in the morgue.

Russian Refugee's Case More Complex.

Proceedings in the case of Jan Janoff Pouren, the Russian accused by his government of being a fugitive from justice and defended by his friends on the ground that he is a political and not a criminal refugee from Russia, were carried on before two federal courts here today. In the United States court early in the day Judge Ward vacated an order which he had temporarily granted yesterday halting a reopened hearing before Commissioner Shields on the Russian government's proceedings to secure Pouren's extradition.

BUREAU HALTS "RAINMAKING."

Weather Chief Says Explosives Are Useless and Advises Against Use in Adirondacks.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 23.—Willis L. Moore, chief of the United States weather bureau at Washington, today advised the state forest, fish, and game commission against trying the so-called rainmaking experiments suggested as a possible aid in fighting the forest fires in the Adirondacks. He sent this telegram:

"Press dispatches state you have agreed to guarantee payment for exploding balloons with the hope of causing rain in the Adirondacks. The government has tested the power of explosives, both at the surface and in the air, and has found it useless. If experiments are made now they will be misleading, for rain is now falling in a number of states to the south and west of New York and there is a strong probability this rain will spread over New York and New England tomorrow."

A copy of the telegram was sent to the business men at Watertown, who suggested the experiment, and also to Commissioner Whipple, who is in the Adirondacks.

MEASURES PRESSURE OF BLOOD

New Instrument Supplies Need Long Felt by the Medical Profession—Simple in Its Use.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—An instrument long needed by the medical profession for measuring blood pressure has been invented by Dr. D. R. Hooker of Johns Hopkins university and J. A. Eyster of the University of Virginia.

The new instrument consists of a small glass box containing a rubber bag. This is attached to the wrist of the patient directly over the vein. The box is connected by a tube to a water manometer, to which is attached a rubber bulb.

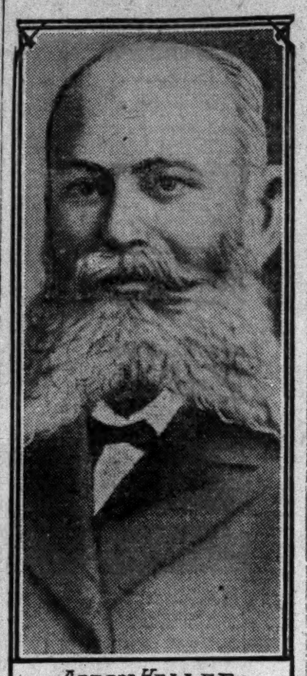

By squeezing this bulb pressure is exerted on the vein. When this vein is seen to collapse the pressure, which is transmitted to the manometer, may be read.

Concert in Honor of "Ghetto Poet."

AARON HELLER.

Aaron Heller, called the "Ghetto poet," will be given a testimonial concert tomorrow evening at Hull house. The concert will be in honor of Mr. Heller's fiftieth anniversary and will be given under the direction of the West Side Jewish Merchants' association, recently organized for the purpose of honoring people who have been content to work without recognition.

A feature of the concert will be the reading of poems written for the occasion by Jewish poets of America. Among those represented will be Morris Rosenfield of New York and David Greenburg, the Yiddish poet of Cincinnati. Mr. Heller's young son, Ralph, will read an original poem, and his daughter, Rebecca, will sing "The Living Cry for Bread." There will also be an elaborate musical and dramatic program, followed by a reception to Mr. Heller.

Eighteen years ago Mr. Heller fled from Russia and came to New York, a penniless refugee, for his property had been confiscated and his kin massacred. He had won distinction in his own land as a poet, and since becoming a citizen of America has earned honors through his contributions to the Jewish press of the world.

All of Mr. Heller's poems are written in Hebrew, and unfortunately he has never secured an interpreter who is able to catch the charm of his expressed thought. His best known poem, "Our Liberty Flag," was written as he sailed into the harbor of New York and realized he had forever escaped the persecutions of the czar.

Notwithstanding his poverty, Mr. Heller for years supported a widowed sister-in-law and five children. He lives at 562 West Polk street with his wife and seven children.

NINE HUNTERS LOST IN HILLS

SNOW STOPS RELIEF WORK.

Rescuers Barred by Great Drifts From Reaching Victims.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Nine persons, comprising three hunting parties, are lost in the mountains of western Colorado. It is feared all of them have perished. Among the number are three Denver society women.

The hunters have not been heard from since the terrific blizzard of last Saturday and Sunday, during which snow was piled up on the level from two and a half to eight feet in addition to mountainous drifts.

One party of Denver people, including Mr. and Mrs. Harry Huffman and Miss Minnie Gebhard, was due to arrive Monday, but have not been heard from at any of the camps within a radius of thirty miles of Rifle, in Routt county.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schroeder and two young men friends comprise another party who were somewhere in Flat Top mountains near Yampa. The snowfall was heavy in that part of the state and the party had no guide.

Death from Hunger Feared.

It has been impossible for anybody from Yampa to break through on snowshoes to carry further provisions, and if not dead they probably are suffering hunger.

From Grand Junction it is reported that J. P. Ferrier and son have been missing since the storm.

Two searching parties have gone from Palisade into the Sleepy Cat mountains looking for the families of J. D. Bradshaw and L. P. Post, a party believed to be lost near Meeker. The snow there is from five to eight feet deep with the thermometer 9 degrees below zero.

Missourians Cold; Fires Out.

St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 23.—With the thermometer at 31° this evening, following a day of heavy snowfall, the first of the season, thousands of St. Joseph people are shivering in unheated and unlighted houses as the result of the natural gas supply giving out. Most of the people were unprepared for the cold snap and there is much suffering.

Heavy Snow in Topeka.

Topeka, Kas., Oct. 23.—Snow has fallen almost constantly over this section of Kansas for the twelve hours ending this morning and the weather bureau then reported a fall of nearly four inches, much of which melted quickly. The temperature reached 33°. Trains were delayed.

JOHNSON MAY WIN TROLLEY WAR YET

NEW ELECTION POSSIBLE.

Bitter War Starts as to What Company Has the Right to Operate Lines.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—It is believed tonight that Mayor Johnson may yet win in the referendum election on the street railway franchise question.

While the returns show the franchise was defeated by a majority of 605, an examination of the voting machines used in sixty-six precincts scattered throughout the city show surprising errors that seem to be due either to ignorance of the voters or to the fact that the machines were out of order. In nearly all of the machine precincts it has been discovered that the total number of votes registered on the tally sheets are far ahead of the aggregate number of those voted. In several other cases the dials on the machines were placed wrong.

May Hold Another Election.

Attorneys have told Mayor Johnson that he can have all precincts where such errors are shown thrown out. As these precincts gave a majority of over 1,400 against the franchise, if they are thrown out Johnson will win by over 800.

It is thought by the mayor, however, that the courts will declare there has been no election and another will have to be held. The mayor stated this evening that if he thought he had been fairly defeated he would make no contest, but if it was clear to him that enough persons had been deprived of their votes through the machines to change the result he would push the fight to a finish.

Machines Didn't Follow Law.

There is still another mixup on which the mayor can base a contest in the courts. The Schmidt law provides specifically that in the referendum of franchises the voting machines shall read: "For the franchise" and "Against the franchise." The machines used yesterday did not comply with the law. Instead they bore the words "yes" and "no." If the courts hold the Schmidt law must be followed to the letter, Mayor Johnson says the vote from all the machine precincts must be thrown out.

In the meantime, a bitter war has been begun to determine just what company has a right to operate the street car lines of the city. Attorneys give different opinions and a legal fight is certain.

BONFIRE OUT OF HOODOO AUTO.

Californian to Burn Touring Car Obtained Against His Will as Election Celebration.

Santa Rosa, Cal., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Aggravated by misfortune that has attended his every effort to operate a red touring car obtained against his will, J. Luppold, a business man, has determined to rid himself of the hoodoo automobile by a baptism of fire. To that end he has obtained permission of the council for a bonfire to be held in the street on election night.

Luppold got the car on attachment proceedings and seems to have encountered more than his share of the ill luck that attends amateur chauffeurs.

As a means of ending his troubles and at the same time indulging in a celebration of the election, he has invited friends to witness the burning of the machine.

Says Investors Will Not Suffer.

Employes of the Deering branch of the International Harvesting company will not suffer from the alleged embezzlement by Mrs. Paula Malley, 20 years old, former confidential cashier and bookkeeper for the Deering Building and Loan association. The woman was indicted Wednesday for embezzling $7,700 of the corporation's funds, according to Attorney George S. Foster. Ernest B. Kendall, secretary, who employed Mrs. Malley, has reimbursed the loan company, it is said.

LETTERS BLOW TO MRS. HAINS

COERCION PLEA ATTACKED.

Defense Seeks to Disprove Confession Was Forced.

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Joseph A. Shay, associate counsel in the defense of Capt. Peter C. Hains and his brother, Thornton Jenkins Hains, charged with the murder of William E. Annis, gave out today two letters relating to Capt. Hains' wife written by Lieut. Andrus to the captain.

The letters became public just after John F. McIntyre, chief counsel for the brothers, and District Attorney Ira G. Darrin of Queens county had filed briefs in the Supreme court at Flushing on the demurrer to the murder indictment.

Seek to Disprove Coercion Plea.

Through the letters of Lieut. Andrus, who was stationed at Fort Hamilton while Capt. and Mrs. Hains were living there, the defense hopes to disprove Mrs. Hains' allegation that she was coerced into signing a statement reflecting on her own conduct. One communication reads:

"July 3, 1908.—My Dear Captain: I want you to know that this affair means a great deal to our little family. You, too, were the best friend we had for some time. It is hard to think the good time we had is at an end. I still hope for a reconciliation. ANDRUS."

Helped Mrs. Hains Leave Fort.

The second missive is:

"July 9, 1908.—My Dear Captain: I have been trying to see you to talk matters over with you. I wouldn't have you think me a fourflusher for the world, for such is not the case. I am entirely natural in the matter, although the affair really means more to Mrs. Andrus and myself than any one else at the post. You were our best friends there naturally and we wanted and still want to do what is right by you both.

"In the first place, it is a difficult position to be placed in. The woman was down, and a few bricks would have sent her to the gutter. I helped Mrs. Hains and her mother to leave Fort Hamilton and sent her trunk up town and personally conducted them both to the train and started them off.

Advised Woman to Reform.

"I think the advice I have given Mrs. Hains is good, and my only hope is that she will follow it. I have never sympathized with her in her wrongful acts, for it is beyond me to comprehend why a woman with three children would do such a thing. Remembering the passage in the bible which says: 'Let him that hath no sin cast the first stone,' I tried to cheer the poor woman and advised her to turn over a new leaf and make amends for the past by living a Christian life henceforth. I believe the whole affair has been a lesson to her, and that her good resolutions may never be violated.

"If I made any mistakes they were unintentional. I am tender hearted and truly sorry. I feel sorry for your condition. The only reason I put forth a helping hand was because Mrs. Hains was in such a pitiable condition and was such a poor, weak woman.

Tried to Warn Captain.

"You will remember that I tried to tell you at Hamilton that I talked to Mrs. Hains on several occasions concerning the way she was carrying on, never dreaming she was doing anything wrong, but merely acting in an indiscreet manner. Always your friend,

"ANDRUS."

Arguing from these letters, Mr. Shay will assert for the defense that Mrs. Hains must have admitted to Lieut. Andrus the truth of the confession she says she was compelled to sign at the point of a pistol, or else the lieutenant would not have written such letters.

Tug of War Starts Festival.

A lively tug of war between members of two lodge posts started a county fair and harvest festival given by Camp 7444 of the Modern Woodmen of America last night in their hall at Fifth avenue and St. Charles road, Maywood. The contest, which was between members of the Maywood camp and the West End camp, was won by the former after a fierce struggle.

CHILD'S DREADFUL SKIN TROUBLES

Had Sixty Boils when but Six Months Old—Was Annually Attacked by a Humor—It Looked Red Like a Scald and Spread Over Half Her Head—Both Troubles are Cured.

NO PRAISE TOO HIGH FOR THE CUTICURA REMEDIES

"When my little Vivian was about six months old, her papa had a boil on his forehead. At that time the child was covered with prickly heat and I suppose in scratching it, her own head became infected for it broke out in boils, one after another. She had about sixty in all and I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment which cured her of them entirely. Then, sometime later, her little foot got sore between the toes. Being afraid it was salt rheum, I spoke to our doctor. He gave me a powder which dried it up, but soon after it broke out behind her ears. They cracked half way around and the humor spread up on to her head until, on several occasions, it was nearly half covered. The humor looked like a scald, very red with a sticky, clear fluid coming from it. This occurred every year, I think it was toward the spring. I always bathed it with warm water and Cuticura Soap and applied Cuticura Ointment which never failed to heal it up. The last time it broke out was when she was six years old. It became so bad that I was discouraged. Then I procured a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent which soon cleared it out of her blood. I continued the use of Cuticura Soap and Ointment with the Resolvent until she was perfectly well. She is now about eight years old and has never been troubled in the last two years. We also find Cuticura Resolvent a good spring medicine and we are just giving the children Cuticura Resolvent Pills as a tonic. We do not think any one can praise Cuticura Remedies too highly." MEAN TO ABOLISH THE FIRECRACKER

Hearing Next Thursday to Find Advocates of Reform Prepared.

When the council committee on license resumes the hearing of arguments for a "sane Fourth" the attack against the small rolled paper firecracker will be almost as bitter as the contentions against the more powerful cannon cracker.

The advocates of a prohibitive ordinance were given but brief notice that they were to appear before the committee on Thursday and there was slight opportunity for preparations of statistics and arguments. With a week intervening before the next hearing, they say they will be prepared to combat and overcome all the reasoning of the commercial interests that are defending the noisy celebration.

The latter have attempted to stop the attack by a partial retreat in the nature of a compromise—an endeavor to save "the harmless little firecracker"—but with the foes of "Chinese noise" in their present mood even this form of explosive will be fought as a menace to the lives of children.

Opposes Half Way Measures.

Dr. George H. Simmons, editor of the Journal of the American Medical association, who is recognized as one of the national leaders in the "sane Fourth" movement, will be one of the speakers before the committee. In explaining his attitude he said:

"There should be no half way measures on the part of the council in efforts to do away with the awful carnage connected with the celebration of the Fourth of July. It should be absolutely prohibited, and any attempts to regulate, as proposed by the Foell-Thomson ordinances, or by that of Ald. Dunn, while they might possibly result in a little check, would practically amount to nothing.

"This idea of regulating has been attempted in many cities already, and in no instance has it resulted even in an improvement. Chicago has ordinances regulating the matter now, but they are not enforced and will not be. On the other hand, those cities which have adopted absolutely prohibitive measures, have succeeded in getting rid of the carnage.

"For instance, Baltimore city this year was practically free from accidents and injuries. There was one death and ten injured in outlying districts, and these were included in the statistics of the American Medical Associaton as in Baltimore, but were not in the jurisdiction of that city. Toledo, which has also adopted prohibitive measures, was free from death this year. There is no city that had more deaths than Chicago this year, and only one that had as many—viz.: Cleveland, which city has now wisely adopted prohibitive measures.

Vast Majority Favor Drastic Law.

"We ought to have prohibitive legislation, because the people want it. I say without fear of contradiction that 900 out of every 1,000 fathers and mothers of the city of Chicago when the Fourth of July comes would rejoice if all fireworks, big and little, were prohibited in this city.

"The loss by fire as a direct result of our present method of celebrating the Fourth would certainly offset the gain that accrues to the commercial interests that are today opposing the proposed legislation."

Dr. W. A. Evans, commissioner of health, was fully as emphatic in his declarations that the defenders of fireworks will have their time fully occupied next Thursday.

"We only had an hour's notice of the last meeting of the committee," he said, "but we shall be prepared to present our indictments of the fireworks nuisance in all its phases next time.

"Any family physician will say that he has more cases of children's burns and wounds from the ordinary firecracker than from the more powerful explosives, and he, or any pathologist, will tell you that tetanus can result from an exceedingly small wound."

Hospitals Confirm Doctors.

Internal industries among the hospitals of the city bore out the statements of these two leaders with a surprising emphasis.

"On the last Fourth we treated at least six cases of burns from the small firecrackers for tetanus, and there were numerous other cases brought to us for treatment that were due to what is called the harmless cracker," said Dr. John B. Colwell of the county hospital.

"There are more wounds due to the common firecracker than any other form of explosive," said Dr. W. E. Krieger of the West Side Emergency hospital. "Last July one of our most serious cases was that of a 4 year old girl whose little finger was blown off by a two inch firecracker. Tetanus is more likely from such a wound than from the laceration done by a cannon cracker."

"Tetanus frequently develops from a small wound, perhaps not more than a quarter of an inch long," said Warden Charles J. Hoppel of the county hospital. "That is the dangerous sort of case, for the trouble has taken strong hold before antitoxin is applied."

Arguing Firearms Ordinance.

Judge Barnes of the Superior court heard during the day preliminary arguments upon the application of an association of dealers in firearms for an injunction restraining the city from enforcing its ordinances requiring permits for the ownership of deadly weapons and licenses for the sale of them. The attorneys for the petitioners presented their contentions, and Emil C. Wetten, assistant corporation counsel, had begun his argument for the validity of the ordinance when Judge Barnes adjourned court with a statement that he would resume the hearing some day next week.

Nine men charged with selling liquor without a license, three of them Chinese owners of a "chop suey" restaurant, were arraigned yesterday before Judge Walker in Hyde Park court.

The other defendants were Louis and Thomas Roepke, who occupy a shanty at the foot of Forty-ninth street, next to the Kenwood Boat club; Carl Johnson, who rents rowboats at One Hundred and Fourth street and Lake Calumet; Edward Fraser, who lives at One Hundred and Eleventh street and Lake Calumet; and John Dick and Michael Gunther, who live at Kensington avenue and Lake Calumet.

Judge Walker continued the cases until Nov. 11 to await a Supreme court decision which has an important bearing on the jurisdiction of the Municipal court in cases of this kind.

URGES SMALL PARK REFORMS

SEES GOOD IN RECREATION.

Social Directors for the Indoor Amusements Are Suggested.

Better indoor management of the small parks was urged yesterday by Miss Julia Lathrop in an address on small parks before a department of the Chicago Woman's club.

"There is a crying need for men and women who will direct the indoor amusements in the field houses," said Miss Lathrop. "This work is not at present efficiently done. When a dance is given for young people there is no one there to direct it properly. The mistake comes not in giving the dance but in not having it properly equipped with hosts. There should be a corps of people with a talent for directing and attracting the young, such as there are in the settlement houses. Under those circumstances a dance becomes a factor for good. Recreation of the right sort is what makes life worth while."

Convict Reformed by Reading.

She repeated the same thing conversationally later to a group of convinced club members, who are concerning themselves to see that her suggestions become facts.

"Leisure pleasantly spent prevents crime," she said, "and if you teach children of the city to enjoy themselves wholesomely you have taken an important measure toward doing away with all manner of evil practice.

"There was a boy once who grew up without any care or training. He was prosecuted first for petty thefts, and when he became a man was sent to the penitentiary for burglary. While he was there he learned to read. When he was freed he bade good-by to his caretakers and said simply, 'I don't think I ever shall come back here. I don't think I shall want to steal again. I find reading such a wonderful pleasure. I know it will keep me straight.'

Personal Attention Needed.

LUMAN C. MANN OUT ON BONDS.

Prisoner Indicted on Charge of Strangling Woman to Death Released on Security Given by Parents.

On $25,000 bonds furnished by his parents Luman C. Mann, under indictment on a charge of strangling Mrs. Frances Gilmor Thompson to death, was released from custody yesterday by Judge Kersten.

Mann, guarded by two deputy sheriffs, was taken from his cell and conducted to the courtroom. He threw his arms about his mother and kissed her several times, and then shook hands with his father.

"Well, my boy, how do you feel?" inquired the father, as he grasped his son's hand.

"All right, pa. I am glad, though, that you got me out," the young man replied.

Boys Released from Schools.

Seventeen boys who have been serving terms in the John Worthy school and St. Mary's school at Feehanville were ordered released by Judge Pinckney in the juvenile court yesterday. The boys since being sent to the juvenile schools have been on their good behavior and their release was suggested by the superintendents.

Tonsiline Cures Smokers' Sore Throat

Habitual smokers are often troubled with inflammation of the throat. This is called smokers' sore throat, and frequently becomes so painful that food is swallowed with difficulty.

If nothing is done to prevent it, the disease may develop into cancer of the throat. Hundreds of men have had to resort to surgical operations because of it—many have died as a result of it.

If you have smokers' sore throat, don't disregard it. It may be gone tomorrow but it will surely return again and in a more severe form. It is Nature's danger signal.

TONSILINE will positively cure you and keep the throat clean and healthy, preventing the consequences of neglect. TONSILINE is the result of years of careful study and practical work, and is made from drugs used for years in the cure of throat diseases. TONSILINE destroys the poison germs of all kinds of sore throat and cleanses away painful and poisonous ulceration. It soothes and heals the tender mouth and throat membranes and removes the cause of throat trouble.

We know from long experience it will do all we claim for it.

RESULT OF VIGILANCE.

Find Cases in Councilman's Family Physician Is Said to Have Suppressed.

A campaign against an epidemic of scarlet fever which has been discovered in the southwestern part of the city will be outlined and instituted today at a conference between Health Commissioner W. A. Evans and Ald. Downey and Golombiewski of the Twenty-ninth ward, where most of the cases have been found.

As an initial step preparations were made yesterday by health officials to file suits against Dr. J. G. Wachowski, 1858 West Forty-eighth street, charging failure to report cases and take proper precautions prescribed under the city ordinances. Dr. Wachowski attended three children of Ald. Golombiewski who were stricken and, it is charged, reported none of the cases until one child died.

As in West Pullman, the clergy will be appealed to in order that the people may be warned as extensively as possible by persons whom they know and respect. The present situation, however, is complicated by the inability of a considerable percentage of the adults of the ward to comprehend the English language, and the priests of the Polish, Lithuanian, and Slavonic Catholic churches will be asked to warn their congregations as they come to the various masses.

Alderman Offers Interpreters.

At the conference today Ald. Golombiewski will offer to provide competent interpreters, speaking at least three languages and well known in the ward, to accompany medical inspectors in their rounds, and will himself exert his influence to instruct his constituents.

Discovery of the epidemic before it reached the magnitude of a plague threatening the entire city is credited to the system of health inspection installed in the schools this fall under the direction of Dr. Heman Spalding. First reports of the presence of the disease were made by Dr. S. L. Friduss, one of the inspectors, and in all thirty-three cases have been discovered by him. The expense of the entire inspection system, Dr. Spalding said, would be justified by these instances of its efficacy.

City Council Not in Danger.

A report that the city council as a body had been subjected to danger of contagion by Ald. Golombiewski's presence on Oct. 5 was denied last night by the alderman.

"At that time, I am informed by physicians, neither the fever nor symptoms of it had appeared in my house," he said. "There was no possibility of carrying infection."

5 CENTS AND TWO BAD DEBTS E. M. SEYMOUR'S ONLY ASSETS

Five cents car fare, a debt owing to him by a man who is dead, and another small debt owing him by a man in jail, are the total assets of E. M. Seymour, a lawyer with offices in the Ashland block, according to his testimony in the debtor's court yesterday. Seymour was cited on a judgment against him for $30, held by Attorney Leonard Goodwin. Seymour testified further that he had been ill during the last three years, that his wife is supporting him, and that he has been at the point of death eleven times.

"My illness began three years ago, when I was taken with a severe attack of heart disease during the trial of a case in the Superior court," Seymour said.

"Have you a watch?" he was asked.

"Yes, I have one," witness replied, showing a dollar watch. "It's worth about 15 cents."

"Have you any money?"

"Five cents—car fare."

"Are there any debts owing you?"

"Yes, a man who died recently owes me a small account, and I have an account against another man in jail."

"Weren't you married recently?"

"Yes."

"Has your wife any property?"

"Yes, she has some. She's been supporting me since we were married."

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS.

REVIEWS OF CURRENT PUBLICATIONS BY ELIA W. PEATTIE.

LUMINOUS INCANDESCENCE OF CHESTERTON'S ESSAYS CALLS FOR SMOKED GLASSES.

Two Volumes of His Lucubrations Which Strain Indulgence to the Breaking Point.

IT is a fine thing for a reviewer to be able to look the world in the face and say that she has read every book she has reviewed. But what, pray, is she to do when Mr. Gilbert K. Chesterton's "ORTHODOXY" comes—I had almost said "comes to bat"? (John Lane company, publishers.) Mr. Chesterton was once luminous, but he has become offensively incandescent. He has reached such a degree of luminosity that no one can regard him without smoked glasses. Mr. Chesterton says he has become orthodox—and proves it in most heterodox fashion. He says he hates a paradox, and makes a paradox to prove it. He insists that he is in earnest, and does so in 300 pages of mad and furious jocularity. Really, the exuberance of Mr. Chesterton has become formidable. He has too many ideas, and he gets too many side lights on each one. The reader feels as if he were in one of those glittering and bewildering shops where cut glass is sold, and where the walls and shelves are of mirrors, and where little electric bulbs sprout out like violets in May.

A few sentences from the book may serve instead of a review:

A clergyman may be apparently as useless as a cat, but he is also as fascinating, for there must be some strange reason for his existence.

Thinking in isolation and with pride ends in being an idiot. Every man who will not have softening of the heart must at last have softening of the brain.

The pragmatist tells a man to think what he must and never mind the Absolute. But precisely one of the things he must think is the Absolute. This philosophy, indeed, is a kind of verbal paradox. Pragmatism is a matter of human needs; and one of the first of human needs is to be something more than a pragmatist.

At any street corner we may meet a man who utters the frantic and blasphemous statement that he may be wrong. Every day one comes across somebody who says that of course his view may not be the right one. Of course his view must be the right one, or it is not his view. We are on the road to producing a race of men too mentally modest to believe in the multiplication table. We are in danger of seeing philosophers who doubt the law of gravity as being a mere fancy of their own. Scoffers of old time were too proud to be convinced; but these are too humble to be convinced. The meek do inherit the earth; but the modern skeptics are too meek even to claim their inheritance.

The man who cannot believe his senses, and the man who cannot believe anything else, are both insane, but their insanity is proved not by any error in their argument, but by the manifest mistake of their whole lives. They have both locked themselves up in two boxes, painted inside with the sun and stars; they are both unable to get out, the one into the health and happiness of heaven, the other even into the health and happiness of the earth.

There, you can see for yourself what it is like! It is so clever as to be almost stupefying; so conclusive that it actually causes a reaction; so fascinating that a revulsion is inevitable. Mr. Chesterton is quite often right, but he irritates almost as much as if he were wrong.

"Imagination," he says, "does not breed insanity. Exactly what does breed insanity is reason. Poets do not go mad; but chess players do. Mathematicians go mad, and cashiers; but creative artists seldom."

He says nothing about essayists—or reviewers. He does not say why one gets the Chesterton habit, or suggest that the cure for that is "the hair o' the dog that bit him." But if he had said that last thing he would have been quite infallibly right. I have, I confess, had the Chesterton habit, but in spite of certain fine sincerities in this gratuitous chanting of the apostle's creed which Mr. Chesterton has given us, I feel that I cannot voluntarily encounter many times more Mr. Chesterton's cinematograph movement.

John Lane also publishes "ALL THINGS CONSIDERED," by Mr. Chesterton, the same being a number of semi-detached essays on pleasant subjects. Perhaps the best of these is "A Dead Poet," a prose threnody for Francis Thompson. There really are a number of excellent little essays in the book, such, for example, as "On Running After One's Hat," which has a touch of Lamb; and "On the Cryptic and the Elliptic," which has more than a touch of Shaw. A brief essay by Chesterton has the advantage over a sustained theme, because discursiveness is rendered much more difficult.

It is a long way from the uncontrolled vivacities of Mr. Chesterton to the gravid essays of Mr. Frederic Harrison, the positivist. In "REALITIES AND IDEALS (Macmillan company), Mr. Harrison has set forth with considerable austerity his convictions and hopes. He shows himself a critic of life and of his own times, and arraigns not only many of our customs and manners, but our aspirations as well. Upon such matters as "Church Disestablishment," "Marriage Law Contracts," and matters relating to education, he writes with the gentle dogmatism of a man who believes he holds an open mind, yet who accumulates immovable convictions. Mr. Harrison does not pretend to be amusing. "My business is to teach, to moralize, and reform, or to attempt to do so; and I am so intent on the matter in hand that I just blurt it straight out and do not pretend to be what in the provinces they call a 'stylist.'"

It is in this essay—"Literature of Today"—that he gives a clew to his attitude toward modern life. In answer to his own question "Why is good literature disappearing?" he says:

The causes are complex, subtle, deep, and wide. They are—the increase of material appliances for vulgarising life, and making it a scramble for good things. Next comes the vast multiplicity of numbers tending to uniformity, crushing individuality, flattening us out into a crowd of equal units. Lastly, comes the sudden spread of a low and mechanical instruction. Life has become infinitely faster, easier, machine run; less spontaneous, less jovial, far uglier. The huge agglomeration of similar beings in our abnormal cities weighs upon the sense of personal independence. The mass of fellow citizens, at once our equals and our rivals, is too overwhelming to struggle against. We all have to conform to the fashion of the day. We dare not cut our coats or our collars to please ourselves; we are swept away by the irresistible torrent of "what everybody does now." The wonderful spread of what is absurdly called education, but which is really nothing but the mechanical instrument of real culture, instruction in "the three R's," has evoked an endless supply of vapid, dull stuff. Fifty times the print is poured out that was done two or three generations ago. The bulk of it is of the same washy type. That type by its mere volume, sets the "fashion." To ignore the type is to be "old fashioned"; to defy it is to be a crank. And so the literary currency is debased.

I'm not sure that this is good writing—if it comes to a mere matter of writing—which Mr. Harrison is giving us, and while he endeavors to turn aside criticism by an admission of his impulse to "blurt it right out," it may be questioned if a man really has a right to speak of a literary vice in such an accent as to suborn us into thinking it a virtue. Mr. Harrison seems to forget that a large part of the printing done is for purposes of publicity or of light amusement, and that it does not pretend to be literature any more than a pair of jeans assumes to be a court robe.

His statistics are so loose that he may be able to forgive an equal looseness on the part of others, and so not resent the retort that if fifty times the amount of printing is done as was done two or three generations ago there are fifty times as many people who are reading. They have been placed in a position to read by the "mechanical education," and while their grandfathers never thought of having a book in the house, they must have at least the current literature—the daily, weekly, and monthly periodicals. To be sure, the grandfathen might have exceeded them in quiet wisdom, in spiritual cultivation, and in mellow reflection, but his gaze must always have turned inward or backward. We of the public schools, we shallow, amiable, courageous, expectant folk, who read everything, hear everything, scramble on, hoping, laughing, fretting, praying—a little—we are really the "present time." Why rail against us? We are a vast, supple, effective machine. We are the genius of progress. We may offend the cautious—grieve the judicious. We bear much the same relation to the day which Mr. Harrison admires as a dirigible airship does to a fine and stately old coach.

As yet we have not got the airship well subordinated to our will. It comes to a disaster often. And we remember, once in a while, how safe and respectable was that lumbering coach! But after all it can convenience us no longer. It is the airship for us, and with each disaster our aspirations but increase. All we can do for Mr. Harrison is to ask him to stop weeping over the decadence of the stage coach and foster his optimism by taking a litttle ride in our aeroplane.

ELIA W. PEATTIE.

It is hard to characterize William Farquhar Payson's "BARRY GORDON" (McClure) in a few words. Were one to say it is the story of excesses, of wild oats, it would take a long explanation to make it evident that the book is not repulsive, even before it is known that in the end the man will win the victory over his inherited slavery to drink. Barry Gordon's father, after an accident, drank himself to death for a mere whim, as had some of his forbears before him. Barry, boy that he is, just ready to enter college, resolves that the thirst shall not conquer him. But chance, that seems sometimes to juggle circumstances for the destruction of the weak, interposes and the boy shames himself and the girl he loves.

After a prolonged trip into untraveled regions he thinks he has conquered and returns, this time persuading the girl to marry him. Again comes a journey, demanded by another, though, and then the final victory when temptation is strongest. The girl might have been the restraining influence in the man's life, but she did not see her mission; at the same time she demanded of the man what he could not do alone. And the man struggled on until he won after many a slip. The story is filled with the misdirected energy of youth. A little less brusqueness on the author's part might have made the purpose more intelligible, and surely would have made the story seem more worth while.

Without explanation, apology, or preamble Mr. W. C. Morrow wrecks a little party of Americans upon some South Sea island. He then proceeds to get them interested in the local government and the people. The party, nothing loath to do all that is desired, attempt to civilize and Christianize the barbarians, and even fall in love with the dusky maids, who are beautiful, even to their American discriminating taste despite the darkness of their hue. Of course, the story is fanciful, but it is not ill told, and those who particularly like the variety may be amused by it.

CRAWFORD'S WORKMANSHIP MAKES HIS NOVELS SATISFACTORY READING.

"The Diva's Ruby," a Case in Point, Skillfully Developed Romance of Real Interest.

WHEN Marion Crawford writes a story the reader always leaves it satisfied. An epoch has passed in the life of his characters and all matters of controversy are settled apparently and the reader from his own imagination fills up the future as he will. And so when we finished "The Prima Donna" last winter we were satisfied that Fair Margaret would wed the Greek Logotheti, and if we wondered how such a union could bear the lapse of years we merely pondered over it and hazarded now one guess and now another, but we were satisfied that Margaret's career as a heroine was completed. So it is with mingled surprise and delight to find that Mr. Crawford's new novel, "THE DIVA'S RUBY" (Macmillan Co.) takes up Margaret just where we left her and plays with our doubts and imaginations until again we leave the book satisfied.

When Van Torp received the news that Margaret had engaged herself to the Greek he straightway decided that such was not to be and with characteristic promptness set to work to prevent this by outgeneraling the Greek. Logotheti was not assured of Margaret's sincerity in the engagement. Margaret herself doubted her wisdom, and her friends disapproved, so that the American, though he finds little overt help, encounters no opposition.

Into this story sedate, conventional, woven about our old friends, is a gleam of the orient in a white armed courageous maid who is seeking to find the man who enriched himself from her knowledge and then deserted her. With her she brings many beautiful rubies. Her story linked with that of Margaret and her friends, suggests that old saying the world's a small place after all.

It would be impossible not to enjoy thoroughly every word Mr. Crawford writes. He knows human nature so well and yet but seldom burdens his book with philosophical disquisitions. His characters are so interesting because they are real, because they keep the even tenor of their way, not too good to hesitate or stumble, not too depraved to be incapable of an impulse for good. The plot is not tormentingly interesting nor is there any attempt to produce that reality whose frankness while it hypnotizes makes one want to put the book down in disgust. Men and women are not secure from faults, but one's philosophic adolescence is over when he can accept the fact and not bruit the discovery so that all who run can read.

REVIEWS OF CURRENT PUBLICATIONS BY ELIA W. PEATTIE.

MR. RUHL'S DESCRIPTION OF PLACES AND PEOPLE IN SOUTH AMERICA.

Across Europe in a Motor Boat. Hungary and the Hungarians. A Book About Yorkshire.

THERE are no more engaging books put forth by the best publishing houses of today than those about countries. Whether these are sober studies of a country or some part of it or the story of a trip, they are all highly readable. The authors are for the most part men with a charm of vocabulary and a verve in their writing belonging only to those of wide experience. They are men who understand the give and take of cosmopolite amenities. They are men steeped in the best things that modern city life offers. And, more than all else, they are men who are "looking modern life in the face and getting a grip on it."

Of whatever country these men write they are as conscious of its industrial aspects as any man of a consulate. On the literary side this consciousness wholly justifies itself in the material for comparison it affords, and is, of course, a part of the modern temperament. Without temperament a man cannot write attractively of countries. Old Xenophon had it, Marco Polo had it, and because a cosmopolitan school of writers of today have it they are enriching in a wonderful measure our appreciation of peoples and people. In exercising this highly developed endowment they are picturing for us countries and kingdoms, cities and localities, with an ease and charm highly gratifying.

Mr. Arthur Ruhl, the author of "THE OTHER AMERICANS" (Scribner's), is tingling to his finger tips with appreciation of and feeling for the life of today, wherever lived, especially town life. The subtitle of his book is "The Cities, the Countries, and Especially the People of South America." Foremost among these people are the English who make "Chile's nitrate fields a British colony," the Germans who in Brazil set up a "Little Germany," and the Italian farmers of Argentina. The Spanish color that Mr. Ruhl finds in these "Latin countries," whether in the cities or on the Andean eyebrows of Peru and in Hermit Bolivia, and the anachronisms in the way of natives he is interested in in a polite way, but to him "the sight of a business man is exhilarating," and South America seems to have had some men and has some today whose work is highly stimulating to the imagination.

In spite of himself, perhaps, for he says he is concerned "not so much with statistics as with people and how they feel and think," Mr. Ruhl has written a book which is an exaltation of, almost a paean to, modern enterprise and business ability. Everywhere throughout South America a new day is dawning because of an enormous business quickening. "Through all the old channels, in fact, begins to flow the stream of modern utilitarian life which such communities must accept today if they would go forward instead of back." "Out of defeat and bitterness . . . . the new Peru is springing, the industrial Peru of sugar and silver, cotton and copper. It is the new Peru which set up a gold standard, which is drilling oil wells, making roads, studying subsoil irrigation, building faster steamships, bringing millions of dollars of American capital to its Andean mines."

In the chapter "The City of Good Airs" we have a superlatively executed picture of what the hub and heart of any great industrial country may be and is in Argentina. "People came to Argentina to make money and they made it, and having done that they flock to the capital to spend it as they can." In this chapter especially Mr. Ruhl has made "The Other Americans" seem very real, and this great million peopled city south of the equator so full of amusement, light, strident glitter, vigor, sophistication, and comfort, a city that any appreciative traveler would enjoy sojourning in. No other pen than that of a man who has a grip on the swiftest civilization in the world and one that can make the perennials of the curb as colorful as a prairie in springtime could do what Mr. Ruhl's pen has done in describing Buenos Aires. He has caught the overtones of the city and fixed them for us—the wonderful atmosphere of a city full of continental glitter and lavish display, yet having just beyond the city roofs the wholesome pampa.

Mr. Ruhl's book is a serious study of a trip. "ACROSS EUROPE IN A MOTOR BOAT" (Appleton's), by Mr. Henry Rowland, sometime surgeon, naval militiaman on the U. S. A. hospital ship Relief, cruising through seven seas, is the latest story of the adventures of "Three Men in a Boat" and is not so serious as highly entertaining. The author's varied training and experience—perhaps even that of bringing home a transport load of insane from the Philippines—his keen enjoyment of life, his superb resourcefulness, are all reflected in his description of this long and precarious voyage. The American flag went across Europe for the first time on a wet trail flying from a thirty-five foot petroleum "love of a boat."

The second title to the book is "A Chronicle of the Adventures of the Motor Boat Beaver in a Voyage of Nearly Seven Thousand Miles Through Europe by Way of the Seine, the Rhine, the Danube, and the Black Sea." The fourth character in the book is one "Dan"—a two cylinder, sixteen horse power motor weighing a ton and a half, so called because of Danish construction. From the time the Beaver was launched in London and demoralized traffic in the Thames for a time, to its crossing the English channel, ascending the Seine, locking across the country for miles in canals, finally to follow the Danube down 1,700 miles of its course and to go to pieces in a frightful storm on the Black Sea, Dan is a facetiously foremost personality.

When, after delays and many gives and takes of amenities with the motor, the author gets into the less well known countries, he gives us fine passages of description. But if Dan is neglected, the brute comes up again as big as life—much too big, in fact, for the lovelike little Beaver. The continuous account of his behavior dramatized would make delightful comedy.

The illustrations of the book are real drawings. They are interesting and unusual, sometimes being like nothing so much as a cross between Doré and Pelxotto. The clouds of the landscape are all like yeast loaves rising rapidly and about to roll out of the pan, reminding one somehow of Stevenson's "Child's Garden," and the water, even in the smoothest canals, is black and brigandish looking.

One of Mr. Rowland's finest descriptive passages was inspired by a view on the Danube in Hungary, a little below Budapest. Such a passage whets one's appetite for such a book as "HUNGARY AND THE HUNGARIANS," by W. B. Foster Bovill, if one has not already felt an interest in the country of Kossuth, Jokai, Kubelik, Emil Reich, Lehar, and, latest, Molnar. The book meets the current interest in Hungary fully half way and is compact. In fact, the author has attempted to touch upon every phase of Hungarian life and history and give the local color of its many races of people and of nearly every corner of its territory. The result is a large canvas unevenly treated. The splendid swing of the first part of the book becomes a careless gait in places after the middle is past. The style where it is weak loses from the introduction of trivial personal details.

The picture of "The Glowing Past" of a people who make patriotism a fetich is fine and good. Through all the disasters of Turkish occupation and Austrian overlordship patriotism was a dynamic force, and the heritage of nationality was passed on until 1848, when old things passed away and a new era began, an era in which genius in things political and musical and industrial has shone with ever brightening fires. "Politics runs in the blood in Hungary and blood runs into politics." "Hungary is the home of the born musician," and from the "Hungarian Rhapsodies" to the "Merry Widow" waltz Hungarian music has greatly influenced the world.

Hungary is an independent and sovereign state, but the person of its ruler, its king, connects it with Austria. There was the permanent union of the two nations for certain international purposes, but there is no Austro-Hungarian territory as the geographies carelessly lead us to believe and no Austro-Hungarian citizens. But Hungary is "overpolitical" perhaps for no other reason than because of this marriage of two utterly diverse temperaments. Just now she seems rapidly coming into her own, the day of the minor nation. The Magyars are the kernel or center of the nation. In them burns a passionate love of race, so much so that much of the old exists with the riotously new of the great and beautiful Budapest. The old love of brilliant costume survives, and this fact is well brought out by the illustrations in color of this book, put out by McClure in America—a dignified book in its appearance.

And there is another book on Yorkshire, an exhaustive book, too—perhaps the most so of any of the several that lately have appeared. It is uniform in style with that about Hungary and is put out by the same house. "A BOOK ABOUT YORKSHIRE," by J. S. Fletcher, begins with the county in the old days and quickly brings us forward to the days of huge factories and wealth, to the "developed" Yorkshire, a great modern fabric of industry and enterprise reared on the old wolds close by the birthplace of English poetry, the remains of old castles which once fairly incrusted the ground, the home of old minsters and of the most picturesque religious houses in all England.

"It is one of the greatest charms of Yorkshire that, while industrialism and the modern spirit have spread so rapidly in her borders, she yet retains a multitudinous array of antiquities to bind her to the ages which have gone." Here are churches famous for their architecture, the country houses of dukes and earls, rich in art treasures and historic associations; here are legends and folk lore and here is still the native character. "The Yorkshire man possesses certain qualities and characteristics which distinguish him from all other Englishmen," and it is fairly well known to the world that the Yorkshire character is decidedly queer.

In Yorkshire is of all the old world worldly, but in the town where Mary Queen of Scots spent fourteen years in captivity are now the largest steel and iron works in the world—"the world's workshop for knives, scissors, razors, surgical instruments, armor plate, rails, saws," and hundreds of other things of iron and steel.

WHEN GENOA DOMINATED THE MEDITERRANEAN. GOLDEN AGE OF COMMERCE.

City is Striving to Get Back Its Prestige—Mr. Carden's Descriptive Book.

"THE CITY OF GENOA," by Robert Carden, A. R. I., B. A., is a book which will be welcomed by study classes and by all those who have adopted the latest methods in studying or teaching history. The author has turned his back on present day life in the city of Genoa to sketch its history, especially as seen in its principal buildings—its historic churches and palaces. He seems to have done this deliberately, perhaps because he is a scholar and loves the old Italian manuscripts and records, but from the few words he gives to the present, one must infer that he knows the most intimate life of the city of today, which, "like the fabled Phœnix, arises once more from her own ashes."

Today, he says, Genoa is one of the two most important harbors in the Mediterranean. The other is Marseilles. High built galleons "have been succeeded by the stately liners of the great shipping companies. . . . The Italy of today is striving to make her great harbor the most important in the Mediterranean, and she bids fair to succeed. . . . Genoa is the focus for all eyes that are looking to the development of modern commercial enterprise."

Whether the author describes churches or palaces, or gives historic sketches, he is constantly describing Genoa's commercial and warlike enterprises of the past. The commercial spirit of the Genoese enveloped art as it did everything else in the republic. No chapter in the book is more interesting than that on "The Harbor and Its Associations." The port of Genoa has been famous for more than 700 years. A merchant nobility succeeded feudal lords, and Genoa, against her rival, Venice, was for a period mistress of the seas. "Genoa, the Superb," the "Door of Italy," Genoa, the Distracted, held for years a strategic position in European politics. She got enormous revenues from rich colonies and from trade. Kings of every nation made alliances with one or the other of the warring factions in her midst, and were perpetually draining her of her opulence to help them in their wars. The restless republic was filled with continuous dissensions, and the perpetual mutations in the government brought inevitable decline and final decay.

The author says nothing of the things that attract the flying tourist of today, things that are unique of their kind. Neither does he consider the city as the place whose sole function was to give Columbus to the world. Genoa as a proud and splendid power and its more or less romantic history are what he pictures. He gives a long list of the sources, all in Italian, from which he got the story. The book is well printed, with twelve illustrations in color and twenty other illustrations. It is put out under the imprint of James Pott & Co., New York.

"CATCH WORDS OF PATRIOTISM" is another compilation made by Wallace Rice for A. C. McClurg & Co. In the form of a year book he has selected a patriotic sentiment in prose or verse said or written by men from the colonial fathers to such moderns as Gov. Hughes, James S. Sherman, William H. Taft, William McKinley, and Grover Cleveland. Mr. Rice himself appears in four different places, but President Roosevelt is limited to one quotation.

Two hundred little friendly sentiments have been gathered into a pretty little book "CATCHWORDS OF FRIENDSHIP" (A. C. McClurg & Co.). It makes a neat gift.

By Meredith Nicholson

Author of The HOUSE of a THOUSAND CANDLES

"Meredith Nicholson, whose books always attain the success of being numbered among the season's six best sellers, has made his new book, 'The Little Brown Jug at Kildare,' the best of his fiction. The comedy scenes are delightfully droll.

"Dashing tale that it is," says the Chicago Journal, "it is sure to attain to the popularity of the remark made by the Governor of North Carolina to the Governor of South Carolina."

SCRIBNER'S 1909 MAGAZINE

A Novel by Thomas Nelson Page

The serial story of the year will be a novel by Thomas Nelson Page. Under the title of "John Marvel, Assistant," he has told with simplicity, in the first person, the manly story of a young fellow's struggle of life, exalting to the place of hero in it the man whose unconscious altruism and practical Christianity came to be the admiration and chief help of the narrator.

A Notable Series by Mrs. Wharton

Mrs. Wharton will have during the coming year in the Magazine a series of seven or eight stories under the title "Tales of Men." Not a woman appears in any of them, thought of course indirect evidence of the eternal feminine is not wanting. In connection with Mrs. Wharton's powers and brilliant achievements in psychological analysis, this is one of the most interesting prospects in the literature of the year.

Letters of General Sherman to His Wife and Family

A most important addition to the biography of the great war leaders. Besides the picture of the man, his outspoken judgment and often remarkable prophecies, they supplement formal history in most valuable and interesting ways.

A Midnight Cabinet Conference

Which made an eventful decision at one of the crucial periods of the Civil War is described in extracts from an unpublished diary of Secretary Salmon P. Chase; and additional light will be thrown on his relations with Lincoln by other passages from the same source and from unpublished letters.

The Great Public Schools of England

A notable article on the great public schools of England—Eton, Harrow Rugby and Winchester—by Everett T. Tomlinson. The comparisons of English and American conditions are especially interesting.

A Journey About Europe with F. Hopkinson Smith

"The Parthenon by Way of Pappendrecht." Delightful and entertaining impressions of travel in search of the picturesque through Holland, France, England, Italy and Greece. The illustrations will be from Mr. Smith's own sketches and paintings and will include reproductions in both black-and-white and color.

Important Golf Paper by H. J. Whigham

An article on the progress of Golf in the last few years, covering especially the radical improvements made and contemplated in the laying out of American links. Illustrated by the former champion and well-known authority.

Agnes Laut's Long Canoe Journey Down the Saskatchewan

Miss Agnes Laut will tell the story of her long canoe voyage down this great river of the Northwest. It will be illustrated by a remarkable collection of photographs.

England from the American Point of View

Three papers on England which will excite much discussion by an anonymous author. They deal with English characteristics, the traits that have made the race the virtual rulers of a fifth of the world; social aspects of England; and with the importance the English attach to "Sport," and the question whether this is a strength or weakness. We are frank and outspoken and show great keenness of observation.

Papers on Practical Business Questions of Vital Interest

Contributed by Professor Laughlin, Chief of the Department of Economics in the University of Chicago, one of the foremost of American authorities. Among the topics treated will be "Government vs. Bank Issues," "Valuation of Railways," "Social Settlements," "Socialism," "Abolition of Poverty."

Short Fiction

There will be stories by

RICHARD HARDING DAVIS — JESSE LYNCH WILLIAMS
F. HOPKINSON SMITH — MAARTEN MAARTENS
ARTHUR COSSLETT SMITH — NELSON LLOYD
MARY R. S. ANDREWS — MARY HEATON VORSE
JAMES B. CONNOLLY — VICTOR HENDERSON
KATHERINE HOLLAND BROWN — EMERSON TAYLOR
MRS. W. K. CLIFFORD — GEORGIA WOOD PANGBORN
HELEN HAINES

A Notable Group of Descriptive Articles

Vernon Lee's picturesque "An English Writer's Notes on England" (several papers); a series of French sketches, written by Madame Huard, the wife of the well-known French artist, illustrated by her husband; two out-of-the-way studies by Robert Shackleton on "The Principality of Reuss" and some of the less known parts of the Valley of the Moselle; and E. C. Peixotto's "Unfrequented Chateaux Near Fontainebleau," illustrated by the artist.

Artistic Features of the Year

Every number will contain the work of notable illustrators and painters, and the same high standard of color work that has given the Magazine an international reputation will be maintained.

Theodore Roosevelt's Trip to Africa

The exclusive magazine and book rights in whatever Mr. Roosevelt may write about his forthcoming African Hunting Trip have been secured by Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons. Not only lovers of outdoor life, but all who appreciate the literature of adventure will be eagerly interested in these articles. They will appear in SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE, possibly one or two articles in the later issues of 1909. A fuller announcement of the project is reserved.

8 COMPLETE SHORT STORIES

THESE eight stories are probably as striking a group as has ever been brought together in a magazine. They touch life in its most interesting and varied phases; they range in character from comedy to tragedy, from dashing romance of olden times to our more sophisticated but not less interesting city life of to-day and the rugged outdoor life of the West. There are love stories, stories of humor, of child life, of action and of development. And there is no story in the number that is not compellingly interesting.

NOTABLE ARTICLES

Down to Patagonia

After almost a year of wandering among strange nomadic peoples in Patagonia and Terra del Fuego, Mr. CHARLES W. FURLONG has just returned to civilization. This expedition, made entirely in the interests of HARPER'S MAGAZINE, has proved most fruitful in its results. In his first article Mr. FURLONG describes his journey as far south as Ushuaia, the southernmost town in the world.

Mr. Abbey's Shakespeare Pictures

EDWIN A. ABBEY, R. A., has made for the November HARPER'S a remarkable group of pictures illustrating Shakespeare's "Coriolanus." They are accompanied by a brilliant essay on this play.

The Trend of Chemical Invention

The Great River of France

The Seine is to France what the Rhine is to Germany. Few know the real beauties of its course. Miss MARIE VAN VORST has made a journey down the river and writes most charmingly of the delights of this inland voyage. Wonderful pictures by Andre Castaigne.

A Damascus Night's Entertainment

NORMAN DUNCAN gives a most vivid picture of a night in Damascus. The true feeling of the East pervades this article, and the stories told are marvels of narration.

The Art of Horatio Walker

The City of Industry

CHARLES H. WHITE has made for HARPER'S a remarkable group of etchings of scenes in Pittsburg, which he accompanies by an entertaining article on his experiences in this most American of our cities.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1908.

HAS anybody been firing bombs? Stop it at once!—Chief Shippy.

IT is essential that the ordinance regulating Fourth of July celebrations be safe and sane also.

CONGRESS will be asked to appropriate $63,000,000 for the improvement of the Ohio river. To buy water for it?

HAVING had a successful season in the large cities of the country, the Cubs and Sox are now touring the provinces.

IF it is all the same to the Hon. Tom Johnson the people of Cleveland would rather pay a 5 cent fare and get a 5 cent service.

MR. CHANLER—pronounced Shanler, remember—will have to ask his friend, Col. Watterson, to be a little more particular in editing those political dispatches from New York before publishing them in his paper. He suspects the republicans of sending some of them.

AT the present moment, however, it appears to be the Chicago and Oak Park depressed.

FOREST fires in southern Illinois indicate the extent to which that section of the state has gone dry.

AT Alton the Mississippi is reported to be lower than at any time within twenty years, and unless the river rises soon the city's intake will be sucking air instead of water. The emergency seems to call for a want ad in THE TRIBUNE.

PEERLESS LEADER BRYAN expects to be elected, of course, but he asks the country to take notice that the republicans are making arrangements to buy up the people and defeat him.

THE governor of Tennessee offers a reward of $10,000 for the arrest and conviction of the night riders. He might try a little martial law as a further discourager.

ST. LOUIS' registration has increased 29,000 since 1904. The grand jury has succeeded in accounting for a portion of this increase.

TO TELL the story of Peoria's present greatness requires a special issue of the Peoria Herald-Transcript containing ninety-eight pages, profusely illustrated. We shall have to take it on trust. We haven't time to read it all. Life is short, and the election is only ten days away.

FURTHERMORE, if the republicans "buy the election" this year Mr. Bryan will be compelled to run again in 1912 to vindicate himself.

THE first amendment to the Oklahoma constitution should be one prescribing the proper amount and distribution of rainfall within the boundaries of the state. The present flood has created a great deal of dissatisfaction.

IT is too late now for the summer gardens to reopen, but they made a mistake in closing so soon.

PARIS, Ill., has closed its public schools on account of a lack of water, the lake that supplies the city having gone dry by a large majority, and the waters of its river Seine being presumably unfit for use.

A SOLDIER in the regular army has been dishonorably discharged for eating a green apple contrary to orders. He hasn't even a corps now.

WILLIAM A. HANG, a Chinaman who served in the civil war and has been a voter in New York for thirty years, finds himself deprived of his citizenship by a recent act of congress which declares all Chinamen aliens. William is a man without a country, but there seems to be no help for him.

DOWN in St. Louis they call them pray-as-you-enter cars.

MR. BRYAN ADOPTS A WALL STREET PHRASE.

It has been pointed out that Mr. Bryan in the exigencies of the campaign is making free use of the Wall street phrase, "the Roosevelt panic."

This is an interesting specimen of Mr. Bryan's alleged "sincerity." Mr. Bryan last fall was not talking about the Roosevelt panic. He was garnering all the credit he could by siding with Mr. Roosevelt. Thus in October, 1907, in a public address, he said:

> I notice that one of the officers of the bank that closed its doors yesterday attributed it to the president. That is not the reason. Don't blame the sheriff, but blame the horse thief. Don't blame the officials who make and enforce the laws, but blame the criminals who make the laws necessary. Blame the unscrupulous financiers who have piled up predatory wealth. They have exploited a whole nation.

Mr. Bryan has had no reason to change his mind as to the responsibility for the "panic." But he has evidently decided that votes are to be made by a change of tune. This may be "peerless" leading. It looks more like demagogy.

BANK DEPOSIT GUARANTY.

J. Dwight Funk of Bloomington said in yesterday's TRIBUNE that the first thing which troubled him when he started to reason out the bank deposit guaranty project was its source.

> While it looked mighty good to me, I could not help but remember it was offered by the same man who tried to work off on the American people a whole lot of other silver plated political novelties, like the 16 to 1 automatic cash coiner and the simple little device for the regulation and control of railroads whereby Uncle Sam was to be the general superintendent of the big trunk lines, and all the small roads were to be parceled out to be run by the various states.

This is a thought that must have occured to and influenced others. Could a man who manifestly would have been a dangerous guide in the past suddenly become a safe one?

If a farmer were asked to try some new fangled kind of wheat with an alleged fabulous yield, he would say:

> But just wait a little and let the experiment station try it out first. If it is a good thing they will find it out for a certainty, and if it is not, then no harm will be done to the country as a whole or to the private fortunes of the wheat growers. That is what experiment stations are for—to try it out first and save the people from making big mistakes.

Oklahoma is an experiment station for the bank deposit guaranty proposition. It should be given a full trial there in fair and foul financial weather before being tried on the whole banking system of the country.

Today's TRIBUNE has a report of an investigation by its special correspondent of the condition of affairs at the Oklahoma experiment station. He says the guaranty system has "not been in operation long enough for any definite results." There is, however, a manifest tendency to multiply small and unsafe banks.

> Startling instances are being related where men who are without either the moral or business qualifications commonly and rightly considered to be necessary for the management of business institutions are securing bank charters, and on the strength of the guaranty act are making successful headway in acquiring deposits.

The correspondent says further that the guaranty scheme—

> Unquestionably eliminates the value of experience and of established character as factors in attracting deposits.

Had not voters better wait a year or more to see whether the Oklahoma experiment will not come to a disastrous end instead of voting for Mr. Bryan because he recommends it?

A HARBOR PLAN.

Where shall Chicago's new harbor be located? That is a question which many are asking. Some are trying to answer it. The water color painting submitted by the Furniture Exposition company makes a pretty picture. The accompanying plans and specifications are attractive in their outlines of future commercial activity in lake and river. The suggestions may be helpful toward the solution of one of the important problems which confront the city.

But "Chicago is finding herself," in the phrase of a writer in a current magazine. In some particulars the past tense is more nearly accurate. Chicago has so far found herself as to look askance at any proposition which contemplates the turning over to any private individuals enterprises of such magnitude and importance as the new harbor for the city must be. In this particular, at least, the plan just presented to the mayor for his examination is fundamentally defective.

THE SANE FOURTH.

The charter authorizes the city council to "regulate and restrain" the use of firecrackers and fireworks. To restrain means "to keep within limits." It does not mean "to prohibit." So the council has not at this time the power to pass a measure that would go to the heart of the Fourth of July evil. The commissioner of health says that the common firecracker is dangerous as well as noisy, but the council cannot say that it shall not be used.

The general assembly can give the council whatever needful power it now lacks. It can amend the cities and villages act so as to authorize municipalities to forbid the sale and use of anything from the common firecracker up which they may consider a menace to life or limb. That legislation ought to be asked for when the legislature meets next January by the clubs that are working for a sane Fourth of July in Chicago. There should be no opposition to a measure which would enable every intelligent and humane municipality to protect its citizens in person and property. The conflagration which once destroyed most of Portland, Me., was started by a small and "harmless" firecracker.

The council should not wait for the grant of plenary power, but should pass the most restrictive and restraining ordinance that the law permits. It should regulate as rigidly as possible the use of the devices which have made the Fourth of July a day of death and danger. It can make the Fourth much less insane and bloody than it has been, and it should take the necessary action without delay.

THREE CENT FARES.

The board of supervising engineers has told what becomes of the nickel which the Chicago street car passenger hands the conductor. It appears that 2.24 cents of it go to employés for wages, while maintenance and operation claim 1.14 cents. These two items alone are enough to show that the 3 cent fare which Mayor Tom Johnson has been fighting for in Cleveland would be impossible in Chicago. That is, it would be impossible unless the use of transfers were abolished. Out of a total of 618,300,000 passengers carried 246,000,000 rode on transfers. If there had been none, and every passenger had paid 3 cents, the gross revenues would have been what they were with transfers and the 5 cent fare. But neither this nor any other community will surrender transfer privileges for the sake of a slightly lower rate of fare.

Street car conditions in Cleveland differ from those in Chicago in some important particulars. The average ride there, for instance, is much shorter and less expensive than it is here. But it seems to have been impossible in the Ohio city to give good service for a 3 cent fare. The number of cars in use was reduced so as to cut down operating expenses. The result showed that the people of Cleveland are more attached to good service than to the 3 cent fare. Naturally they would like to have both, but if either has to be given up it must be the latter.

The street car contest in Chicago was mainly one for good service. It was lacking and the people demanded it. Now they have it in some parts of the city and soon will have it in all. In addition to that, the city is getting forty-one-hundredths of a cent out of every nickel paid to the companies. It was well for the city that the people refused to take Mayor Tom Johnson as "guide, philosopher, and friend." Had they done so their traction affairs would be today in as muddled and unsatisfactory a condition as are those of Cleveland.

DISTRUST, THE PARAMOUNT ISSUE

The reasons for the prevalent distrust of Mr. Bryan founded upon his free silver campaign and his government ownership proposal are strengthened by the planks of the democratic platform, which show most clearly the evidence of Mr. Bryan's handiwork.

Concerning the deposit guaranty, THE TRIBUNE has expressed itself at length. It is a typical Bryan remedy. As a competent critic declares, "the only way in which this guaranty plan could possibly inspire confidence is by leading people to believe that the plan furnishes security, which it does not, in fact, furnish—in other words, by deceiving the American people into a false sense of security. The plan can prove successful only by operating as a gigantic bluff that will never be called."

Mr. Bryan's discussion of and claims for this remedy during the campaign have revealed to business men his persistent want of knowledge of financial conditions, his persistent superficiality, his instinct for the easy, showy, plausible formula, the cure all. It has kept alive the fear of him.

The same characteristics are revealed even more clearly in the trust plank of the democratic platform. The first thing to be said of it is that it won't work; and the second is that if it did work it would work the paralysis of American industry.

Nothing in Mr. Bryan's career, not even free silver, is more eloquent testimony than this plank of the dangerous irresponsibility of his thinking on economic questions. The proposal to compel every manufacturing or trading corporation to take out a license when it controls 25 per cent of the product it deals in cannot sustain the slightest analysis. To make such a law effectual would involve the maintenance of such a system of surveillance over business as would stagger the people with its cost. No responsible public man, especially no man who really believes in confining the interference of government in private affairs within reasonable limits, would seriously propose such a plan. Equally preposterous is his proposal to prohibit any corporation from controlling more than 50 per cent "of the total amount of any product consumed in the United States." Here, indeed, is a proposal consistent with Mr. Bryan's perpetually asserted Jeffersonianism! Here is encouragement for the enterprise of the individual! What if a corporation or concern by superior skill, foresight, economy, and energy passed Mr. Bryan's arbitrary dead line? Mr. Bryan would do something, but Mr. Bryan has not said what.

Mr. Bryan's passion for ratios and percentages is easily accounted for. It is not evidence of a definite and practical mind, for upon examination his plans don't work out. It is evidence, on the contrary, of a vague and superficial mind, a mind given to the most dangerous generalization—and it is evidence of Mr. Bryan's political instinct. He knows, subconsciously, perhaps, that figures look practical, look solid and dependable. And he is right as to thousands of voters who do not think any farther than he does.

But, to business men and investors, to practical men in all walks of life, Mr. Bryan's readiness to seize upon and passionately advocate the most visionary and impracticable of measures is a source of grave alarm and will continue to be while Mr. Bryan looms upon the political horizon.

IN A MINOR KEY.

Modern Variation.

"One touch of nature faking," observed Prof. Sinnick, "makes the whole world an Ananias club."

Out of His Reach.

"At last!" exulted the ex-bicyclist as he soared aloft in his aeroplane. "I've found a public highway now where there is no sprinkling cart demon to come along and turn it into a sea of mud!"

His Safety Valve.

Morse had perfected his telegraphic alphabet.

"The dots are all right," said his friends, "but why do you have so many long dashes?"

"Those dashes," he responded, "represent the language I used while I was struggling with the pesky thing, and I had to employ so many of them that I just let them stay and worked 'em up into the alphabet."

Which explanation clears up a long standing mystery.

Size of the World.

"Who are those young men you are making so much fuss over?" asked the man who had just arrived from Australia.

"They are the famous Cubs, the baseball champions of the world," said the native. "You've heard of the Cubs, of course?"

"Never before. But that reminds me. You have heard of Mbiimba Goosh, haven't you?"

"No; who is he?"

The Chugs.

Mrs. Chugwater—"Josiah, why do they talk of putting 'ginger' into the campaign?"

Mr. Chugwater—"To give it a hot finish. I wish you wouldn't bother me when I'm shaving."

Copyright: 1908: By the Brentwood company, all rights reserved.

ARCHBISHOP FARLEY of New York, it is asserted, on returning to this country the other day after a prolonged trip abroad, displayed among his most highly prized treasures a fine speciment of an Irish shillalah, which has been described as "an automatic adjuster of friendly differences." But few are aware that the shillalah owes its name to the fact that the finest specimens thereof used to be grown in the pleasant groves of trees that formerly flourished in the barony of Shillalegh, in County Wicklow.

The best shillalah must be a root sprung sapling, for one taken from the branches of a full grown tree would lack the necessary toughness. Being trimmed and "brought to hand," the young stick undergoes preparatory discipline by being placed in the chimney to season, thus becoming early acclimatized to the hot work in store for it. This part of the curriculum finished, it is rubbed until completely saturated with oil, after which it is securely wrapped in a stout sheet of brown paper and buried in a convenient hotbed.

At this stage of its development it is an object of unceasing watchfulness on the part of its proprietor, who, to forestall any detrimental warp in the object of his care, visits it daily, correcting any youthful tendency to depart from a straight line and ultimately securing as straight a bit of timber as heart could desire. Having found it handy in balance and of something like the "correct knockdown weight," its owner is generally satisfied, and now only awaits an introduction to the stirring scenes in which its efficacy is to be demonstrated. Some go one step further and give their shillalah a polish with black lead, a sign that its aim in life is a high one and that more than common achievements are expected of it.

The shillalah is more often used on friends than on foes, and while it generally leaves broken heads is said to rarely cause any lasting resentment. Of course, it is necessary to be born of the soil in order to understand this. For to a foreigner it is altogether incomprehensible how a dint with a shillalah can be regarded as a true redintegratio amoris.

It is odd that Count Rudolph Khevenhuller should as Austrian ambassador at Paris be called upon once again to play an important rôle in the eastern question. For it was his sensational interview with President Fallieres in behalf of Emperor Francis Joseph, and as the bearer of a personal letter from the latter, that first made known to the world at large the determination of Austria to annex the provinces of Herzegovina and Bosnia.

Twenty-three years ago the count, celebrated for his good looks as "le beau Rudi," was Austrian minister plenipotentiary at Belgrade, where he was among the most devoted admirers of Queen Natalie, then in the full heyday of her remarkable beauty. It may be remembered that Servia, enraged by the action of Prince Alexander of Bulgaria in uniting the Turkish province of Eastern Roumelia to his principality, declared war upon him. Prince Alexander responded by marching into Servia at the head of a Bulgarian army, inflicting a most ignominious defeat upon Milan and the Servians in the battle of Slivnitza and at Pirot.

With the Servian army utterly routed and in full flight, the way was open for the victors to Belgrade, when suddenly Count Rudolph Khevenhuller appeared at night in the camp of Prince Alexander, and in the name of Austria demanded that the Bulgars should not only cease their advance, but retire, intimating that the alternative would be a war with Austria. Alexander and his army were obliged to yield and to withdraw from Servia, and only too late did they discover that Count Khevenhuller had acted in the matter on his own responsibility and without instructions from Vienna, yielding, it is said, to the irresistible entreaties of Queen Natalie, who realized that the Obrenovitch dynasty would not survive a Bulgarian occupation of Belgrade and that she would lose her crown and her only son the throne to which he was destined to succeed.

That Count Khevenhuller's action in the matter did not meet with approval at Vienna is well known, and he was recalled and placed for several years on the retired list. He is now an elderly man, in the neighborhood of 70, though still handsome, and when he meets in Parisian society Queen Natalie, who has now become enormously fat and rather coarse looking, he must wonder sometimes at his former infatuation.

Few people are aware that it is largely owing to a service which the count rendered as a young secretary of embassy to the duchess of Galliera at the time of the Franco-German war that on her death she bequeathed to the emperor of Austria her superb mansion, which is now the headquarters of the Austrian mission on the banks of the Seine. On the eve of the siege of Paris, when Prince Metternich had left the capital along with other foreign ambassadors, Count Rudolph Khevenhuller remained in charge of the Austrian embassy as chargé d'affaires.

On the day before the egress from the capital was finally blocked by the German besieging army, the duchess of Galliera came to see him and begged him to take charge of a small box of valuables, on the ground that she was afraid to be robbed of them if she attempted to carry them out of the city, and that they would be equally in danger if they remained in her Parisian mansion; in one word, that they would be safer in his care at the Austrian embassay than anywhere else that she could think of. The count readily acceded to her wish, and the box in question was brought to him that same afternoon by a confidential servant of the duchess.

The count for the sake of safety placed it underneath his bed, so that in the event of anything happening, such as his being forced by night to leave the building, in consequence of its being struck by a German shell or fired by the Parisian mob, he might have it within his reach. He kept it there throughout the entire siege, and the sanguinary commune insurrection which resulted in the destruction of so much life and property in Paris.

When everything quieted down the count restored the case to the duchess, who thereupon remarked, "Do you know, my dear count, what that case contained?" and on expressing his ignorance he was informed that its contents consisted of bonds and stocks to the tune of $40,000,000. The count always declared that he was grateful to her for having kept him in ignorance of the value of this treasure until he restored it to her, as his repose would have been sadly disturbed throughout the siege and the commune if he had felt that he was sleeping on a fortune of $40,000,000.

The duchess never made much fuss about the matter, nor did the count. But when she died it was found that she had bequeathed her superb mansion in the Rue de Varnnes, with its vast grounds, to the emperor of Austria personally, with a view to its use as his embassy on the banks of the Seine. Under the circumstances it is particularly fitting that it should now be occupied, as ambassador, by this self same Count Rudolph Khevenhuller.

It is a palace rather than a house, and one of the most majestic of the Faubourg St. Germain. It was designed by the famous architect Cartonne for the Marechal Montmorency, and was owned in turn by the prince of Monaco, by the duc de Valentinois, by the great Talleyrand, by Princess Adelaide of Orleans, the amazingly clever sister and political adviser of King Louis Philippe, and by Gen. Eugene Cavaignac when president of the republic after the overthrow of Louis Philippe. In the early days of the reign of Napoleon III. it was purchased by the duc de Galliera.

HIS MORTGAGED MULE VS. HIS OWN AUTOMOBILE.

Kokomo, Ind., Oct. 23.—At Lafayette today, while riding to the speaker's stand, Mr. Taft had this note thrust into his hand by a well dressed man:

"Mr. Taft: Twelve years ago I drove a mortgaged mule to this city to hear Mr. Bryan speak. Today I came in my own automobile to hear you. Can you guess who I am going to vote for? E. V. D."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

[Communications for this department must not exceed 200 words.—Ed. Tribune.]

WANTS POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS.

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 21.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Allow me to congratulate THE TRIBUNE on the able manner in which it advocates a postal savings bank. Within my recollection the common people have lost millions for want of a national postal savings bank. We don't want any Bryan's dream of wildcat currency. I for one lost plenty in "wildcat" money in my younger days under democratic state money rule. Whoever heard of the democrats being in favor of enacting a decent law on money matters?

When we have seated honest "Bill" Taft in the presidential chair let us hope that congress will pass a proper postal savings bank law, one for the benefit of and to help make thrifty, industrious, and loyal common people. For they are what Uncle Sam has to depend on when he gets into trouble. I believe if there had been such a law the 1907 panic would not have extended far beyond the Wall street gamblers. J. M. A.

SUGGESTION TO THOMAS ORCHESTRA.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 22.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Being a classical music enthusiast, particularly an admirer of Beethoven, I avail myself of any opportunity to get intellectually into communication with those great old composers, and I think the Thomas orchestra is the only one which can comply with my wishes. However, before I decide to hear a concert I like to know what compositions are going to be played, but in vain I look for an announcement of the program in the advertisements of the Thomas orchestra in THE TRIBUNE. Would it not be a proper way to add to the general advertisement of the mentioned orchestra a few more words announcing the program? In writing this it is not on my own impulse alone, but many of my friends (also real music fans) suggest the same. OTTO BUSS.

WANTS FACTS TOLD TO VOTERS.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—It seems to me that the only way to influence voters in this quiet campaign would be to adhere strictly to facts. I believe that Mr. Taft has the best of the argument and on that account probably will be elected, but when a United States senator distorts facts and makes statements that any child can refute he surely does not serve his cause and only does harm.

There is no question but that in 1896 the silver interest contributed heavily to Mr. Bryan's campaign, but just as surely did other interests make heavy contributions on the other side. Both sides accept and are compelled to accept contributions from interested sources where they can get them. Another statement is that the 1892 panic is chargeable to the democratic party. No man who has a reputation to lose should say this. It is an obvious misstatement, and as such loses votes rather than gains them. Last, but not least, comes the tariff question. This time it is a promise of what is to come, a double tariff, something brand new for this country. To me this promise is simply a dodge to catch gulls, as similar promises have been made before. The standpatters have for years settled the tariff business and probably will in future, after Mr. Taft has been elected.

A senator soaring high in circles unapproachable by common mortals should beware of losing touch with the plain people. They have more sense than he is liable to give them credit for. JOHN LAMBERT.

SUGGESTIONS TO THEATER MANAGERS.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Referring to the letter headed "Bad Manners of Theatergoers" in your issue of this date, I beg to say that this nuisance of a few late comers being allowed to disturb an entire audience is a matter that only the manager of the theater can stop, as those who contribute to this abuse are so thick skinned that no amount of criticism will reach them.

If the managers of the theaters will take this matter in hand, announce an hour for ringing up (and see that the curtain goes up on time), and then allow no one to be seated until the curtain is dropped again, they will quickly find that people will lose their excuses for being late and be in their seats when the curtain rises.

The greatest good for the greatest number is the only rule to observe under any conditions, and there is no reason why it should not be applied in handling theater audiences. A THEATERGOER.

WANTS THE TARIFF REDUCED.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The republicans when they passed the Dingley bill admitted its schedules were too high, but said they would be reduced through reciprocity treaties, and afterwards they defeated the treaties. In 1904 we were told that the friends of the tariff must revise it, and when the friends were retained in power they said if the people had wanted revision they would have elected the democrats. If the party is victorious this election, in spite of the business depression, it will probably be claimed again that the people want no tariff reduction.

The wage cost of a ton of paper is $2.50, the tariff $6. The wage cost of a ton of pig iron is about 42 cents, in England 73 cents, the duty $4. These are examples of the many extortionate rates. They create enormous fortunes for the trust magnates, who put up the campaign funds. Mr. Roosevelt has not prosecuted one of those tariff created trusts because it would hurt his party.

The abolition of those extortionate taxes would greatly increase the purchasing power of the people and cause a big demand for labor. Yet we are told this would destroy our present great prosperity. F. L.

BEEF TRUST AND CATTLE RAISERS.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In your issue of Oct. 21 Willis J. Abbot closes his article with a comparison of the prices of beefsteak in 1896 and at the present time in the following words:

"Beefsteak that was 16 cents a pound then now costs 24 cents. But the cattle raiser does not get the benefit of this increase. The beef trust, protected by the republican tariff system, gets it all."

According to your issue of Oct. 21, 1896, the beef trust was paying for the best cattle $4.20 per 100 lbs. On Oct. 21, 1908, according to your issue of that date (in which Mr. Abbot's letter appeared), the beef trust was paying for the best cattle $7.60 per 100 pounds, an advance of $3.40 per 100 pounds. According to your market reports on the two dates mentioned the beef trust is paying 33 1-3 per cent more for the cheaper grades of native cows and heifers and 66 2-3 per cent more for the better grades, making an average increase of 50 per cent for native cows and heifers.

Mr. Abbot says beefsteak has increased from 16 cents a pound then (1896) to 24 cents a pound now, which is exactly 50 per cent. Freight rates have not increased so as to give the railroads their proportion of the increased profits, so it necessarily follows the cattle raiser is getting more than his share. Mr. Abbot's false and reckless statements are an insult to the intelligence of readers of THE TRIBUNE. J. S. BAILEY.

DEPOSIT GUARANTY IN NEW YORK.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I notice that Senator Beveridge in his Chicago speech stated that bank deposit guaranty was tried out in New York state seventy-nine years ago and proved a failure. The senator is in error.

In 1829 the New York legislature enacted a law providing a safety fund, to be contributed by the banks exclusively for the purpose of securing their circulating notes, which constituted the paper money of that period. Subsequently the courts of the state ruled that the peculiar language of the statute made it cover all the liabilities of banks, of course including deposits. Naturally this added burden, wholly unintended by the legislature, overtaxed the limited guaranty fund and rendered necessary the repeal of the law.

Your correspondent, "Raymond," has verified this explanation in THE TRIBUNE, and the official records confirm it. Whether deposit guaranty is a wise or unwise proposition, it should be treated fairly. It is rather late in the campaign for such a mistake in regard to a historical fact of importance to be repeated by a speaker of the intelligence of Senator Beveridge. A. B. NETTLETON.

No Cant in Taft's Speeches.

Canned speeches are the rage in the American political campaign, the candidates committing them to that interminable memory called the phonograph. Each cans all he can, but Taft scores every time, for the simple reason that there is not an atom of cant in his speeches, while Bryan's are full of it.—Yokohama Advertiser.

NEWS OF THE THEATERS

Thomas Orchestra.

Patience may be a virtue, but it is coming precious close to ceasing to be one where Orchestra hall is concerned. Chicago is left absolutely helpless as regards concert rooms since Central Music hall was razed and since the Auditorium ceased to be available for musical entertainments. There is only Music hall for smaller recitals and concerts, and Orchestra hall for the larger ones.

To analyze Orchestra hall would be to review a chapter of unpleasant history. It is as it is, and many of its shortcomings cannot be corrected, but surely there is no reason available for the long continued persistence with which the audiences that assemble there week after week are made to endure something near akin to asphyxiation. Since the hall was constructed the ventilation has been woefully inefficient, and last season it seemed even worse than ever before. The fact that an egregious blunder was made in planning for ventilating the room in the first place is no adequate excuse for the continuance of the faulty condition.

Last season a ventilating fan was installed, but it was not wholly noiseless, and its operation is said to have resulted in complaints from occupants of the two adjoining buildings. Deference for the slightest wish of the owners of these structures seems to have outweighed all consideration for the comfort of the patrons of the hall. The fan was stopped in order that no enemies might be made in apparently influential quarters, and ultimately the mechanism was removed. Since that time nothing has been accomplished toward the correcting of the vital fault in the concert room. That an additional story now is being built on Orchestra hall to accommodate the Cliff Dwellers club is said to prevent the installing of the new—and let us hope noiseless—fan which, it is stated, has been ordered.

But the patrons of the Thomas concerts and of the countless other entertainments that are given in the hall are wondering how long must yet elapse before the conditions will be all shaped as regards new tenants, neighbors, and other influencing adjuncts, so that the most important of them all—the ventilation—can receive consideration and be made even approximately what it should be. It is all nice and proper to have redecorated the hall this summer and to have built a new permanent awning. Both of these are desirable and satisfactory, but they are merest nothings compared to the need of pure and sufficient air in the auditorium itself.

Every Friday afternoon for twenty-eight weeks 2,500 people assemble in the hall, and on as many Saturday evenings an audience of virtually the same size is gathered there. Yet every Friday afternoon and every Saturday evening these 2,500 people are made to breathe and rebreathe practically the same roomful of air for some two hours. The heat unavoidably becomes oppressive and the oxygen so exhausted from the air that mental and spiritual dullness, if not actual drowsiness, results. The audience virtually goes to sleep, and the players are compelled not only to fight against their own physical depression but against the enervated perceptive faculties of their auditors. Enthusiasm sinks lower and lower, and artistic achievements become practically impossible.

It is believed that the directors of Orchestra hall really do wish to improve the condition, and that they intend in due time to do so. But their patrons and supporters would have that belief decidedly strengthened if some measures looking toward correction of the terrible shortcoming were taken in a manner more decided and vigorous than has yet been in evidence. Promises are reassuring, but doing something is far more acceptable and satisfying.

The concert yesterday suffered sadly from the terrific closeness of the room. The Brahms symphony, which with the Schumann "Genoveva" Overture formed the first half of the program, received an enthusiastic reception which could but rejoice the heart of performer and every Brahms lover. The manner in which Mr. Stock and his men read the work was both brilliant and inspiring, and the hall still being comfortable and the air breathable, the listeners were instantly and heartily responsive. But after the intermission the deadly heat and closeness began to tell, and the novelty of the program—Boehe's "Taormina"—and Glazounow's gorgeous "Kremlin" fell upon senses so steeped with heaviness that they failed largely of their effect. It was a pity, for they both are interesting and both were superbly given, but the faculties and perceptions which fit for the appreciative hearing of music were smothered into inactivity.

The Brahms symphony was a joy supreme. It was the second one—the sunniest and most genial of the four. There is over this whole work the glow and content of spirit that are engendered by a day out of doors in golden sunshine. There is just a hint of the autumnal in the mood—the faint suggestion of pensiveness and dreaminess that belong to the first approach of summer's passing makes itself felt in the light that shines forth from this symphony. It is not sadness—nothing so intense or dark as that—just a deepening and enriching of the enjoyment and content that come with a pleasure that it is realized can now be of but short duration. This warmth in mood Mr. Stock and his men succeeded in catching and translating eloquently to their hearers.

Never has the opening allegro seemed more replete with lyric loveliness and fine upward sweep than it did yesterday, never has the matchless allegretto been more of an utterance of glad content and the closing allegro more filled with the spirit of joy. Even the adagio, which, despite its wonderful commencement, later hints of labor and searching in its creation, was lent clarity and meaning through the care and understanding with which it was read.

The Boehe "Taormina" was the novelty of the afternoon. It had been awaited with interest, for it promised much, but the confession is unavoidable that the hearing brought something of disappointment. It is a work of extreme length, richly colored, and both technically and thematically interesting and, as regards its individual parts, effective. But it lacks contrast both in mood and color. It is all grandios, all serious. There is nothing of light or lightness in it. And it must be said that even the keenest admiration for the matchless beauty of Taormina did not enable me to find anything in the Boehe work which suggested the wonderful charm or even the picturesque externals of that unique Sicilian town. That Taormina may have inspired the composer to the musical thoughts which he has used, and that its wealth of color may have suggested to him certain of the orchestral pigments he has employed, is possible, but he has not given either by superscription or written program, nor in the music itself, any definite explanation why the work should bear the title it does. It is not "Taormina" so far as a fairly good acquaintance with that city lets it be known, and it must, therefore, be judged purely as a musical composition. As such it is technically masterful, thematically interesting, but wanting in contrast, and impresses as the utterance of a writer still immature.

The Glazounow "Kremlin" impressed deeply when heard here last season for the first time. It is gorgeous in color and barbaric in mood, and it is written by a man who has every resource of modern orchestration absolutely at his fingers' ends. It was superbly played yesterday, and impressed despite unfavoring conditions. The same program tonight. W. L. HUBBARD.

MEETINGS AND ENTERTAINMENTS.

The fall meeting of the Chicago Congregational Sunday School association will be held in the Second Congregational church of Oak Park, Tuesday evening. A special session for Sunday school teachers and superintendents will be held in the afternoon.

The Homeward club, an organization of Jewish young men and women, have arranged an entertainment for the benefit of various charitable institutions. Mr. Isadore Edelson has charge of the entertainment.

An illustrated lecture on "The Geology and Scenery of the Pipestone Region" will be given by Prof. Samuel Calvin of the State University of Iowa, in Fullerton Memorial hall, Art institute, this afternoon.

The Chicago Sunday Evening club will meet at Orchestra hall tomorrow evening to hold a Dwight L. Moody commemorative service. Bishop C. E. Cheney will be among the speakers.

Swiss National day, tomorrow, will be observed by the Swiss of the city at North Side Turner hall. The celebration will be under the auspices of the United Swiss Societies of the city.

Members of the Orthodox Jewish Home for the Aged will meet to complete arrangements for the coming ball at the home tomorrow afternoon.

URGE 'VOTES FOR WATERWAY'

Association of Commerce Members Indorse Bond Issue.

First State to Get Chance to Approve "Conservation Idea."

The proposed $20,000,000 bond issue by the Illinois legislature to aid in the financing of the lakes-to-the-gulf waterway, received the unanimous indorsement of the executive committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce yesterday.

After the advantages which the people of the state would experience from the bond issue had been explained, the committee pointed out that Illinois really was getting the first chance of any state to show its practical approval of the great "conservation of natural resources" campaign.

Inevitable reduction of state taxes and a splendid perpetual annual income of $2,500,000 are only two of the benefits which will result from the saving of water power in Illinois, according to the committee.

"Greatest Work of the Times."

The statement issued by the committee in connection with the resolutions was as follows:

"Our leading engineers agree on the proposition that by the building of that portion of the canal proposed to be constructed by the state, there can be created 140,000 horse power of electrical energy. This amount of horse power, sold on the market, will bring an income to the state of Illinois of approximately $3,000,000 per annum.

"It is apparent to all that this splendid income will pay the bonds, the interest on the same, all charges and expenses within fifteen years and will when paid leave an annual income in the state treasury of about $2,500,000 for all time.

"Illinois is the first state to give to the people an opportunity to vote on a proposition that will conserve the natural resources of the state.

Urges Aid of Every Voter.

"Recognizing the necessity of state aid in the construction of this waterway through the water power stretch in Illinois; be it

"Resolved, That we heartily approve of the constitutional amendment to be voted on at the November election empowering the legislature of Illinois to authorize the issuance of not more than $20,000,000 of bonds to assist in the construction of the ship canal from Lockport to La Salle and to conserve to the state in perpetuity the water power, the profits of which, going into the treasury of the state of Illinois, will, as long as the state exists, greatly reduce the state taxes.

"Resolved, That, having thoroughly investigated this question and feeling confident that the adoption of this amendment will mean the construction of a deep waterway from the lakes to the gulf, we, therefore, solicit and request every voter in the city of Chicago and in the state of Illinois to vote 'Yes' on the special ballot for the constitutional amendment."

TALKERS OF DUNNE TIMES HOLD TALKFEST ON TAXES.

Old Time Spellbinders Attack Nearly Every One Who Has Been Concerned in Taxation During Recent Years.

Maxwell Edgar, secretary of the Illinois Tax Reform association, was one of the spellbinders last night before the Teachers' federation in Handel hall. Almost everybody who has had anything to do with the taxes of Cook county during recent years was roasted and side flings were taken at the state administration. It was like an old time talkfest.

Some of the old time "reformers" who again crept into the limelight included Louis F. Post, Henry M. Ashton, Wiley W. Mills, and Margaret Haley. The theory of the meeting was that it was called for the purpose of finding out how to reduce the overcrowding in the public schools without reducing the salaries of teachers, but the oratory was so diffuse that many had difficulty in following it.

Mr. Ashton suggested that tax dodgers be made to pay taxes by the passage of a law depriving them of the right to defend unlisted property in court.

Following aspersions upon the governor, members of the board of review, and the late Marshall Field by various speakers, Margaret Haley referred to the judges of the Supreme court of the United States as "nine old women," but later modified this by excepting two of the judges.

A motion by Louis F. Post was carried to appoint five citizens and five members of the Teachers' federation to arrange, if the school board will consent, "tax reform" meetings in public school buildings.

STREETS HAVING ALIASES MARKED FOR SIMPLIFICATION.

Supt. Riley of Map Department Surprises Council Committee by Reading Some Samples of Confusion.

Streets which go trailing across the city under many aliases and whole families of streets having the same name were marked for revision yesterday by the council committee on street nomenclature.

A list of "intermittent" streets was submitted to the committee by John D. Riley, superintendent of the map department, and showed so many different names for the same street that even the aldermen on the committee who have been working away at the subject were astonished. As a sample Mr. Riley read aloud to the committee the names of "the first street south of Fullerton avenue."

"This street starts out to be Kemper place," he said. "It is interrupted in a number of places, and, after the first break we find it is Huber street. Then follow Chester street, Berlin street, Clara street, Berlin street again, Follansbee street, and Medill avenue. Now, this makes any amount of confusion, and a single name should be adopted for all of these links."

Mr. Riley reported that there are 478 duplicate street names within the city limits. He informed the committee that the renumbering of the southwest quarter of the city has been completed on the city maps, and that notices will be sent to householders to come in and get the new numbers for their properties.

FIVE HUNDRED POLICEMEN TAKE MENTAL TEST TODAY.

Aspirants for Position of Desk Sergeant Will Be Examined at Robert Waller High School—More to Follow.

Five hundred patrolmen of the Chicago police department will today take a mental examination for promotion. The examination will take place at the Robert A. Waller High school, Orchard and Center streets.

Some of the applicants are so large in girth that it is thought they will not be able to squeeze into the seats.

This is the first examination for promotion of patrolmen that has been held under the Busse administration. The examination today is for desk sergeant, and examinations for patrol and detective sergeants will follow in a few days. Most of the applicants have entered for all three examinations.

At the examination today there will be twenty words to spell—words commonly used in working official reports—some examples in arithmetic, and a few queries regarding the boundaries of police divisions and districts.

The physical examination, it is said, was the most severe ever given by the civil service examiners. For this reason the applicants look for an unusually hard mental examination.

Phi Delta Pi Changes Mode.

At the session of the general assembly of the Phi Delta Pi fraternity at the Sherman house yesterday changes were made in the constitution. Today the work of the assembly will be completed with the election of officers.

BIBLE STUDENTS GOOD IN SPORTS.

ILLINOIS CLASSES LEAD.

State School at Champaign Ahead of Others in Number of Gospel Pupils.

Columbus, O., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Can a man be a soldier, a sailor, a football champion, a fraternity enthusiast, an attendant at the democratic, secular state universities, and at cultured and aristocratic Harvard, and at the same time be a devoted student of the bible, was answered in the affirmative by the discussion today at the international student bible convention.

West Point is represented by Cot Larned and he was quoted by Secretary Cooper as stating that a large class for bible study has been formed at West Point and also one at Annapolis. Among the men active in athletics it was stated that there were among the students enrolled in bible study classes 1,011 football players, 950 members of track teams, 908 men on baseball teams and 547 basketball men.

Dr. O. E. Brown of Vanderbilt university, Nashville, Tenn., stated that the football captain at his university was the teacher of a class of twelve members of the football squad.

Schools Wake Up the South.

W. D. Weatherford, Nashville, and A. J. Elliott, Chicago, both exploited the relation of the state universities to bible study.

"The uprising of the state universities," declared Mr. Weatherford, "is one element that has contributed towards the awakening of the south. In nearly every state institution the trustees and governing boards are demanding that students have the opportunity for bible study. In the south every one is religious, but religion is largely formal. It has taken bible criticism and the consequent restlessness to get the south out of this formality."

Mr. Elliott said that of the 45,000 students in colleges west of Ohio 22,000 are in state universities.

"The Young Men's Christian association has special responsibilities among these men," he said. "In one of these state universities there are three societies which boast of the fact that there is not a pure man among them. In state universities less than one-half of the students are members of churches, and among some of them church membership counts for little.

"The Young Men's Christian association is the recognized channel for the work of modifying these conditions for the better. The University of Illinois holds the banner for bible study among the state institutions, having an enrollment of over 900 in the various bible classes."

Work Among Negroes Told.

W. A. Hunton, a colored secretary of Atlanta, Ga., spoke of the work among the negro students.

"There are ninety-one of the institutions of the south among the colored people, having bible classes in which there are enrolled 6,000 students. We want you to judge us," said he, "not alone by the heights we have attained, but by the depths from which we have come."

Prof. Lucius H. Miller of Princeton university made an address on the "Relationship of Efficiency to Trained Leaders."

"There is need of fifty leaders now," he said, "where there was one ten years ago. It is the men in a movement that makes it go."

Prof. J. W. Jenks, Cornell university, New York, spoke on "Thorough Preparation by the Student."

"Don't waste the time of your teacher," he said. "The secret of the Standard Oil and of other great corporations is that they do not waste. You do not bother with a sliver a surgeon to whom you pay $1,000 for a major operation; a Shakspeare is not to spend his time copying letters."

In the afternoon the convention separated into smaller sections, meeting in various public buildings of the city and discussing questions concerning the details of association work.

Leaders of Branch Work.

The leaders in these discussions were Prof. L. H. Miller, Princeton; Prof. O. E. Brown, Vanderbilt; Mr. David P. Porter, New York; Mr. Wellington H. Tinker, Boston; the Rev. W. S. Richardson, New York; the Rev. Thornton B. Penfield, New York; Chancellor Frank Strong, University of Kansas.

Dr. Shailer Mathews of Chicago made one of the principal addresses. Dr. H. Churchill King, president of Oberlin college, and Robert E. Speer, secretary of the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian church, addressed the massmeeting in Memorial hall last evening.

The morning session of the conference was held in the auditorium of the board of trade. President King spoke on "The Call of the Church to College Men to Study the Bible."

"The modern man," declared President King, "is more dependent on Christ than were the men of any former period. This is because the modern man has come to moral consciousness and his faith demands greater reality than ever in the past. Man's greatest need is contact with great personalities. Jesus Christ meets the need. I am through seeking Christ. All Jesus Christ wants is an opportunity."

Mr. Speer's address was on the bible and the cultivation of the spiritual.

"Unless we know the bible we cannot know Christ. Without bible truth we carry no soothing body of thought," he said.

ALLOW TAME FEATHERS ON HATS

Michigan Club Women, After Much Amending, bar All but Domestic Fowls and Ostrich Plumage.

Traverse City, Mich., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—The Michigan State Federation of Women's Clubs today adopted a resolution which bars the members from wearing any feathers on their hats except those of domestic fowls and ostriches.

Grand Matron of Eastern Star.

MRS. EFFIE M. McKINDLEY

Mrs. Effie McKindley of Morris, Ill., who was elected worthy grand matron of the order of the Eastern Star in Illinois at the meeting of the grand chapter in Chicago this week, was installed on Thursday. The new head of the order is the wife of J. W. McKindley, cashier of the Grundy County National bank.

W. C. T. U. GAINS ARE SHOWN

MRS. FRY RESIGNS POSITION.

Evanston Woman Unexpectedly Leaves Secretaryship of National Order.

Denver, Colo., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Mrs. Susanna M. D. Fry of Evanston, Ill., after making her report today to the national convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, resigned from the office of corresponding secretary. Mrs. Fry's resignation was unexpected.

It is believed that Mrs. Fry gave up her position on account of failing health. She has spent fifteen years in the service of the W. C. T. U. Formerly she filled the chair of belles lettres in the Illinois Wesleyan university at Bloomington and has at various periods been president of the Minnesota W. C. T. U., editor of the Union Signal, judge of the liberal arts department at the world's fair, and is the author of "A Paradise Valley Girl."

The session this evening was devoted to listening to addresses of welcome by Gov. Buchtel, Mayor Speer, and others. Responses were made by presidents of several branches of the organization.

Much interest was created today by addresses made by Nellie G. Burgher of Illinois and other organizers, who told of successes they had met with during the year in the way of increasing the membership.

Greetings to Foreign Workers.

During the day telegrams of greeting were sent to Lady Carlisle and Lady Henry Somerset of England, to Miss Strout, resident missionary in Japan, and Miss Gowen, resident missionary in South America, and also to a number of prominent workers in the temperance cause in the United States.

The most important features today were the address of the president, Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, at the morning session, and the reports of the secretary and treasurer at the afternoon session. The auditorium was well filled when the convention was called to order and Mrs. Stevens awoke the enthusiasm of her hearers when she recited the great progress made by the temperance cause during the last year.

President Stevens began her address by reciting the gains made by the temperance cause during the last year. Prohibition, she said, now prevails in Maine, Kansas, North Dakota, Georgia, Oklahoma, Alabama, Mississippi, and North Carolina.

Refers to Illinois Victory.

She referred to the victory on April 7 in Illinois when 1,005 towns voted to do away with liquor selling and predicted that both Illinois and Ohio would be placed in the prohibition column "about the time their junior L. T. L. boys and girls reach the age of 21." Continuing Mrs. Stevens said:

"We should like to mention every state where there have been triumphs, but this would include all the states as well as all the territories, even Hawaii and Alaska, and it certainly includes with great emphasis the District of Columbia." New Hampshire and Vermont were entitled to pity, she said, for having abandoned prohibition for local option, which had had the effect of increasing the sale of rum.

Mrs. Fry's report said that 1,506 new unions have been organized; 25,472 total abstinence pledges have been taken. We have more than doubled the gain of last year, the total net gain in membership being 20,463.

WOMEN OUTLINE GREAT REFORMS.

HIT FRATS, FIREWORKS.

Billboard, Unneeded Noise, Impure Foods, and Smoke Also to Be Fought.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

East St. Louis, Ill., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—The convention of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs adjourned today after laying out its program of work for the year. The women pledged themselves to seek a score of reforms in Illinois and then the chairman of the committee on resolutions explained that there wasn't much this year because there is to be no session of the state legislature.

Here are some of the little things that the women have undertaken:

Arousing of sentiment for the passage at the next session of the legislature of a state law prohibiting high school fraternities and sororities.

Securing observance of a sane Fourth of July throughout Illinois.

Extension of the vacation school system throughout the state.

Abolishment of the billboard and smoke nuisances.

Prohibiting of the sale of uninspected meat throughout the state.

Appointment of a food inspector, preferably a woman, in every city and town.

Hunt Missing Art Works.

Somewhere in the wilds of Illinois is a collection of forty-five valuable reproductions of famous paintings. They were sent out by the federation art committee two years ago, but since that time they have not been heard from. A pathetic appeal for aid in the search was made just before adjournment by Mrs. Arnold L. Heap, the chairman of the art committee.

"We have been looking for those pictures for two years," she said, "and have been absolutely unable to trace them. We're going to keep on hunting, but I want to ask the clubs down through the state to help. Some club has them. I wish they'd 'fess up.'"

The event of the morning was the report of the industrial committee, made by Mrs. Raymond Robins of Chicago, and accompanied by an address by Prof. George H. Meade of the University of Chicago. Mr. Meade spoke on the "Social Value of Industrial Legislation," urging, as did Mrs. Robins, the need of further legislation for the protection of women and children in industry and of further laws for compelling manufacturers to install safety appliances.

At the close of the session Mrs. Frances D. Everett of Highland Park was installed as the new president.

No Invitation for Future.

The federation finds itself this year in an embarrassing position. To be frank, nobody wants it. So large has the delegate membership grown that few of the Illinois towns can entertain the clubwomen adequately and the towns are becoming reluctant to try it. Up to this morning not a single invitation had been tendered to the board of directors.

It is possible that the Chicago clubs of the north and west sides will entertain the federation next year. Several down state towns also issued invitations at the suggestion of officers, and the matter was left to the new directors to decide.

"Joke" Ends in Indictment.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 23.—Lucian T. F. Tull, auditor of the New Amsterdam Gas company of New York, today was indicted by the federal grand jury here on the charge of passing counterfeit money. Tull, it is alleged, gave counterfeit coins as a joke to a woman he met here.

HIS MORTGAGED MULE VS. HIS OWN AUTOMOBILE.

Kokomo, Ind., Oct. 23.—At Lafayette today, while riding to the speaker's stand, Mr. Taft had this note thrust into his hand by a well dressed man:

"Mr. Taft: Twelve years ago I drove a mortgaged mule to this city to hear Mr. Bryan speak. Today I came in my own automobile to hear you. Can you guess who I am going to vote for? E. V. D."

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Eighteen cars are expected to start in the fourth contest for the Vanderbilt cup tomorrow morning at 6 o'clock over a circuit on Long Island of 23.46 miles, which is to be covered eleven times to complete the race distance.

While this year's race will not be an international contest by reason of having direct entries from national clubs of different European countries, it still will have an international flavor by reason of the presence of three French, three German, and one Italian car to oppose the eleven American machines entered.

New American records are expected in the race, as the circuit over which the cars are to be driven is a fast one, as was proved two weeks ago today, when Herbert Lyttle averaged more than sixty-four miles an hour in the motor parkway sweepstakes with the same fifty horse power Isotta he is to drive tomorrow.

Ten of the cars entered for tomorrow's struggle have twice as much horse power as the Isotta, several of them being rated at more than double the power of Lytle's car. So it practically is certain the winner will make a higher average speed for the race than Lytle did when he won the big event and the $1,000 prize on Oct. 10.

Course Is a Fast One.

The circuit over which competing cars will travel is made up of about eight miles of the completed stretch of the Long Island Motor parkway, the remainder of the course being laid out over roads of Nassau county, including a long stretch of the famous Jericho turnpike, over which great speed can be made. The start and finish will be in front of a grand stand which is situated on the Motor parkway near Central park.

The circuit is to be gurarded by 600 members of the Irish Volunteers, under command of Col. Crowley, and several hundred deputy sheriffs, the entire force being directed by the sheriff of Nassau county, as the volunteers have been sworn in by him as special deputies for tomorrow. In addition to the deputy sheriffs and volunteers there will be a great many flagmen stationed at all crossings and turns around the race circuit.

The first race for the Vanderbilt cup was run in 1904, George Heath winning it with a Panhard. Hemery won the second race in 1905, with a Darracq, and Wagner won the third race in 1906 with a Darracq. There was no race for the cup last year, as the cup commission could not make what it deemed necessary arrangements for properly policing the course on Long Island, and found offers of circuits in other states not satisfactory.

Each car entered must weigh not more than 2,644.8 pounds and not less than 1,983.6 pounds. The deed of gift provides the race may not be less than 250 miles nor more than 300 miles. The former rule requiring that cars and their equipments must be made entirely in the country of origin has been changed, a number of American machines being fitted with foreign magnetos and tires. The entry fee is $1,000 and the entrant is allowed the privilege of naming one, two, or three cars, provided all are of the same make.

Others of the Provisions.

Each car must carry a driver and mechanic whose weight must be at least 132 pounds each. Each car must be equipped with a motor driven reverse gear. Nineteen cars entered for the race, but the B. L. M., entered by Thomas Williams, was not officially weighed and therefore was withdrawn. It had been thought Thomas entry No. 8 would not be started, but arrangements hastily made today put in a Thomas to bear No. 8, the car being a regular stock touring chassis stripped of superfluous weight and geared higher than for ordinary service.

The Locomobile, Knox, Chadwick, Matheson, Acme, and Thomas cars are made in this country, and all of them are entered either by manufacturers or by selling agents. The three Mercedes cars were manufactured in Germany and were entered by W. K. Vanderbilt Jr., whose car is to be driven by Luttgen; Robert Graves, whose car will be driven by Stricker, and by Foxhall Keene, who is his own driver. The Brasier was entered by Harry Payne Whitney, the Hotchkiss by Charles F. Stephanie, and the Renault by Paul Lacroix, all three made in France. The Isotta was entered by Clifford V. Brokaw and is of Italian manufacture.

George Robertson is the favorite in what betting has been done, as he is an experienced driver and has the car that made the fastest round during the last Vanderbilt cup race, in 1906. He has done considerable racing on tracks, being one of the drivers of the Simplex that won the recent twenty-four hour race at Brighton Beach.

DIES IN RUSH TO AUTO RACE.

New York, Oct. 23.—In the rush to the auto race tonight a man was killed in Jackson avenue, Long Island City. Patrick Ball tried to cross the avenue to his home at a point almost in front of his own door, but became confused by the blinding glare of the headlights on the continual stream of passing automobiles and stepped in front of a trolley car. The motorman tried to stop, but the forward wheels of the car crushed Hall, killing him instantly.

Noted Auto Driver Coming to States.

STAGG PRAISES THE GOPHERS.

That the Minnesota game will mark the climax of the football season for the Maroons was shown yesterday by a declaration from Coach A. A. Stagg that he regarded the Gophers as hard an eleven, if not the hardest, he expected his team to meet on the football field this year. It was thought by many that the Wisconsin game would be the big game of the year.

"I know for a fact that the Minnesota team this year is a team of wonderful strength, more so than for many years," Stagg said. "I have been receiving letters from friends of mine who have seen the Minnesota boys play, and they all tell me not to be fooled on the Minnesota team. One man whose opinion I regard highly informed me that the coach has the best material this year he ever has had, and that, you know, is saying a whole lot.

"I do not underestimate Cornell or Wisconsin, but the big game for us right now is the Gopher contest; I expect as hard a fight from the Gopher team as I do from either Cornell or Wisconsin, if not harder. We don't know much about Minnesota's strength here in Chicago, but I have learned—not from spies, but from friends who have voluntarily told me—that the Gopher eleven is one of the greatest teams ever put on a western field."

Stagg relaxed on the defensive work of his team yesterday and spent all his time in removing the rust from the offense, which he has more or less allowed to remain dormant since the Illinois game. Practice will be held twice today, but no scrimmage work will be taken, as Stagg wishes to brighten up his new plays.

AUGUST TO CAPTAIN PURPLE

GAME WITH BELOIT TODAY.

Will Mark Return of Northwestern to Western Gridiron Sport.

D. H. August, full back of the Northwestern university football team, was chosen captain last night at a meeting held by the team just after practice.

The selection hinged on ability so far shown this season, and August was elected, although he is a member of the dental school and never has attended the liberal arts department. He was practically unknown until this fall, when he appeared on the football field. August and Hamilton were placed in nomination, and the ballot stood nine for August and eight for Hamilton.

Light signal practice was taken on the eve of the Beloit game today, which will usher Northwestern university back into the football world. Ward spent considerable time punting. Manley and Culbertson were busy trying the forward pass, and Kittleman practiced kicking goal.

The men all are in good condition except August, whose ankle still bothers him and makes it a question whether he or Ward will go in at full back today. August probably will start the game. With August at full back and Ward at guard the line against Beloit will average 166 pounds.

The coaches all have confidence in the back field, and recent performances of the line indicate that it will have a stone wall resistance outside of the end positions, which are the critical points of the team. This is due party to the fact that end material has been scarce and partly to the fact that the scarcity has caused so many shifts that no man has had the advantage of the experience at end that other men have had in their positions.

The probable lineup today is:

Northwestern.		Beloit.
R. E.	Johnson	Miles	L. E.
R. T.	Jacobson	R. Brandt	L. T.
R. G.	Ward	M. Brandt	L. G.

High School Football Season to Reach Its Height with Many Battles—Englewood to Meet Oak Park.

MAJOR LEAGUE.

Englewood vs. Oak Park at Phipps field, 2:30 p. m.

Crane vs. Lane at Artesian park, 2:30 p. m.

North Division vs. Wendell Phillips (forfeited by North Division).

SECONDARY LEAGUE.

McKinley vs. Lake at Normal ball park, 10:30 a. m.

South Chicago vs. Medill at South Chicago.

OTHER GAMES.

Austin vs. Irving Parks at Austin.

University High vs. St. Ignatius college at Marshall field, 2:30 p. m.

Morgan Park academy vs. Harvey High, at Harvey.

Interscholastic football will reach its height today, when nine battles are scheduled to be decided on the prep gridirons. Of today's battles several are of interest, and while the Englewood-Oak Park game and the North Division-Wendell Phillips forfeit will have a bearing on the league championship, the other games are also attracting no little attention.

The Englewood-Oak Park game will mark a turning point in the league race, and should the Oak Parkers win or tie with the south siders it will mean an upset of all dope on the championship team. Englewood is the favorite, and many fans expect the purple and white aggregation to come out victorious, but the surprising statements of Coach Omer of Oak Park to the effect that his team will win has made the followers of the game start guessing.

North Division is forced to forfeit to Wendell Phillips the game slated to be played this morning at Marshall field. The north side boys were in high hopes of beating the south siders, but when school closed last evening it was found that only four men were able to get into the lineup. Three of the regulars were below in their studies, while four others were out on account of injuries, and after a talk with Principal Westcott it was decided to forfeit.

In the secondary league McKinley and Lake will clash in a hot fight at the Normal baseball park. McKinley has a clean score so far, but may strike a snag in the stockyards team. Hyde Park will be without several good men in its go with the Lake View at Gunther park in the morning.

Outside of the league games, the University High-St. Ignatius game at Marshall field will draw a good deal of attention. University High has an unusually strong and heavy eleven this season and will present a formidable lineup. Its backfield is probably the strongest set of ground gainers turned out by a local high school in years. Capt. Carter, Johnson, and Usher are the Maroon youngsters who will carry the ball.

Gophers Practice in Rain.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—For the third time this week the Gopher football practice was held in a pouring rain. Dr. Williams' men are becoming veritable mudhens and begin to hope for rain on Oct. 31. It seems likely a delegation of over 2,000 Minnesota rooters will avail themselves of the low railroad rate and see the big game.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

The Northwestern football team will play its first game since 1905 with Beloit college at Evanston today. When the reform wave struck the game football was abolished by the faculty. Through hard work by prominent alumni and students football was restored as one of the activities of the university and the team allowed to play three games.

Not knowing the caliber of the college material, Director of Athletics Gillesby scheduled games with Beloit, Purdue, and Illinois. Since Sept. 20, the official opening of the practice season for the conference elevens, the squad has been working hard under Coaches Johnson and Connor, and the team which takes the field in today's battle will represent the best material.

The team will be weakened by the loss of Williams, the giant guard, who was declared ineligible by the faculty, and August, the full back, whose injuries may keep him on the side lines. The latter is the more severe loss, as he will compare favorably with any full back in the west. He hits the line hard, with plenty of drive, picks his openings in fine style, and is a tower of strength on the defense.

Stands a Good Chance.

Northwestern, with an even break in the luck, should win, as the Purple is a fairly strong team, with the exception of the ends. From tackle to tackle the line will take core of any plays sent against it, while the backfield work is high class.

Harry Hadden of Michigan will referee and D. Raycroft of Chicago will umpire.

Another good game which should attract considerable local interest is the De Paul-Michigan Agricultural college contest. The Chicago eleven will be outweighed about ten pounds to the man, but expects to overcome this handicap by fast, open plays and the ability of Burson to kick goals from the field. The Aggies are the favorite because of their great showing against Michigan two weeks ago.

Indiana will tackle Franklin at Bloomington, and the Hoosiers should be returned easy victors. Iowa also will have an easy opponent in Morningside.

Wolverines to Meet Ohios.

Michigan will journey to Columbus to meet the strong Ohio State eleven, and this game should give a good line on the strength of the Wolverines. They will have their best team in this battle and if they play any kind of football should dispose of the Buckeyes.

St. Louis in meeting Wabash will try to avenge the defeat the Little Giants gave them last season. The Mound city eleven was deprived of the services of Acker, their best player, in last year's battle, and it was this handicap that lost them the game. Reports have it that Cochems will send his strongest team against the Hoosiers. Wabash is not as strong as last year and can hardly be expected to win from the St. Louis machine.

Nebraska, who held Minnesota to a 0 to 0 score last Saturday, will meet the Haskell Indians, and the Cornhuskers should be an easy winner. Cole, the former Michigan player, has turned out a great team at Nebraska this season and it will take a mighty good eleven to beat it.

There also will be numerous games between minor college teams, which are not of general interest.

Chicago, Minnesota, and Wisconsin, the contenders for the western championship, have no games scheduled. Today will mark the end of hard work for Chicago and Minnesota, as next week will be devoted to polishing the plays and practicing defensive formations.

Games in the East.

In the east some great battles will take place, the Pennsylvania-Indian game being the banner attraction. The Quakers have made great preparations for this meeting. Evidently Pennsy is tired of being trounced by the red men and has taken every precaution to prevent another defeat. Both teams will be weakened by injuries. Keinath, the Quaker's star quarter back, will not be in the game, while the Indians will not have the services of Thorpe, their great field goal kicker. Coach Warner had expected to have Houser, the famous full back, in this battle, but his injured back is far from well and the coach will not take chances by playing him. With the Indians not as strong as last year and Pennsylvania stronger, it looks like a Quaker victory.

Harvard and the Navy should put up a great game at Annapolis. Both elevens have been playing grand football this season.

Princeton will meet a worthy opponent in Syracuse and the Tigers will have to play football every minute to win. The New Yorkers have worked hard for this game under the coaching of the Jones brothers, Tad and Howard, the former Yale stars, and should give Princeton a stiff argument.

The other big eastern teams should win their games, as they meet opponents who are not in their class. The smaller college elevens will play games which have no bearing on the championship, and the outcome of these contests is of little general moment.

ROOSEVELT NOT TO SEE GAME.

President Will Not Attend Harvard-Annapolis Contest Today, but Will Be Represented by Miss Ethel.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 23.—Although hopes that President Roosevelt would be one of the spectators at tomorrow's game between the football teams of the Naval academy and Harvard are not to be realized his family will be represented by Miss Ethel Roosevelt, who is to come over from Washington with a party of friends and who will probably be seated on the navy side of the gridiron, while Assistant Secretary of the Navy T. H. Newberry will, it is expected, see the game from the Harvard side.

HIS MORTGAGED MULE VS. HIS OWN AUTOMOBILE.

Kokomo, Ind., Oct. 23.—At Lafayette today, while riding to the speaker's stand, Mr. Taft had this note thrust into his hand by a well dressed man:

"Mr. Taft: Twelve years ago I drove a mortgaged mule to this city to hear Mr. Bryan speak. Today I came in my own automobile to hear you. Can you guess who I am going to vote for? E. V. D."

IN THE WAKE OF THE NEWS.

BY HEK.

We are assured by President Tom Williams that it will take so long for Rudolph Spreckels to get around to it that there need be no fear of drastic measures until the California racing season is so far advanced that the more fortunate can see where they are going to get off. President Williams bounced off Chicago Thursday on his hop, skip, and jump from Broadway to Market street.

A rate of six megs has been allowed by the railroads from Minneapolis to Chicago for the game between the Gophers and the Maroons. Provided mother puts up enough chicken sandwiches and jell, this places the cost of the trip within striking distance of the most enthusiastic rooter. We can figure the Pullman car porter getting rich.

President Samuel F. Heaslip, who is native sonavatizing the New Orleans menage with a view to conducting a ninety days' meeting, has appointed Scott Campbell of Lexington as his assistant, having discovered that Scott is a nephew of Dr. Joe and Ike Campbell of New Orleans. Before he gets through with his arrangements Mr. Heaslip will discover that John Hachmeister is a second cousin to Albert Hein and that Louis Cella's grandaunt went to school with the grandmother of Jack Loyacano. Little will remain to be done after that except to show that one of the progenitors of Ed Corrigan married into the Gibbons family in the eighteenth century, and that Joe Rhinock's grandfather kept a hat store in Canal street under another monicker in 1826. It will be shown, if necessary, that Tommy McGee is close kin to Jayme Magi, who used to run a cigar store at the corner of the Rue Gravier and the Rue St. Charles.

The affairs of George T. Stallings are crowding thick upon us. George seems to have taken on a line of matrimonial complications, beside which his baseball significance is a trivial matter.

"Now that you have blown the National, the American, and Three Lamp leagues," writes a correspondent, "will you kindly take time to inform a few anxious readers if Back of the Yards is known as West Kenwood?" The answer that comes readily to hand is that Back of the Yards has nothing on Kenwood proper when the warm wind sets in from the southeast.

GOSSIP OF THE PUGILISTS.

Johnny Thompson Receives Royal Welcome on Coast and Starts Training for Unholz Battle.

From California comes word from Lightweight Johnny Thompson, alias the "Sycamore Cyclone." The young Illinois boxer, who is to meet Rudolph Unholz, the Boer—who speaks eight different languages, but not at one time, and whose greatest claim to fame is the fact that he has muscles on his back like billiard balls cut in halves—reports he was met by a delegation of sports at the station and given a grand welcome. At his first day's training at Joe Millett's place so favorable an impression did he make that his manager says he will be made favorite over Unholz when they meet at San Francisco. "Lick Unholz first, then on to unseat Bat Nelson from the lightweight throne," is the slogan of the Thompson camp.

New York fight fans evidently have gone clean dippy over Packey McFarland since he nearly put out Leach Cross' light the other night. They seem more than certain he can clean up anything that ever happened or is going to happen for some time, and as evidence of their sincerity they have come out with an offer to back the Chicago lightweight to the extent of $25,000 against one Bat Nelson. It seems strange that New Yorkers, who stick to the native sons like a leech sticks to a bum lamp, should come out flat footed in favor of McFarland, but the earmarks of the whole thing make their offer look on the square. They thought Cross was the regular little "Bosco," but when they found something that could eat 'em up faster they swung over to the Chicago boy. As to the route, the eastern backers say any reasonable distance, but that seems indefinite, to say the least. They undoubtedly would be tickled to freeze in with Packey over the six round course against Nelson. But the Dane is wise and will tell them his views of the matter in a short time when he reaches Gotham.

In the meantime Packey has a little engagement coming off in the near future with "Harlem Tommy" Murphy.

Ad Wolgast, the little Milwaukeean, who is on the coast, has been matched to fight none other than Champion Featherweight Abe Attel. Twenty rounds it is to be at the Jeffries club of Los Angeles on Nov. 10. Champions evidently do not scare Wolgast.

"Chicken" Duffy is to be one of the principals in the windup of the boxing show to be held at Summit, Ill., one week from tomorrow. The promoters are looking for the other fellow.

Joe Galligan, the local Italian, has been matched to fight Tommy Lee at Springfield, O., on Thanksgiving eve. They are scheduled to go fifteen rounds and weigh in at 133 pounds at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

JOHN WILLE TRIMS STEWART.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—By hitting the harder blow and finding his target oftener, John Wille of Chicago won a point victory at the State A. C. tonight over Big Jim Stewart of New York. Stewart had height, reach, and weight over his hardy rival, but the latter more than made up this disadvantage by his experience and walloping ability.

Sayers Beats Cullen.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Maurice Sayers easily defeated Dick Cullen of Australia in a ten round bout at McCarey's club tonight. The Milwaukee boy had all the class and at no time did the Australian lad have him in distress.

INDIANS BATTLE PENN TODAY.

Hard Fought Contest Is Looked For When Foes Struggle for Supremacy on Franklin Field.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 23.—Excepting the contest with Michigan, the University of Pennsylvania football team will play its most important game on Franklin field tomorrow when it meets the strong Carlisle Indian eleven. The annual contest with the redskins in the past generally has been a hard one for the home team, and Saturday's game probably will prove the same.

Badgers Scrimmage in the Rain.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—The varsity and scrubs scrimmaged more than an hour today in a drizzling rain, the regulars scoring five touchdowns. Cunningham, quarter back, made the only score for the scrubs, intercepting a forward pass and running seventy yards for a touchdown. Moll was unable to do any punting on account of rheumatism. McCarthy declined to accept the $200 raised by the students and is giving his time to the team without remuneration. Barry called off the game scheduled for tomorrow between the varsity and freshmen.

WOMEN GOLFERS DOWN TO FINAL.

Mrs. Polhemus and Miss Harley Survive in National Championship.

MRS. C. F. FOX IS BEATEN.

Philadelphia Champion Succumbs to Fine Approach Work of Opponent.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—The woman's national golf championship now lies between the representatives of New York City and Fall River, Mass.

This was determined as the result of today's tournament over the Chevy Chase golf links when Mrs. T. H. Polhemus of the Richmond Country club was victorious over Miss Marion Oliver of the Chevy Chase club 4 and 2, and Mrs. Caleb F. Fox of the Huntington Valley Country club, the present Philadelphia champion, was defeated by Miss Katherine C. Harley of the Fall River Golf club, 1 down. The matches were witnessed by the largest gallery since the opening of the event.

Miss Harley Is Steady.

The performance of Miss Harley was the feature. Her steadiness on approach play was almost perfect, and was directly accountable for her defeat of the veteran Philadelphia player. The defeat of Miss Oliver was a great disappointment here, as she had been picked as a likely contestant in the finals. Mrs. Polhemus gained an advantage in the first two holes, and practically won the match on her putting.

In the semi-final round for the consolation cup Miss Allen, Boston, beat Miss Townsend of Philadelphia, 2 up, and Miss Porter, Boston, beat Miss Grace Semple, St. Louis, 7 and 5.

Schoolgirl Golfer Wins.

Miss Mary McCaine, the 14 year old Washington school girl who qualified in the championship, won the approaching and putting contest.

ONWENTSIA SEASON AT AN END.

Final Event, a Handicap Tourney for Men, Will Be Played, Over Fifty Having Entered.

Onwentsia golfers will wind up their competitive season today with the final event in the autumn round up, a one day handicap tourney for men. Secretary Slason Thompson of the sports and pastimes committee reports an entry list of over fifty for the seven different events, for which there are seven prizes, including some Onwentsia goblets.

The event will conclude the most successful season in the history of the club. Besides the golf, there will be a tennis tournament in men's doubles and a shootfest arranged by the Wawa hunters. A large supply of Wawas has been obtained and they are reported to be strong and speedy.

Finals in the class handicap at Evanston will be played and a medal class handicap. Skokie players will continue the October cup competition.

Mrs. G. S. Haskell, 104—sc—104, Mrs. W. K. Fellowes, 127—16—111, and Mrs. J. C. Hoag, 115—9—106, won the Scotch threesome at Homewood yesterday with a net score of 321, coming within one of the number of reservations for the annual dinner tonight in the new clubhouse. The building will be informally opened today.

GAMES IN BOWLING LEAGUES.

An average of 966 gave the Andersons three straight games from the Kenwoods in the Phœnix league last night. Bergk led the side with 214 2-3, Nelson getting 203 2-3. The Bucketts shut out the Woodlawns, Hyde leading with 213 2-3.

The Bullfrogs of the Lincoln league hopped along some and won three easy games from the Grain-men, with an average of 953, Dave Lewis getting 205 flat. The leading Breen & Kennedys hung on to first place in the Chicago league by winning the odd game from the Tosettis, although the champions averaged 950 2-3 to 943 for the liquor men. Scores:

ILLINI TO PLAY "FRESHIES."

Youngsters Will Get Chance at Varsity Team, Which Has No Big Contest on Schedule.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—With an off day on the schedule tomorrow, the Illini will meet the fast freshmen eleven and a good game is expected, although Prep White's youngsters only hope to hold the varsity to a small score. Despite the big rest given the Illini this week, they seem to be in fine fettle and ready for hard work.

Pettigrew is absent on an engineering inspection trip, and either Watson or Gumm will take his place in the back field tomorrow.

The annual fall handicap will be held on Illinois field and will give Coach Gill a chance to size up his material for the indoor season.

Soccer Matches Today.

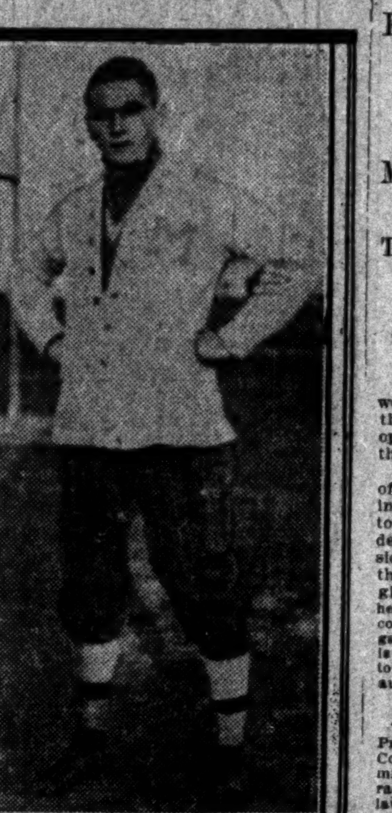

Two matches are carded for the fourth round of the Saturday League of Association Football this afternoon. The champion Pullmans will meet the Shamrocks at Pullman, while the Campbell Rovers play the Cliftonvilles at Fortieth street and Grand avenue. The Douglas park team has a bye and will meet the West Side Rangers at Fillmore street and California avenue. At Elmhurst the Englewood high school eleven will meet the Elmhurst college team.

Results at Coursing Meet.

Utica, Neb., Oct. 23.—The finals in the American Derby coursing meet were run today with the following results: Puppy stake, Walter Sprite beat Jack Rider; all age stake, Model Prince Charming beat the Troubador; consolation stake, The Black Knight beat Coronado St. Clair.

"SID" ANDERSON.

"Sid" Anderson, as captain and quarter-back of the freshman football team at the University of Wisconsin, is establishing a greater reputation as a dropkicker and all around player than did "Keckie" Moll last year. Anderson is the Chicago boy who starred last year as captain of the Mercersburg academy football team.

EVERS MANAGER? NOT YET!

St. Louis Fans Agog Over a Rumored Cardinal Change.

FRASER TO RAISE ALFALFA?

Clark Griffith Denies Report That He Is to Pilot the Reds.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

St. Louis fans are wildly excited over a report in circulation there that John J. Evers may succeed John J. McCloskey as manager of the Cardinals next year, but as nearly as can be ascertained the sole basis for the rumor is that both men are labeled John J.

An unnamed Chicago capitalist is credited with the desire to purchase the St. Louis National league franchise on condition that he can get the Cub second baseman as manager. It is further rumored that if the Trojan cannot get away from Chicago the management may be offered to Roger Bresnahan of the Giants or to Tommy Leach of the Pirates.

There is no doubt Evers would make a grand manager for the Cardinals. In that point the story being circulated in the Mound City is absolutely truthful. So are all the fine things said about his knowledge of inside baseball and his wisdom as a tactician on the diamond. But it is not true that it would be possible to start a dicker with the Chicago club for Evers with a player or two in exchange or with a bank roll.

Question of Doubt.

Possibly President Murphy might consider a trade of J. Evers for the St. Louis club, players, franchise, and baseball plant, because in that case, if he owned the club he would sell Evers back to himself and keep him with the Cubs. Possibly, too, President Murphy and the west side rooters would like to see Evers advance in his profession. But whether a change from the kingpinship of the concrete infield to the management of the St. Louis Cardinals would be an advancement for Evers is open to argument. Up to a late hour last night Manager Chance had not started looking for a new second baseman.

"Chic" Fraser plans to leave for his prospective alfalfa ranch in Idaho by the middle of next week. He is waiting on Carl Lundgren, who has promised to make the trip with "Chic" and look over the irrigated country with a view to purchasing a farm out there and selling his Marengo layout.

Fraser has spent the winter months recently working for the county, but yearns to get away from the enervating indoor siege and believes life on his Idaho ranch will keep him in better condition for the next baseball campaign than if he remained in Chicago shut up in an office.

Griffith Denies a Rumor.

Clark Griffith made positive denial yesterday of the rumors assigning him to the management of the Cincinnati Reds for next season. The former Highlander admitted he had not declined an offer to lead the Reds next season, but added that the offer never had been made to him, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

President O'Neill of the Western league left last night for Kansas City to attend today's meeting of the Western association, at which he hopes to be able to secure the right to annex Topeka and Wichita of the latter circuit to the Western league for next season. The O'Neill circuit has consisted of only six cities for several years and all efforts to obtain title to the Topeka territory have been futile, but this time the Western leaguer hopes his petitions and requests will be granted.

Magnates Not Afraid.

Hickman, Ky., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Notwithstanding a warning which has been issued to all sportsmen of the impending danger in Reelfoot lake neighborhood caused by martial law declared to offset the nightrider outrages, notice has been received here from Manager Cantillon of the Washington American league club to "get the hunting hut ready for the usual crowd at once." The party is cruising down the Mississippi river.

RACE TRACK CASE BEFORE GOVERNOR

Troubles of Latonia Owners Not Expected to Close Gates to the Course.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—There was another day of racing at Latonia and the prospects are the track will continue open for some days, if not the remainder of the fall season.

The complication growing out of the action of the state racing commission in "outlawing" Latonia was passed up to Gov. Willson today at Frankfort. The immediate future depends upon his decision. He heard both sides of the controversy and then took the matter under advisement, without giving any intimation as to the course he may pursue. He said that he would have a conference with Commonwealth Attorney Applegate of Kenton county, in which the Latonia track is situated, before he took any action. He seemed to feel that he should do nothing until the local authorities have given the matter consideration.

Arguments of the Factions.

The matter was presented to the governor by President Harvey Myers of the Latonia club and Col. Jack Chinn, chairman of the racing commission. The latter informed the governor that racing was carried on at Latonia in violation of law, while President Myers expressed a contrary opinion, insisting that the racing commission was acting beyond the limits of its authority in prescribing the manner of betting to be permitted at the racetracks of the state.

Judge Louis B. McQuown, legal representative of the commission, came to Latonia tonight to secure a copy of the injunction plea filed by the racetrack officials to stop the racing commission from enforcing its rulings "outlawing" the track.

The indications are that the whole matter will find its way into the courts, and that racing will continue while the question is pending final decision.

Latonia Summaries.

Matinee Races Today.

Police Inspector John Wheeler will start the horses in the harness dashes this afternoon at the West Chicago Driving park. The pistol will be fired from the center field when the horses are in position. At each handicap point a flagman will be placed, and when all flags are lowered it will be the signal for the shot. There will be no recall.

R. L. WELCH RETAINS OFFICE.

Local Man Elected President of National Indoor Baseball Association for Twelfth Successive Year.

R. L. Welch, the local semi-pro magnate, has been elected to the office of chief executive of the National Indoor Baseball association for the twelfth successive year. As in the preceding election he had no opponents, and was unanimously the choice of the ninety members on the advisory board who are eligible to vote. The election has just closed, as the vote is made by mail, and it takes a month's time for all of the votes to gather, as the members of the advisory board live in all parts of the United States.

West Side Y. M. C. A. Team Formed.

The West Side Y. M. C. A. has organized its indoor baseball team for the season of 1908-'09 and is desirous of arranging games with regularly registered teams. Games can be arranged by addressing the manager of the indoor baseball team, West Side Y. M. C. A. Keeler will do the pitching, with Dailey at the receiving end, for the west siders.

"Hans" Lobert Nearly Asphyxiated.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—"Hans" Lobert of the Cincinnati baseball team came near ending his life here today by the gas route. He is a guest of Manager John Ganzel. This morning he went into the bathroom to shave. The room was heated by a small gas stove, about which there was something defective, for the room soon filled with gas and Lobert, sticking to his task, was overcome. He was unconscious when discovered, but quickly was revived.

Pirates Want John Ganzel.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—The Pittsburg ball club has opened negotiations for John Ganzel, captain-manager of the Cincinnati Reds the last year. Harry Herrmann has made it known that he will not retain Ganzel either at first base or as manager next year. Pittsburg patrons are strong in condemnation of the owners of the club for not having a first baseman last season. They think the Pirates would have won the pennant if it had a first class man there.

Nearly one hundred years in the cultivation of the soil has developed the vine that produces the same fine quality wine grape as grown in the oldest vineyards of France. This rich, delicately flavored, mellow grape—combined with the French method of making, makes possible this superior American Champagne.

It was the only American wine to receive that honor—and was acknowledged equal to the finest imported brands.

HEAVINESS RULES IN WHEAT

MAIZE DEVELOPS FIRM TONE.

Brisk Short Covering Is Prompted by Rough Weather in West.

More favorable weather conditions in the Argentine, weakness at the leading European markets, and a desire on the part of scattered longs to harvest the moderate profits in sight offset bullish items and caused heaviness in yesterday's wheat market. Pressure was in evidence the greater part of the session, although general activity was not pronounced. Early in the day values stiffened to a mild advance on a cable concerning the situation in the Argentine. This message had it that recent frosts had worked 40 per cent damage in the central zone of the Argentine, making the injury equal to about 10 per cent for the entire country. The "40 per cent" talk stirred shorts to considerable covering, but many of the buyers turned to the selling side when the message was thoroughly digested and the reports of improved climatological conditions arrived. Final quotations represented net declines of ⅛@¼c for December, ⅛@c for May, and ½c for July.

Drought Fails to Stimulate.

The trade paid little heed to continued dryness this side of the Mississippi river and to many unfavorable reports from central sections. Western and southwestern regions of winter wheat territory, however, were wet, conditions favoring rapid progress in plowing and seeding operations. The Modern Miller said that the drought had worked for much delay in plowing east of the Mississippi, but that many farmers are going to put the seed in the dust and trust to early rains to give it a start in growth. The Canadian and domestic northwest again were in the throes of rough weather, and advices from both sides of the international line indicated that receipts would fall off as a result of the unfavorable turn of affairs. Parts of Iowa and Nebraska reported generous snowfalls, and rain at Kansas City was said to be turning to sleet.

Lighter Movement in Southwest.

The day's receipts at the leading southwestern centers reflected the poor condition of the country highways, the total at Kansas City and St. Louis being only 146,000 bu. against 222,000 bu the corresponding day last year. Duluth and Minneapolis together had 547 cars, against 804 the preceding Friday, and 487 the like day last year. Receipts at all primary points were 1,077,000 bu, compared to 1,003,000 bu a year ago. Clearances at the seaboard, wheat and flour, were large at 881,000 bu, but exporters in general noted little fresh business with the foreigners. The week's exports from this country and Canada were liberal at 6,100,000 bu, according to Bradstreet's, and Broomhall figures indicated that world's shipments for the period would aggregate about 12,100,000 bu, compared to actual exports of 11,712,000 bu last week, and 10,242,000 bu a year ago. Moderate changes in supplies on ocean passage are expected.

Stocks Show a Big Increase.

Stocks of wheat at Minneapolis showed an increase of 1,450,000 bu for the week, compared to a gain of 2,038,000 bu last week. Duluth stocks showed an increase of 545,000 bu, making a gain of 1,995,000 bu for the two points. The week's exports from the Argentine were well under early expectations at 1,184,000 bu, against 512,000 bu last year. Since the first of the year the South American country has exported 135,098,000 bu, compared to 99,888,000 bu for the corresponding period in 1907. The shipments from India and Australia aggregated 712,000 bu, against 1,085,000 bu last year. The Argentine visible showed a decrease of 224,000 bu for the week. Final prices at foreign marts showed ⅝@¾d lower at Liverpool, ⅝c off to ⅛c up at Antwerp, ⅛c up at Berlin, ⅝@¾c lower at Paris, and ¼c down at Budapest. Minneapolis reported a good cash demand at stiff prices, but locally the situation was a little easier, with offerings increasing and the demand showing less urgency.

Sounder Tone to Corn.

Notwithstanding the downward trend of wheat, the corn market displayed a sounder tone, offerings being light and covering by shorts being an important stimulant. Prices did not move over a wide range, but the support the greater part of the session was sufficient to absorb the offerings. The close showed 1½c lower for the current month delivery, 1-16c firmer for December and July, and ⅛c firmer for May. Light pit offerings, disinclination of farmers to sell freely at prevailing prices, and wintry weather in sections of the west were foremost among the factors which worked for the firmness.

Local receipts were 106 cars, including 22 of contract grade, against 98 expected, and 277 received the corresponding day last year, the estimate for today being light at 71 cars. Primary arrivals totaled 233,000 bu, compared to 607,000 bu the same day in 1907, and clearances at the seaboard were 17,000 bu. Cash concerns had word that exporters are quietly doing business with Europe via gulf and Atlantic ports. It was considered significant that Kansas City should pay a penalty of 3c here to cancel former sales to this market. The week's exports from this country were 284,000 bu, compared to 749,000 bu a year ago. The week's Argentine shipments were 1,682,000 bu, against 1,252,000 bu a year ago. Liverpool was unchanged to a shade firmer. Fair business was transacted at the local sample tables, where prices ruled steady to 1c lower, the less desirable grades being weakest. The weather bureau noted probability that the rains west of the Mississippi would swing over sections this side. A leading operator sold December corn freely early, but the outside demand was brisk enough to care for the offerings. Late in the session shorts in the May were quite active in covering.

Oats Rally from Early Decline.

Receiving houses were early sellers of oats, which sagged to a modest decline, but finally recovered losses on diminishing pressure and covering by shorts. The close showed unchanged for December and May and ¼c easier for July. Prices at the sample tables were about ½c lower, only moderate business being transacted. Local receipts were 179 cars, including 13 of contract grade, against 117 expected and 275 received the similar day last year. The estimate for today was 146 cars. Primary arrivals aggregated 324,000 bu, compared to 966,000 bu a year ago. Clearances at the seaboard were only 715 bu.

Rye in Good Demand.

Rye was in good request and firm. December was offered at 76c and May at 80c. No. 2 sold free on board at 75@75¼c, No. 3 72c, and no grade 70c. Receipts were 6 cars.

Barley was firm to 1c higher. Malting was quoted 54@61c, mixing 52½@54c, and screenings 40@57c. Receipts were 105 cars.

Flaxseed was ¼c lower. No. 1 northern closed at $1.25, No. 1 from the northwest $1.23½, and No. 1 southwestern $1.15. Receipts none.

Timothy seed was higher. October sold at $3.75. March was offered at $3.90. Country lots, $2.40@3.50. Cloverseed was steady. October closed at $8.50 and cash lots at $6.00@8.00.

INTERESTING TRADE GOSSIP ON CHANGE.

More liberal offerings of cash wheat were reported in the local market, and prices were relatively easier all along the line. Receipts have been running quite heavy for the last few days, and with an absence of a brisk milling demand, the tendency has been toward easier prices. Practically all brokers and shippers reported an extremely dull inquiry in all directions, but especially for export. In the northwest prices were strong with the keen competition between Minneapolis and Duluth continuing. No. 1 northern at Minneapolis was 2½@2¾c over December, and Duluth was paying even higher premiums. It seemed to be the general opinion that country elevator stocks in the spring wheat country would be materially reduced in the next few weeks, as the demand from Duluth is expected to continue up to the close of navigation. Southwestern markets were a shade easier in sympathy with the futures, but a little hard winter wheat was sold out of store at firm values. Seaboard points all reported a slack demand for wheat from abroad. Yellow corn in the local sample market was steady, but other grades were ½@1c lower. Offerings were moderate, and arrivals of old corn are running light. Kansas City reported cash corn 1@2c higher. The rough weather west and southwest was expected to keep down offerings of new corn for a time. Cash oats were slow, with prices about steady. Local cash sales were 25,000 bu wheat, 150,000 bu corn, and 125,000 bu oats.

George M. Le Count, crop expert, connected with Barrell & Co., said in his final report: "It is my opinion that the estimate of the final yield of corn as indicated in the last government report—namely: about 2,500,000,000 bu, is not in the least exaggerated; for while the October government report gave condition of 77.8, as against 78 last year, the acreage is nearly 2,000,000 greater than last year, which, if the yield were an average one, would mean an increase of about 80,000,000 bu. South Dakota has this year raised one of the finest crops of corn in its history, and, in my opinion, it will easily reach the indicated yield of the October government report—namely: about 69,000,000 bu. Nebraska also has an excellent corn crop, the same conditions having prevailed, and in that state the crop, in my opinion, will fully equal the expectations of the most sanguine. The last government figures indicate 237,775,000 bu, and it is my judgment that they do not exaggerate the probabilities. In Kansas, while the crop is spotted, owing to damage which occurred in the low lands during the floods last summer, I believe there will be a fair average crop."

Misunderstanding in regard to the early Argentine cable received by the Armour Grain company was the cause of quite a little feeling on account of the garbled way in which it was made public. The Armour company was not responsible for the distorted version, which was first circulated, it having wired the entire cable to its outside correspondents before the opening, and the bullish part of the message was wired back here by another house from an outside point. The cable in question said it was feared there had been 40 per cent damage to the crop in the central zone of Argentina, and that the injury to the whole crop would probably be about 10 per cent. This was followed by a later cable saying weather conditions were improving. The version the trade got of the first cable consisted of the first clause only, saying the damage was 40 per cent in the central zone, and some of the trade understood that the whole crop was damaged to that extent. Barrell had cabled from Lancaster, dated Tucuman, Argentina, saying: "The crop is apparently much more damaged than was anticipated."

Buying of wheat early was headed by Bartlett-Patten, Barrell, Barrett, Love, Rankin, Comstock, and Lowitz, while Armour was credited with being the best seller. Pringle, Gifford, Bloom, Dickinson, and Hulburd-Warren-Chandler were fair sellers late in the day. Buying on the break was by commission houses against the "downs." In corn the buying was chiefly by shorts, headed by Friedman, Hellman, Comstock, and other local professionals. Howe was credited with buying a little corn. Nye-Jenks sold quite a little December, which was supposed to be against cash purchases. Armour sold December and bought May. Bartlett-Patten were on the selling side. Selling of oats early was by Lowell-Hoit, but commission houses, led by Bartlett-Patten, took the oats on the break, a good deal of the buying being credited to Patten. Hately was a moderate buyer of provisions, but individual buying was not conspicuous.

Lyle wired Chapin from St. Louis: "Regarding wheat: The sentiment here is friendly, as I find it. The acreage is thought lessened. A miller from Springfield, Mo., thinks in that section the area planted is fully as much as a year ago. The fields generally show wheat has grown enough to be visible. He has no news of any rain. Expresses a fear that some wheat has died for the want of it. Another miller thinks acreage badly cut. The weather bureau has been promising rain here daily for nearly a week. There hasn't been as much as a cloud. No sign of any relief. Weather quite warm and of the kind trying to the plant in this section. Trade dull here."

"New corn is now arriving daily and is showing a wonderful quality for a new crop," said Wareleland. "Receipts of both old and new corn have been small and readily absorbed at slightly reduced premiums. A heavy increased movement might temporarily have an effect on values, but it is well to remember that a considerable amount of the new crop has been sold to arrive and consequently will not come on the market for disposal for forced sale."

The Modern Miller says: "Drought conditions in the greater part of the soft winter wheat states continues to hamper farm work, but in many sections farmers, fearing to delay any longer, are plowing or seeding. Good general rains, such as have been experienced in the hard winter wheat states and the southwest in the near future, would enable farmers to complete work, but the outlook is unfavorable for a normal acreage.

Sales on the call were: Corn—No. 3, November, 4,000 bu at 61⅝c transmississippi; No. 3 yellow, this year, 5,000 bu at 63c, 1,000 bu at 63¼c transmississippi, 5,000 bu at 63c Illinois proportional; No. 3 white, this year, 5,000 bu at 60c Illinois proportional; No. 3 yellow, this year, 19,000 bu at 62c transmississippi, 10,000 bu at 62c Illinois proportional. Oats—Standard, 30 days, 1,500 bu at 50c Illinois proportional.

Exports of wheat and flour from both coasts for the week increased 1,669,000 bu, while corn increased 221,000 bu. Comparisons follow:

	Wheat and flour, bu.	Corn.

Argentine shipments of wheat for the week decreased 472,000 bu, corn 553,000 bu, and flaxseed increased 190,000 bu. Comparative figures follow:

Exports.	Wheat.	Corn.	Flaxseed.

Duluth wired Logan-Bryan: "The manager of a good line of country houses states that receipts at present from farmers are light and shipments are at the expense of elevator stocks, which also are exceedingly light for this time of the year. Wheat held by farmers on storage ticket sales is unusually light."

Winnipeg wired Barrell: "About 25,000,000 bu wheat has passed here and 15,000,000 bu is now in country elevators, making 40,000,000 bu out of farmers' hands. Total crop is somewhere between 100,000,000 and 110,000,000 bu, of which 80,000,000 to 90,000,000 bu will be marketed."

World's shipments for the week were estimated at 12,100,000 bu, of which this country furnished a little more than half. Australia shipped 112,000 bu, against 288,000 bu a year ago, and India shipped 600,000 bu, against 800,000 bu a year ago.

Minneapolis wheat stocks increased 1,450,000 bu for the week, and Duluth gained 545,000 bu. The same points the previous week increased 1,866,000 bu.

A Reuter cable said the yield of wheat in New South Wales would aggregate 17,600,000 to 20,000,000 bu. The outturn a year ago was 9,000,000 bu.

The memberships of Philip A. Sunderland and the estate of John Dwyer have been posted for transfer.

Winnipeg receipts of wheat for the day were 353 cars, against 311 cars a year ago.

Deliveries on October contracts were 50,000 lbs. ribs.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Good hogs with weight sold at unchanged values, while light mixed offerings cleared at unevenly lower prices. There was a total scarcity of really prime hogs, and $6.00 was the best price reached, although strictly prime butcher grades were quotable up to $6.10. Packers secured loads of light hogs at reduced prices, but bought sufficient numbers of the stronger weights to make the average cost of droves steady to only 3c lower than on Thursday. The average price of hogs for the day stood at $5.63, a decline of 2c from the preceding day's average, and the same as on the corresponding day a week ago, and a year ago. Receipts of cattle were about half as large as expected. Buyers were sparingly supplied with orders, however, and the small arrivals caused no hardship. Few changes were noted in the price of native steers, but supplies of butcher stock consisted of such common stock that further recessions had to be made before a clearance could be effected. Even at the reduction in values local packers showed little need of this grade of stock, and bulk of offerings had to be disposed of to outsiders. Sheep values were weak at 10@ 20c lower, while lambs sold at strong to 10c higher prices.

CATTLE.

Receipts of 2,500 fell short of the expectancy, and included a few loads of pretty good native steers which met with a ready outlet at full steady prices. Best on the market were distillery steers, which sold at $6.80, while other lots of corn fed natives sold at from $5.00@6.00, and grassers and tailings were disposed of at from $3.25@4.00, a fair clearance of the offerings in this division being effected in good time. There were no fresh arrivals from the range districts, but the market was liberally supplied with stock carried over from the preceding session, and buyers had little trouble in making up any deficiency in orders at weak to a shade lower prices. Native bucher stock trade was most unsatisfactory. Holders of cheap native beef cows and heifers said there was no market for such stock and that almost any reasonable bid was acceptable, most of the transactions being at a further decline of 10c and showing a loss of from 25@ 50c from a week ago. Canners and cutters were in excessive supply and prices held at the low point for the week, showing a decline of largely 25c. Stockers and feeders of good weight and quality met with a fair inquiry from country buyers, but local traders were heavily supplied with common light offerings, and willingly accepted slightly lower prices in order to clean up for the week. Calves were in lighter supply and sold with a fair amount of alacrity at the recent decline in prices. Best handy weight vealers sold at from $7.75@8.00, while good killers cleared at from $7.00 @7.50. Heavy calves sold down to $3.25@3.75. Quotations:

Good to choice steers	$6.50@7.60
Fair to choice steers	5.25@6.50
Common to fair steers	3.75@5.25
Range steers	4.00@5.25

Cattle at six western markets, 9,800, against 10,100 a week ago, 11,800 a year ago, and 21,000 two years ago. Total for 1908 to date, 6,650,000, against 7,531,000 the same period in 1907.

HOGS.

Packers again had liberal supplies from outside markets, and they came into the trade determined to check the upward tendency noted in prices the last two days. Their initial bids were at a decline of 10c, and for a time it looked as if sellers would be forced to accept these reduced values, as shipping orders were exceptionally light, and local killers afforded the only outlet of consequence. When the total arrivals of 20,000 were sorted, however, and packers had taken out those which had been billed to them direct, it was discovered that there would not be any excessive supply of heavy hogs and salesmen had little trouble in securing steady prices for all weighty offerings. Light hogs were discriminated against, and, as they made up the bulk of the offerings, recessions of 10@15c had to be accepted in order to effect a clearance. All buyers wanted heavy hogs, and they paid steady values without reluctance for all they could get, while the reduced prices stimulated the buying of the light hogs, and all offerings were closely sold, it being estimated that there would not be more than 3,000 hogs left in the pens at the close. Prime butcher hogs were quotable up to $6.10, but the best price reached was $6.00, there being an almost total lack of swine of real choice quality. Packers made up their droves of mixed hogs at from $5.40@5.70, paying up to $5.65@5.80 for heavy packing grades, and securing the light mixed offerings at from $5.25@5.40. Pig values were unchanged. Quotations:

Average price of hogs at Chicago, $5.63, against $5.65 Thursday, $5.63 a week ago, $5.63 a year ago, and $6.28 two years ago.

Eleven markets received 70,800 hogs, against 87,400 a week ago, 46,500 a year ago, and 62,100 two years ago. Total for 1908 to date, 21,902,000, against 19,941,000 the same period in 1907.

Hog purchases for the day follow: Armour & Co., 6,500; Swift & Co., 4,000; Schwarzschild & Sulzberger, 2,500; Morris & Co., 2,500; Anglo-American, 1,200; Hammond, 1,200; Boore & Co., 400; Boyd-Lunham, 700; Roberts & Koake, 800; Western Packing Co., 500; butchers, 200; shippers, 1,000. Total, 21,500; left over, 3,000.

SHEEP.

Receipts fell to 8,000, against 10,661 a week ago, and the smallest of any day this week. Fat lambs met with a brisk demand from packers and sold at a general advance of 10c, while feeding lambs received a good inquiry from country buyers, who willingly paid full prices for all desirable offerings. Sheep and yearlings, however, were not so urgently sought after and values weakened, native offerings selling at weak to 10c lower prices, while western range offerings were off as much as 20c. Best western lambs sold up to $5.60, against $5.50 Thursday, while about four double deck loads of feeders were taken out by country buyers at $5.25. Fat native lambs topped at $5.60, with other loads of prime offerings at $5.50, and good to choice killers at from $5.00@ 5.35. A prime class of native ewes sold at $4.00, while other lots of good to choice offerings made $3.65@3.75. Montana wethers at $3.90 were of the same feeding as those which sold at $4.10 the preceding day, although the price showed a decline of 20c. Western ewes of good quality had to sell down to $4.25. A clearance of all offerings was effected at an early hour, but this was due to the fact that supplies were exceptionally small and salesmen willing to accept almost any bid rather than carry stock over night. Quotations:

Fed native wethers	$4.25@4.75
Range wethers	4.25@4.75
Fed yearlings	4.50@5.00
Feeding yearlings	3.50@4.50
Fed ewes	2.50@4.50

Receipts for Oct. 24 were estimated at 500 cattle, 13,000 hogs, and 1,000 sheep, against actual arrivals of 350 cattle, 4,522 hogs, and 735 sheep for Saturday, Oct. 26, 1907.

STOCKYARD GOSSIP.

Persistent rumors that hogs had sold up to $6.10 could not be affirmed. Both buyers and salesmen agreed that a prime class of heavy hogs was quotable that high, but there was none such included in the arrivals, and $6.00 was the top price paid for the day. Several loads of hogs brought this latter figure, however, and this helped the average, which stood only 2c lower than on Thursday, although several loads of light mixed hogs sold at a decline of 10c, and the extreme top was 10c lower than on the preceding day.

Armour & Co., the Anglo-American Provision company, and G. H. Hammond had hogs from outside points, the number billed direct aggregating close to 4,000. In spite of this Armour & Co. operated on the local market on a liberal scale, and at the close their total purchases for the day were estimated at 6,500 hogs, or 2,500 more than purchased by Swift & Co., and compared with droves of 2,500 each for Morris & Co. and Schwarzschild & Sulzberger.

It was reported around the "yards" that packing plants would be kept busy killing cattle all day Saturday. As a rule packers do little killing on the last day of the week, and cattle traders were at a loss to account for this sudden spurt of industriousness on the part of the packers. It has been understood for some time that killers' coolers were liberally stocked with beef carcasses, and as arrivals this week have not been heavy enough to exceed killing capacity, it was thought probable the packers' Saturday activities would be followed by a period of inaction next week, the object of which would be to force cattle values sharply lower if arrivals continued heavy.

Hogs carried over from Thursday's market were officially counted at 4,182. Late Friday it was estimated that there would not be more than 3,000 hogs carried over for Saturday's market.

ON THE BOARD OF TRADE.

Provisions ruled a little easier the greater part of the session, although net price changes were not marked. Trade as a whole was quiet and devoid of notable feature. The western hog run—63,400, or 22,600 in excess of that of the corresponding day in 1907—prompted scattered holders to selling, and there was less snap to the outside investment inquiry. Packers did little either way. Final quotations showed unchanged to 7½c lower for pork, 5@10c weaker for lard, and 2½@5c off for ribs. Some of the outsiders, who recently bought lard, sold on the bearish hog statistics. The day's shipments of meats hence were 2,352,000 lbs, against 2,354,000 lbs a year ago; lard, 1,102,000 lbs, compared to 627,000 lbs the same day last year. Local estimated hog receipts for today were 13,000.

STRAW.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Rye, $750@8.50; oat, $5.50 @6.50; and wheat, $4.50@5.00.

Groceries.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Business in all lines of groceries was of limited volume and all changes noted in values were towards a lower level. In the canned goods situation spot demand was at almost a standstill and all the goods moved out represented orders placed earlier in the season. Prices in this department showed no notable change, however, the limited production of standard goods, and anticipations that the demand would be more urgent in the near future, being instrumental in sustaining values. Dried fruit values held about steady, although the outward movement of stock was restricted, while all cereals tended towards a lower basis, jobbers reporting the demand for flour the slowest in several weeks.

Sugar and Coffee.

SUGAR.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Refined goods were in urgent demand at a further advance of 10 points in prices. Raw sugars also met with a broad inquiry at full values. Following were the ruling prices in wholesale circles, quotations being on 100 lb lots: Standard granulated, beet and cane, $5.14@5.34; cut loaf, H. & E., $6.80; standard powdered, $5.70; canary, $4.65; extra C, $5.00; chemically pure milk sugar, 18c per lb in brl lots.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—SUGAR—Raw, firm; fair refining, $3.52@3.55; centrifugal, 96 test, $4.02@ 4.05; molasses sugar, $3.27@3.30; refined, firm; No. 6, $4.80; No. 7, $4.75; No. 8, $4.70; No. 9, $4.65; No. 10, $4.55; No. 11, $4.50; No. 12, $4.45; No. 13, 4.40; No. 14, $4.35; confectioners' A, $5.00; mould A, $5.50; cut loaf, $6.00; crushed, $5.90; powdered, $5.30; granulated, $5.20; cubes, $5.45.

COFFEE.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Market for spot coffee showed no new developments. The demand for immediate delivery was modified by high temperatures, while lack of confidence in the future restricted the buying on cost and freight offerings for later shipment.

Dry Goods.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Carson Pirie Scott & Co., in their weekly review of the wholesale dry goods market, said: "Warm weather modified to some extent the urgent call for fall merchandise, but the demand for flannels and blankets about equaled the supply. Some attractive inducements in low priced cotton blankets and outing flannels met with prompt acceptance, indicating alertness on the part of retailers and a disposition to take advantage of favorable price oportunities. Excellent business in silks which has prevailed for some time received a further impetus by the arrival of a large shipment of 26 inch fancy taffetas, a fortunate purchase making it possible to place them in the hands of the retailers to sell for 69c to 75c. They are desirable for suits and waistings. Black, brown, navy, and burgundy colors in wide, stiff taffeta ribbons, used extensively for hair bows, sold well. Novelties shown in dress trimmings were plain satins and satin combinations with filet lace and soutache braid effects in all colors. Also, the large fancy tassels in novel designs and colorings used principally for trimming, but also for sash ends. Smaller sizes in these tassels were shown for neck girdles. Semi-fitted backs are proving to be the popular item in women's sweater coats. In furs there was marked activity in the ruffs and jabots. They are small stock collars of fur, edged with white ruching, brought together at front with rosettes and streamers of satin ribbon of appropriate colors. There are also square pillow muffs to match, trimmed with satin bows and with loops and tails. Every indication points to an advance of 2c a yard on all linoleum, oilcloth, and cork carpets, to take effect Nov. 1. Several manufacturers have already announced this advance."

Many Copy Chicago Methods.

Marshall Field & Company in their weekly report of the dry goods trade say: "The far reaching influence of Chicago methods upon the retail dry goods business of the Mississippi valley has been clearly demonstrated during the last week by orders received by our wholesale department.

"High class window decorations and the publicity given them throughout the country have brought forth many inquiries relative to styles as photographed in various publications. Too much stress cannot be laid on the educational value of such advertising methods, as the demand for better merchandise immediately responds to this kind of solicitation.

"Another influence exerted by the autumn openings and the lavish preparations therefor has been the renewed confidence of the smaller merchant as evidenced by liberal orders for merchandise for spring delivery. For the coming season lines of Parisiana corsets in the new slender hip models, as required by the directoire styles, are now on the road and in great demand.

"Merchants are also much interested in muslin underwear lines and liberal orders are received daily for goods to be shipped in time for January and February sales. A peculiar condition of this demand is that merchants insist upon buying this merchandise from manufacturers direct and on this account our factory facilities have been greatly increased.

"The most immediate response, however, is felt in the departments which specialize in holiday merchandise. Novelties of all descriptions are in great demand."

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The cotton goods market is fairly active and prices are firm, with an advancing tendency noted in brown goods. Cotton yarns are steady with fair sales being made. The local wool market is firmer and sellers of foreign wools are firm. Jobbers are getting an increased number of orders from retailers for quick shipment.

AUTO RACE A MARKET FACTOR

POLITICS AGAIN DISTURBING.

[NEW YORK TIMES FINANCIAL LEADER.]

New York, Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Further profit taking, a renewal of the movement which so affected prices on Thursday, and openly professional pressure on certain sections of the list, resulted today in a heavy stock market. At the end of the day losses predominated, but with few exceptions they were confined to fractions.

Business on the stock exchange through the week has been due mainly to the operations of regular traders, and there were two matters today which apparently induced them to sell out such stocks as they had. One of these was the automobile race tomorrow for the Vanderbilt cup.

Automobile Race a Factor.

The stock exchange provides a good part of the attendance on this event every year and tomorrow will be no exception. Operators who left the city tonight or will leave tomorrow morning will be away over tomorrow's session and they were unwilling to be committed to the market until Monday. The selling of stocks arising from this fact was important and is readily explained by the character of recent transactions on the floor.

Again, there are a number of political developments promised for the next two or three days which may have an unsettling influence. Chief among these are the return of Mr. Bryan to this city for a series of addresses, which, according to Wall street's understanding, will be extremely hostile, and the meeting of the independence party, at which further "Standard Oil letters" are promised.

It seemed to be the decision of such traders as were not moved by the holiday reasoning that it was just as well to be out of stocks for the other causes enumerated. The market sagged accordingly.

Copper Metal Advances Again.

Copper metal was advanced again, more orders for railroad material were reported, and coupled with them were requests for specifications for locomotives and cars in excess of the actual outlay thus far. Fairly favorable private reports on the crops found reflection in a sharp decline of prices on grain markets.

Preliminary estimates of the currency movements of the week indicate that the banks have lost little, if any, ground during the week through interior demand for cash. In general the forecasts agreed upon a small gain in funds. This is comparatively unimportant, however, the main matter of interest being the fact that another week has passed without serious inroads upon local cash holdings for crop moving purposes and that the season for the outflow of funds is rapidly drawing to a close. Only infrequently in the past has money gone out after the end of October.

Money on call, steady, 1¼@1½ per cent; ruling rate, 1½ per cent; closing bid, 1¼ per cent; offered at 1½ per cent. Time loans, extremely dull and easier; 60 days, 2¼@2½ per cent, and 90 days, 3¼@3½ per cent; six months, 3¼@3½ per cent. Close: Prime mercantile paper, 4@4½ per cent. Sterling exchange, steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at 4.8465@4.8475 for 60 day bills, and at 4.8660 for demand. Commercial bills, 4.84¼@4.84½. Bar silver, 51⅝c. Mexican dollars, 45c. Government bonds, easier; railroad bonds, firm.

QUIZ OF BANK DIRECTORATES.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 23.—To enforce much greater responsibility upon directors of national banks and to make them pay more attention to their institutions, Controller of the Currency Murray today issued an order to national bank examiners.

He directs them, upon entering a bank to make an examination, to immediately convene the directorate and require answers to a formal list of twenty-five searching questions.

These inquiries are to be put to each director and are designed to bring out clearly the relation of the directors to the executive conduct of the bank, the extent of their knowledge of the bank's paper, the latitude conceded by them to bank officers in overstepping the national banking law provisions, and their supervision of the bank details.

This is said to be the first complete official inquiry into the relationship between banks and the directors.

Freed; Killed by Train.

Janesville, Wis., Oct. 23.—Hit by a train he was seeking to board to reach Chicago, Thomas Burns was killed. He had been released from jail only twenty minutes before.

ON THE CHICAGO EXCHANGE

United Boxboard and Paper Stocks Have a Slight Upturn.

Large Increase in Amount of Oil Consumed by Locomotives.

United Boxboard and Paper stocks had an upturn yesterday on the theory that some reorganization plan might be made effective. The upturn, however, did not carry prices very high. Opening at 2½, the preferred advanced to 4 and closed at 3. Nearly 1,700 shares were dealt in. The reorganization of the company can hardly excite much enthusiasm, for the business has never been managed in a way to be profitable. The old Strawboard company made some money at one time, but the United Boxboard and Paper company was a failure from the start, and has caused large losses for those who have invested in either the bonds or the stock.

Chicago Edison advanced ex-dividend to 108½. This is equivalent to 110 with the quarterly dividend on. The price has now reached the point where it was figured that it would go when some time ago it was selling at 90.

Chicago Railways Active.

Chicago Railways issues were again active. Series 2 advanced to 46, but fairly heavy selling caused the price to decline to 45, the close. Series 2 certificates represent the old North and West Chicago street railroad stocks. A good share of these were held in the east, and it is probable that the selling pressure comes from that source. So far as earnings are concerned, it does not seem improbable that within a few years there will be dividends applicable to this series. It may be repeated that the dividend is cumulative 8 per cent, beginning Aug. 1, 1908.

American Can shares were quiet. Since the spurt last week there has been no special activity.

Series 1 Railways Certificates.

The amount of the distribution to be made on Chicago Railways series 1 will probably be determined by the directors at their regular monthly meeting on the first Monday in November. It may not be the full semi-annual 4 per cent, since a considerable amount of expenses is to be met. But it is regarded as certain that further semi-annual dividends will be met without question. The series is cumulative, and the full amount of 8 per cent per annum must be paid at some time.

November Disbursements.

Dividend and interest payments for November show a decrease in dividends compared with last year and an increase in interest disbursements. Various corporations reduced dividends while the necessities of railroad and industrial corporations led to fresh bond issues. Following are the figures:

DIVIDEND PAYMENTS.
November, 1907	21,447,928
INTEREST PAYMENTS.
November, 1908	68,817,649
November, 1907	54,532,449
November, 1906	50,284,822
GRAND TOTALS.
November, 1908	87,163,649
November, 1907	75,980,377

Large Bond Offering.

Speyer & Co. and the National City bank are making a public offering of $20,000,000 thirty-five year 4½ per cent sinking fund gold bonds, maturing Nov. 1, 1943. Principal, interest, and sinking fund are unconditionally guaranteed by the indorsement of the Mexican government of the institution for encouragement of irrigation works and development of agriculture. The subscription price will be 92½ per cent, of which 5 per cent will be payable on application and the balance on Nov. 2.

The subscription will be opened simultaneously in Europe and this country. A considerable amount of these bonds has already been placed privately with institutions both here and abroad.

U. P. Holding Company Not Likely.

It is announced that E. H. Harriman has definitely taken a stand against proposals to segregate the investments of Union Pacific into a holding company. It is said Mr. Harriman has never been in favor of the formation of this security holding company, but last fall, in deference to the wishes of some of the directors, a meeting of the board was held to discuss the plan. The attitude of the board at present is understood to be that as Mr. Harriman has the largest responsibility in the matter his wishes should be respected. Last fall it is said a special committee, consisting of Mr. Harriman, H. C. Frick, Marvin Hughitt, R. S. Lovett, James Stillman, and Oliver Ames, was appointed to work out a segregation plan. The committee, however, has done nothing.

Oil Consumed by Locomotives.

The report of the United States geological survey on the production of petroleum for 1907 brings out the interesting fact that during the year a total of 18,855,691 brls of oil were consumed as fuel by the railroads of the United States. The total the previous year was 15,677,677 brls. The estimated length of line operated by the use of fuel oil in 1907 was 13,593 miles and the total length of line covered by oil burning engines is estimated at 74,197,144 miles, an average of 3.935 miles per barrel of oil consumed.

Not a Creditor of E. H. Gay & Co.

Concerning stories in circulation to the effect that the National Shawmut bank of Boston was a creditor of the insolvent firm of E. H. Gay & Co., the president of the bank says:

"The Shawmut bank is not a creditor of E. H. Gay & Co. and has always refused to loan them any money or give them any credit, and it is in no way interested in the settlement of that firm's affairs."

Dividend Declared.

Directors of the Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific declared a quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent on the preferred stock.

Money and Exchange.

Money rates in Chicago are easy at 4@5 per cent on commercial paper, 4@5 per cent on local collateral, and 4½@5 per cent on customers' loans over the counter.

OF THE

(Caja de Prestamos para Obras de Irrigacion y Fomento de la Agricultura, S. A.)

Interest Payable May 1 and November 1.

PRINCIPAL, INTEREST AND SINKING FUND UNCONDITIONALLY GUARANTEED BY ENDORSEMENT BY THE MEXICAN GOVERNMENT.

The bonds form part of an issue of $25,000,000 U. S. Gold (50,000,000 Pesos), are in coupon form of the denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100 U. S. Gold (2,000, 1,000 and 200 Pesos), and payable also at the equivalent in foreign currencies, viz., £205.15.2, £102.17.7 and £20.11.6 Sterling, Marks 4,200, 2,100 and 420, Francs 5,180, 2,590 and 518, and Guilders 2,480, 1,240 and 248.

Principal and Interest Payable in New York in United States Gold Coin, at the Office of Speyer & Co.

Principal and Interest will be payable without deduction for any tax which the Institution may be required to pay thereon, or to deduct therefrom, under any present or future law of the United States of Mexico, or of any State or Municipality therein, the payment of any such tax being expressly assumed by the Institution.

The entire issue of bonds at any time outstanding, but not any part of such issue, may be redeemed after November 1, 1918, at 101 and accrued interest at any time upon giving three months' previous notice.

After November 1st, 1918, a Cumulative Sinking Fund of not less than 1½ per cent of the total amount of Bonds issued becomes operative, the Bonds to be drawn for redemption at par and interest, and Bonds so drawn are to be kept alive for the benefit of the Sinking Fund, and the interest accruing thereon is to be added to the Sinking Fund.

Senor Lic. Don Jose Y. Limantour, Secretary of State and of the Department of Finance and Public Credit of Mexico in a letter dated, October 19, 1908, writes in part as follows:

"The 'Institution for the Encouragement of Irrigation Works and Development of Agriculture, S. A.' (Caja de Prestamos para Obras de Irrigacion y Fomento de la Agricultura, S. A.), is organized for a term of fifty years (unless its existence be extended by a law of congress and by resolution of its stockholders) under the Concession of September 3, 1908, granted to the Banco Nacional de Mexico, the Banco de Londres y Mexico, the Banco Central Mexicano and the Banco Mexicano de Comercio e Industria, with a capital of not less than $5,000,000 U. S. Gold (10,000,000 Pesos) fully paid. Under the terms of the concession, this capital can under no circumstances be increased or decreased without authority of the Department of Finance and Public Credit.

"This Institution has authority to make loans for the encouragement of irrigation and agricultural works and stock raising, and, in exceptional cases, for the development of combustible minerals and to advance funds to metallurgical enterprises; all such loans to be either secured by mortgage and pledge of property, or to be guaranteed by a bank operating under a Federal Concession, or by a company chartered by the Federal Government to finance enterprises falling within the sphere of this concession. The amount which may be loaned on mortgage may never exceed 60% of the value of the property pledged.

"The Concession provides, among other things, that the Board of Directors shall consist of fifteen members, of whom three shall be appointed by the Mexican Government, and no action can be taken if one of the said three representatives of the Government interposes his veto. Under the Mexican law, auditors (comisarios) must examine and approve the accounts before the yearly balance sheet can be submitted to the stockholders, and one of these auditors (comisarios), as well as his substitute, shall likewise be appointed by the Mexican Government.

"The total issue of Bonds authorized is limited to $25,000,000 U. S. Gold (50,000,000 Pesos), or the equivalent thereof in foreign money, and, in pursuance of the law of June 17, 1908, the Bonds which you are offering for sale are unconditionally guaranteed, as to principal, interest and sinking fund, by the Mexican Government by endorsement on each Bond.

"The Concession provides that the 'Caja de Prestamos' can make no further issue of Bonds than above stated without the express authority of the Congress of the United States of Mexico. In case authority to make further issues of Guaranteed Bonds be obtained, then the capital stock must be proportionately increased and fully paid, so that the paid up capital stock of the 'Caja de Prestamos' may never be less than one-fifth of the amount of its Bonds guaranteed by the Mexican Government.

"Under the terms of the Concession, ten per cent. of the net profits of the 'Caja de Prestamos' are set aside each year as a Reserve Fund, until such Fund shall amount to one-half the capital stock.

"The general result of a comparison between the ordinary revenue and expenditure of the Mexican Government for a series of years is as follows:

MEXICAN CURRENCY.

Fiscal Years	Ordinary Revenue in Cash.	Ordinary Expenditure in Cash.	Surplus of Revenue	Per cent
1903-1904	$86,473,800.94	$76,381,643.22	$10,092,157.72	13.21%

The subscription will be closed at the offices of the undersigned at or before 3 o'clock P. M. on Wednesday, October 28, 1908, the right being reserved to reject any application and to award a smaller amount than applied for. The undersigned reserve the right to close the subscription list at any time without notice.

A first payment of $50 in New York funds for each $1,000 bond subscribed for must accompany all subscriptions. The balance of the amount due on bonds allotted upon subscription will be payable in New York funds on November 2d, 1908, at the offices of the undersigned, when temporary certificates, exchangeable for engraved bonds as soon as ready, will be delivered upon surrender of the allotment letter, duly endorsed.

If no allotment be made, the first payment will be repaid in full, if only a portion of the amount applied for be alloted, the balance of the first payment will be applied towards the amount due on November 2d, 1908. No interest will be allowed on such first payment. If any further balance remains, such balance will be returned.

Failure to pay the second installment, when due, will render the previous payment liable to forfeiture.

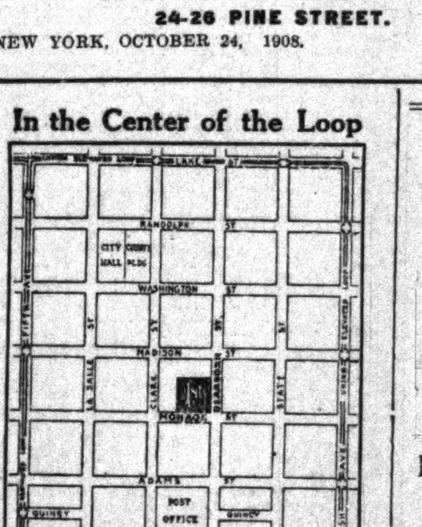

The subscription will be opened simultaneously, in London, by Messrs. SPEYER BROTHERS, in Frankfort A M, by Mr. LAZARD SPEYER-ELLISSEN, in Berlin, by DEUTSCHE BANK,
in Amsterdam, by Messrs. TEIXEIRA DE MATTOS BROTHERS,

Application will be made to list the Bonds on the New York Stock Exchange and in Europe. Copies of the letter of Senor Lic. Don Jose Y. Limantour, Secretary of State and of the Department of Finance and Public Credit of Mexico, referred to above, may be obtained from the undersigned.

PANIC RECOVERY SHOWN IN TRADE.

Comparison with the Depression a Year Ago Is Gratifying to Merchants.

CORN IN GOOD CONDITION.

Western Country Buys Liberally of Farm Machinery and Other Necessaries.

In its weekly review of Chicago trade, Dun's Review, published by R. G. Dun & Co., will say in today's issue:

"Statistical comparisons now begin with the week a year ago, when the depression started. Further evidence of sustained recovery is furnished by increasing payments through the banks and a commercial mortality which is lower than in the corresponding weeks of 1907 and 1906. Distribution of finished products and general merchandise exhibits a wider volume, although variable weather retards a seasonable absorption in leading retail branches here and at the interior.

"Agricultural reports are more gratifying, corn being in good condition and rains ample for the completion of winter wheat seeding. The markets for the principal grains show decline in values and the aggregate movement here is smaller, but flour sales remain exceptionally heavy, and there is strong buying of both provisions and live stock on improved supplies. Growers yet reap the benefits of high prices, and the western country is placed in a good financial position and now buys liberally of the necessaries, farm machinery, and materials for improvements.

Steady Run of Mail Orders.

"Wholesale markets disclose a lighter attendance of outside buyers and house dealings in the staples are less active, although the comparison with this time last year is not unfavorable in textiles and fabrics, clothing, and footwear. Mail orders appear in steady volume for reassortments, a testimony to the belief that country stocks were not made adequate. Some of the goods now required are not easily obtained and this causes firmer prices for guaranteed delivery.

"Manufacturing generally advances as well as expected, especially in iron and metal working, but the underlying conditions form a healthy basis for improvement in the near future. Delayed contracts were closed this week for considerable tonnages of structural steel and rails. Rolling stock is now in better request, more cars being requisite to meet the expanding freight offerings. Lumber moves freely for both building and factory purposes and the markets for hides, wool, and leather remain steady.

"Money is in abundant supply and rates for commercial paper average about 4½ per cent for choice needs. The outgo of currency to move crops has slackened and there is quiet in investment operations, commitments being mainly suspended until the election is over.

Local Movement of Grain.

"The total movement of grain at this port, 7,686,511 bushels, compares with 8,110,531 bushels last week and 13,375,766 bushels a year ago. Compared with 1907, decreases appear in receipts of 33.1 per cent and in shipments of 51.9 per cent. Live stock receipts were 321,583 head, against 334,174 head last week and 340,454 head last year. Receipts of hides, 1,980,228 pounds, compare with 2,513,834 pounds last week and 2,441,335 pounds in 1907. Wool receipts were 522,004 pounds, against 349,642 pounds last week and 31,136 pounds a year ago. Lumber receipts, 4,401,000 feet, compare with 49,568,000 feet last week and 59,525,000 feet last year.

"Compared with the closings a week ago, cash prices are unchanged in flour and choice cattle; higher in lard, 17½ cents a tierce; and lower in wheat, ½ cent a bushel; oats, ¾ cent; corn, 4¼ cents; hogs, 5 cents a hundredweight; pork, 37½ cents a barrel; sheep, 50 cents; and ribs, 75 cents.

"Bank clearings, $250,023,574, are 6.5 per cent under those of the corresponding week in 1907.

"Failures reported in the Chicago district number 18, against 21 last week, 28 a year ago, and 21 in 1906. Those with liabilities over $5,000 number 5, against 2 last week, 6 a year ago, and 7 in 1906."

Dun's Review of Trade.

New York, Oct. 23.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade tomorrow will say:

"Ante-election lassitude is general in the commercial world, but there is a gratifying decrease in idle machinery at manufacturing plants. Collections improve in farming sections.

"Textile plants are more fully occupied and a better tone is apparent in the primary markets, although actual transactions are not large. Some operators still hold back for better terms, but producers are making no further concessions. Prices continue to prevent export trade on any general scale, offers from China being numerous, but too low for consideration. A substantial purchase of print cloths at Fall River cause a rise in price. In woolen goods there is still a disposition to await the verdict of clothiers' salesmen.

"Prospects are considered most favorable in the footwear industry. Thus far, however, actual improvement is irregular. Heavy shoes are in best demand. Leather is quiet, but tanners are confident regarding the future."

Bradstreet's View of Trade.

Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

"Retail trade still reflects the influence of warm weather and the approach of election breeds conservatism as regards heavy buying. However, there is more doing and more confident buying of raw material by manufacturers. The large movement of wheat to market is responsible for the optimistic tenor of reports from distributive centers in the northwest. Effects of the drought are shown in almost total suspension of steamboat traffic on the Ohio river and its tributaries, the holding up of large quantities of coal along that stream. Reports as to collections vary, being best in the northwest and poorest at the south.

"The situation in textile lines is interesting and not without encouragement. In the cotton goods line one feature early was a reduction in shirting prints, but later enlarged demand was reported for print cloths at Fall River, and prices advanced from ⅛ to ¼c.

"Business failures in the United States for the week number 231, against 244 last week, 220 in the like week of 1907, 184 in 1906, 178 in 1905, and 180 in 1904. Business failures in Canada for the week ending with Oct. 22 number 81, which compares with 29 last week, and 39 in this week last year.

"Wheat, including flour, exports from the United States and Canada for the week aggregate 6,127,952 bushels, against 4,458,-627 last week, and 4,765,589 this week last year."

Bank Clearings of the Week.

Bradstreet's bank clearings report for the week ending Oct. 22 shows an aggregate of $2,721,119,000, as against $2,634,016,000 last week and $3,197,847,000 in the corresponding week last year.

SMALLER BOOTH CREDITORS DEMAND QUIZ OF OFFICERS.

Judge Landis, However, Denies Petition, Which Contains Sharp Criticism of Committee Supervising Affairs.

An effort by a number of the smaller creditors of A. Booth & Co. to force W. Vernon Booth, president of the company, and other officers to appear in the Federal Circuit court for examination as to the assets of the company, was made yesterday in Judge Landis' court, but was successful only in part. The effort was in the form of a petition by the Wisconsin Telephone company, H. Rosengard, Harry H. Siff, and Daniel Gelder, and a motion by their attorneys and counsel for an order of reference to examine the officers of the company, which created a sensation by its crash six weeks ago.

Sharp criticism of the "committee of creditors," composed of Chicago bankers and note brokers, whose firms are the heaviest creditors, appointed by the court to supervise the management of the company's affairs by Receiver William J. Chalmers, formed the body of the petition.

After denying the motion for an order of reference, Judge Landis granted leave to A. Booth & Co. to file an amended answer next Monday, and set the hearing on adjudication before a jury for Dec. 1.

CLAIMS PROOF OF PERJURY IN PHONE TALK WITH LEITER.

Coal Company Attorney Accuses Ex-Employe of False Testimony Regarding "Raise" Which Superior Refused.

Hugh Crabbe, plaintiff in a suit in Judge Eberhardt's court in which the Ziegler Coal company is being sued for $416 back salary, yesterday was accused of giving false testimony by Attorney Amos C. Miller, representing the coal company. Mr. Miller just had made a motion to instruct the jury to find a verdict for the defendant.

"Crabbe has testified falsely, the testimony is false, disgustingly false, as has been admitted by the witness on cross examination," Attorney Miller said.

"Crabbe testified yesterday that on or about Jan. 1, 1906, he and Joseph Leiter entered into a contract whereby Crabbe was to receive an increase of salary.

"The following telephone conversation between Crabbe and Leiter took place about July 30 of 1906, and Crabbe has admitted that it took place:

"'I refuse to continue my services unless I receive the full salary of $2,500 a year,' Crabbe said.

The argument was continued until this morning.

LOESCH AND STAFF TO USE JURY COMMISSIONERS' ROOMS

Election Fraud Investigators Assigned to Quarters on Third Instead of Sixth Floor of Criminal Court Building.

Assistants of Special State's Attorney Frank J. Loesch in the investigation of primary election frauds will occupy the rooms on the third floor of the Criminal Court building vacated by the jury commissioners on the removal of the latter to the county building.

Mr. Loesch wanted the suite of rooms on the sixth floor, which are to become the sleeping quarters of jurors hearing cases in the building, but he said that the "second choice" probably will prove satisfactory.

His inability to secure the offices on the higher floor was due to the action of the executive committee of the Industrial club in refusing its sanction to a temporary abandonment of the jury housing plan for which it has been working for two years. The committee communicated this decision to President Busse of the county board, who held a brief conference with Mr. Loesch, with the result that the changes in the jury commission rooms will be hurried to completion within the next three days.

UNLICENSED CAR SOON STOPPED

C. A. Coey, president of C. A. Coey & Co., automobiles, 1424 Michigan avenue, was arrested yesterday for driving a machine without a license. He was taken at Michigan avenue and Hubbard place, a block from the offices of his concern.

He was inclined to take the matter as a joke, placed the two detectives in an automobile, and drove them to the station, where he deposited a cash bond of $25.

"I received the machine last Friday from Detroit and took it out for a trial. I did not think of the license, and I had gone but a block when the detectives hailed and arrested me," said Mr. Coey.

DEATH DOUBLY EXAGGERATED.

Gunther C. Graelitz, Twice Reported to Have Succumbed to Suicidal Wounds, Is Recovering.

Gunther C. Gaelitz, 168 Thirty-ninth street, who attempted to commit suicide, and who twice was reported to have died, is alive and recovering in the county jail hospital.

Gaelitz, to all appearances, was dead Thursday morning, and was hurried to Perrigo's undertaking rooms, 3915 Cottage Grove avenue, by the police. A physician discovered he was alive, and the man was removed to the Provident hospital. In the evening a report was again circulated that he had died at 5:30 o'clock.

Yesterday, however, it was found the man merely had been removed to the county jail hospital, where it was said he would live.

Detective Guilty of Bribe Taking.

PUBLISHER GETS DIBBLEE HOUSE.

Colonial Residence at 1922 Calumet Avenue Is Sold to George A. Ogle.

BUYS MALDEN BUILDING.

G. J. Williams Obtains Structure, Divided Into 20 Apartments, for $70,000.

Following the announcement made a week ago that Rogers & Co., printers and engravers, had purchased the half block on Calumet avenue, between Twentieth and Twenty-first streets, it was announced yesterday that Mrs. Henry Dibblee had sold her residence at 1922 Calumet avenue, nearly opposite, to George A. Ogle, president of George A. Ogle & Co., publishers, 134 Van Buren street. Mr. Ogle, however, is said to have bought the property both for a home as well as investment, and has no plans for changing it into a place of business.

The lot is 100x178 feet, and the house is a handsome three story colonial structure of brick and stone, which cost originally over $100,000. Eugene A. Bournique & Co. negotiated the sale, as well as that of Rogers & Co., and they are said to have negotiations pending with other firms for property in this locality. It is said that St. Luke's hospital has refused an offer of $800 a foot for the unsold part of the block running to Twenty-first street.

Horace L. Brand of the Staats Zeitung has purchased from Pace & Co. a tract of five acres in the latter's new subdivision in Glencoe for $15,000, which is at the rate of $3,000 an acre. The property faces north on Columbia avenue 683 feet west of the corner of Columbia avenue and Sheridan road. Mr. Brand plans to construct a handsome summer home on his new purchase.

Malden Apartments Bring $70,000.

George J. Williams has purchased from Albert R. Lawbaugh the Malden apartment building at the southwest corner of Malden street and Leland avenue, for $70,000, subject to an incumbrance of $23,000. The building contains twenty apartments and the sale was negotiated by Percy Q. Cook.

The Chicago Title and Trust company has taken title as trustee, by master in chancery's deed, from George E. White and others to land in Lemont township, which was bid in for $240,000.

Madeline Wolff has purchased from Ira W. Buell the property in North Clark street 27 feet southeast of Webster avenue, 48x100 feet, east front, with improvements, for $11,-500, subject to an incumbrance of $6,500.

Anton Nowak has leased to the federal government 48x120 feet in the premises 617-619 West Eighteenth street for postoffice purposes. It will be known as Pilsen station and the lease runs for ten years at an annual rental of $3,000.

Jennie C. Daly has purchased from Joseph T. Dorgan the property at the northeast corner of Sixty-first and Drexel avenue, 90x170 feet, west front, for $11,500.

Plans New $120,000 Building.

Charles S. Thornton is to build three eighteen apartment buildings at the northeast corner of Seventy-ninth street and Stewart avenue, the cost of which is placed at $120,-000.

McGuire & Orr have sold for Herbert Hammond to a syndicate a tract of about sixteen acres on Sheridan road and the lake, Highland Park, just south of the Robert B. Gregory property. The price paid is understood to be $60,000, and the title was taken by W. R. Ruffner, a South Water street coffee merchant.

The acres have been platted into a new subdivision called Oakmont, and about twelve handsome residences will be built this winter and next year.

John A. Carroll & Co., the recently organized real estate firm at 112 La Salle street, have sold for Henry A. Marlin of Pittsburg, Pa., to Loeb Bros. of Indianapolis the five story store, office, and flat building known as the Ballard building, at the northeast corner of Fifty-third street and Jefferson avenue, for $90,000, subject to incumbrance of $55,000.

COLLAPSE OF BIG WAREHOUSE.

Four Story Structure at 236 Johnson Street, Belonging to Illinois Seed Company, Falls in a Heap.

With a crash that was heard for blocks the four story warehouse of the Illinois Seed company, at 236 Jefferson street, collapsed last night, the top floors bulging out and carrying hundreds of bushels of grain into the roadway.

Several pedestrians passing in the street heard the cracking of the walls and fled in time to escape injury. Thomas Johnson, the watchman, who was leaving the building at the time, narrowly missed being buried beneath tons of grain. It is estimated that about fifty carloads of seed were stored in the plant.

Policemen from the Maxwell street station were rushed to the scene, but after a search it was found that none was injured. The building was erected about thirty years ago and had long been used as a warehouse.

ARMOURS LOSE SAUSAGE FIGHT.

Michigan Judge Upholds Pure Food Board in Barring Sale on Adulteration Ground.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—Judge Wiest today denied the writ of Armour & Co. of Chicago asking that the state pure food department be permanently restrained from interfering with the sale of their sausage in the state.

The department had forbidden the sale of the sausage on the ground that it was adulterated with cereals and water. The company claimed these ingredients were necessary.

Judge Wiest holds that the addition of cereals and water constitutes adulteration under the statute. He scores the packing company, saying adulteration obviously was made with the intention of deceiving the people, and adds that such methods, if allowed, would soon force honest dealers out of business.

BIG NEW PAPER MAKING PLANT.

One of World's Largest to Be Established in Minnesota by $7,000,000 Company.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 23.—[Special.]—The Minnesota and Ontario Power company was incorporated today with a capitalization of $7,000,000.

The corporation is backed by Minneapolis, Chicago, and New York capitalists. It will develop idle water power, establish a paper manufacturing center, and conduct lumbering operations over a territory containing 150,000 square miles.

The contract has been let for the completion of the immense dam and hydro-electric power stations at International Falls and Fort Frances, and the construction of the ground wood sulphite and news print paper plant. This will become one of the largest, if not the largest, paper producing points in the world.

Police Aid Abandoned Family.

Mrs. Moses Newfield, 924 Milwaukee avenue, applied to the Rawson street police station for aid last evening. Her husband deserted her six months ago and, being ill and having three small children, she has had a hard struggle. The men at the station took up a collection amounting to nearly $10, which they gave to her.

NEW INCORPORATIONS.

NEW CORPORATIONS WERE LICENSED YESterday by the secretary of state at Springfield as follows:

K. & K. Lunch company, Chicago; capital, $10,-000; manufacturing and dealing in restaurant and bakery supplies; incorporators, Charles R. Napier, Charles S. McIlvaine, Joseph W. Errant.

Business Service company, Chicago; capital, $2,500; general advertising, brokerage, collection, and employment agency; incorporators, Louis E. Hart, R. A. Willson, Nicholas Knol.

RAILROAD.

Chicago and Proviso railway company; capital stock, $5,000; principal office, Chicago; to be constructed from a point in the City of Chicago, Cook county, to a point in the township of Proviso, in said Cook county, together with such branch lines to and from such points as the board of directors may adopt; incorporators and first board of directors, F. D. Kilmer, J. M. Swanson, H. L. Fearing, William A. Rawson, and N. C. Fisher, all residents of Cook county.

NEW CATTLE RATES UPHELD BY COURT

CHICAGO IS AFFECTED.

Judges Declare Commerce Board Didn't Exceed Authority by Reduction.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 23.—The United States Circuit court today refused to issue an injunction restraining the interstate commerce commission from putting into effect an order reducing rates on cattle shipments from the southwest territory to Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, and other points.

The application for the injunction was made by the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway and fifty-five other western and southwestern roads. The petition for the restraining order was filed about three weeks ago, and stated that the rates prescribed by the commission were confiscatory and would cause the roads involved to lose nearly $1,500,000 a year.

Doesn't Touch Switching Charge.

The ruling of the court does not apply to the matter of the reduction of switching charges at the Chicago terminal yards. The interstate commerce commission already has been restrained from reducing the terminal charge on live stock from $2 to $1 a car, and when its attention was called to the fact that in again issuing an order reducing terminal charges it had violated the injunction the commission suspended the order.

The petitions of the railways in both the terminal charge case and the stock rate cases were filed at the same time, but the terminal charge was not discussed in the opinion of the court today.

Board Within Its Authority.

The judges sitting were Adams, Van de Vanter, and Hook. In denying the injunction they ruled that the court had a right to go into the evidence and determine whether the new rate was confiscatory, but that before it took up that phase of the matter there must be a showing that the interstate commerce commission had exceeded its authority. This had not been done, the opinion said.

USE NEW BILL OF LADING ON WESTERN ROADS AFTER DEC. 1

Lines Issue Notice to Shippers, Who, However, May Use Up Present Supply of Dray Tickets.

By Dec. 1, or soon thereafter, the new uniform bill of lading recommended by the interstate commerce commission, which was formulated by a joint committee of shippers and railroad representatives, will be in effect on practically every railroad in the United States. All freight shipments then must be made according to its contract provisions, specifying exactly the liability of the carrier for loss or damage and the rates under which the freight is transported.

This uniformity was made possible yesterday by the decision of representatives of the western lines at a meeting in the Railway Exchange building, when the decision was reached to put the bill into effect by Dec. 1 under practically the same conditions as those adopted by the eastern lines, which will begin using it on Nov. 1.

The rule adopted by the official classification committee that if the shipper elects to send his freight under the carrier's common law liability he will be charged 10 per cent in addition to the regular freight rate was also adopted.

The western roads also have agreed to the concession made to shippers by the eastern roads that for a limited time the old dray tickets and shipping receipts that have been so long in use will be accepted in lieu of a bill of lading, providing they are stamped or printed with a specified form of statement making the shipment subject to all of the provisions of the uniform bill.

The number of idle freight cars on the American railroads is steadily decreasing, according to the regular fortnightly report of the car efficiency committee of the American Railway association. The report for the two weeks ended on Oct. 22, which was issued during the day, shows that the number of idle cars now has been reduced to 1..,036, the decrease for that period being 18,756.

GREAT NORTHERN REPORT GOOD

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 23.—The nineteenth annual report, issued today by the Great Northern railroad company, shows a highly favorable report in view of the general business conditions during nine months of the company's fiscal year ending June 30, 1908.

The gross operating revenues for the year were $54,429,000, a decrease compared with the total for the previous year of $1,838,000. But the freight revenue showed a decrease of $1,920,000 and the passenger traffic offered an increase of $140,000. The report shows that while the decrease was general in all classes of freight, there were handled 2,111,-460 net tons of iron ore less than during the corresponding period of 1907.

The gross decrease in revenues of all sorts was $1,838,000. On the other hand the operating expenses increased by $523,000, and cost of maintaining way and structures increased by $1,320,000.

DEFICIT FOR PERE MARQUETTE.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 23.—The annual report of the Père Marquette railroad, made public today, shows a deficit of $393,667 for the year ending June 30, 1908, as against a surplus of $432,222 for the preceding year.

Freight revenues were $9,380,223, as against $9,769,733 the preceding year, and passenger revenues were $3,308,488, as against $3,292,-874 the preceding year. The number of passengers carried was 4,970,081, as against 4,579,279 in the preceding year.

The expenditure for betterments was $162,-103. To retire sundry equipment and trust bonds $687,466 was paid out.

Chicago Steamer Goes Ashore.

Racine, Wis., Oct. 23.—At an early hour this morning the passenger steamer Marquette, plying between Kenosha, Waukegan, and Chicago, went on the beach one and a half miles south of Kenosha during a northeast gale. The Kenosha life saving crew took the crew and seven passengers safely to shore.

DEATHS.

IN MEMORIAM.

MOEBIUS—Mary Moebius, nee McCormick. In sad but loving memory of my dear wife, who departed one year ago today.

O, dearest, how I miss you each day. No more with joy and gladness your welcome voice I hear. It was indeed a bitter pain to part with one whom I loved so dear. Your life on earth was so short with me; long be your rest with God in heaven, where you have gone to dwell forever.

It is sad to have to part with such a good, kindly wife as you were to me.

Southeast corner Clark. Telephone 3516 Central.

I APPRECIATE ACCOUNTS OF HONORABLE people [men employed or in business, women with allowances or incomes] who want to borrow money confidentially with or without security. The methods of some dealers never change, and high rates for money are demanded by the professional lender. Will gladly advance reasonable sums to honest people who have the ability to pay, with reasonable promptness. My average rate, all expenses included, is never more than 1, 2, or 3 per cent monthly, depending upon amount loaned and risk assumed. No insurance or other device to swell interest charges. Ask for WILLCOXE, care of Englewood Co., 538-540 E. 63d-st., corner Greenwood-av. Telephone Hyde Park 4338.

BANKERS TO THE PEOPLE—
YOU CAN borrow money of us in small sums as well as large. Men and women employed—Business Men, too—we will give you the fairest rate in Chicago. Ladies of reputable family may easily borrow on their own name and promise. Tel. Harrison 3171, or call private office, 605, 215 Dearborn-st., cor. Adams-st. WEST & COMPANY.

PERSONAL PROPERTY LOANS.

BORROWERS, TAKE NOTICE.
A LITTLE COMMON SENSE ADVICE.

When you are looking for a place to move you do not always take the first place you look at. You look around a bit and consider which is the best as to location, repair, and many other things. Why not do the same when you want to borrow money? All flats or houses are not the same, neither are all loan companies. All landlords are not alike, neither are all loan men. Why not shop around a bit when looking for a place to borrow money, and, after doing so, select the place where you will be treated the best and where you can get the best rates and best accommodations? If you are already a borrower and are not well pleased where you have been borrowing, why not look for a better place? It will cost you nothing for an interview with us, and if you are not convinced that WE ARE THE PEOPLE there will be no harm done. COURTESY AND CONSIDERATION is our motto. No matter where you have a loan, and we can pay it for you and advance you more money.

Loans made on furniture, pianos, horses, wagons, etc.
